TERMS, $2.00 A YEAR.

CHILD BURNED

While playing about a bonfire near his home Friday afternoon Francis Boughan, four years old, son of Mrs. Ellen Boughan, was so seriously burned about the face and body that the little fellow died a short time afterward at the Newton hospital.

His mother, in attempting to save the youngster, was also severely burned about the face and body and removed to the Newton hospital, but her condition is not regarded as serious.

The children were throwing paper and other rubbish on the fire and enjoying watching the flames leaping up. Young Boughan ventured too close and a tongue of flame wrapped the boy in flames. The children began to scream for help and the boy made a dash for his home.

His mother met him at the gate and tried to lead out the fire with her hands and tear the flaming garments from the boy, but too late to save him from being badly burned. The mother's garments caught fire several times.

The little fellow was unconscious when the doctor came and expired soon after being removed to the hospital.

THE KING OF THE GARDEN.

This is the title which Mrs. E. E. Trumbull gives to the peony, in a delightful article which appears in Suburban Life for May. After describing the procession of iris bloom, she says: "Next come the peonies, the acknowledged king of the garden; and surely never a king better deserved the homage showered upon him by his devoted admirers. Even the old varieties which bloomed a century ago are good; if I had room I should want them all. There is no flower—no, not even the rose—more irresistibly alluring than the peony, in coloring, delicate as an orchid, in fragrance, rivaling the rose, the heliotrope and the violet, mingled with the spices of Araby. In my little border there are only twelve—five white, different varieties; four shades of pink, and three red and crimson, all double. Only twelve, when I want beds and borders and hedges! But I am very glad that I have a place for this modest number. And even twelve do make a fine show, I assure you."

SHEEHAN—FRAWLEY.

Mr. John J. Sheehan a popular Newton young man and Miss Mabel Veronica Frawley an estimable young lady of West Newton were married on Easter Sunday afternoon at St. Bernard's Rectory, Rev. Father Galligan officiating.

The best man was Mr. James P. Sheehan, a brother of the groom. The bride was attended by Miss Katherine V. Sheehan as maid of honor.

The couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents among them being a purse of gold from the grooms co-workers in the West Newton Post Office.

The couple enjoyed a wedding trip to New York and Washington and will be at home to their many friends at 68 Boyd street, Newton, after June 1st.

BENCH SHOW AT CHESTNUT HILL.

The eighth open-air show of the Ladies' Kennel Association of Massachusetts will be held at Chestnut Hill, June 1, and there are nearly 500 entries in the special classes, the breeds best supported being French bulls, Boston terriers, bulldogs, collies, English setters and pomeranians. The entries for the show will close May 16. The event is entirely in the hands of the women themselves, who steward the rings and who will be assisted by several well-known judges of the different classes.

PRESENT TO LIBRARY

Mr. Clifford H. Kendall, of New York, and a former resident of this city, has presented the Newton Free Library with a life size portrait bust of Henry George and a complete set of his books. The bust was moulded by Mr. Richard F. George of New York, a son of Mr. Henry George. The books presented by Mr. Kendall are in ten volumes and are entitled, "Progress and Poverty," "Social Problems," "The Land Question," "Protection or Free Trade," "A Perplexed Philosopher," "Our Land and Land Policy," "The Science of Political Economy" and "The Life of Henry George."

BURGLARS ABOUT.

The police discovered Tuesday that the residence of M. S. Wallace, 3 Bowdoin street, Newton Highlands, was broken into some time ago, while the occupants were away, and the house, from the cellar to the attic, was ransacked and property to the amount of several hundred dollars taken.

Everything in the house was in an upset condition, chairs overturned, bureau drawers pulled out and their contents strewn about all the rooms. The attic also showed the work of the thieves, for it was thoroughly overhauled. The house, to the police who were called, never during their experiences had ever seen any house in such a condition. The burglars had evidently remained some time in the house, as the remains of several dinners were left on the tables. They had, before taking their departure, dressed themselves in Mr. Wallace's best suits of clothing, leaving their discarded apparel on the back of a chair. Entrance to the house was gained by forcing a rear window with a jimmy.

POLICE NOTES.

Rocco Grello was arraigned before Judge Kennedy in the police court Monday morning, on a charge of the illegal sale of liquor. The premises of Grello were raided Sunday afternoon by officers Mills and Hughes, who seized over 15 gallons of beer and two quarts of whisky. The place had been closely watched by the police since last February, but it was not until Sunday that they were able to catch Grello in the act of making a sale. Judge Kennedy imposed a fine of $50 which he paid.

THE NEWTON CLUB

Saturday, May Sixth
"Men's Round Up." Monologs, Music
Supper 10 P. M.
Bowling, Crazy Contests, 8 P. M.

Saturday evening promises to be a record breaker for attendance. There will be Monologs by Mr. Grille. Mr. Harrison will be at the piano and good music and singing can be expected. A special supper will be served in the large hall.

The Bowling Committee will run off the "Krazy Kontests." These are sure to be of interest.

The members are looking forward to an enjoyable and instructive talk May 13th on Boston's Harbor and Water Front possibilities by Mr. H. C. Long of Boston.

This should draw a large attendance. The Club Bulletin announces features for the fall season and much of interest is promised by the various Committees.

DARTMOUTH CLUB FORMED.

The alumni of Dartmouth College, about seventy-five in number who reside in this city have presented the College with an annual price of $50 for competition in extemporaneous debate. The contest is limited to the senior class and will take place once a year, first prize being $30 and second $20. The fund was raised by a committee of which Mr. James P. Richardson, '99 of Newtonville was chairman.

It has also been decided to form a permanent organization of the alumni in Newton and the Dartmouth Club of Newton has been formed, with Hon. Samuel L. Powers '74 as president, Albert M. Lyon '94, vice president, Dwight B. Rich '00, secretary-treasurer, with James P. Richardson '99 and William I. Fearing '09 as members of the executive committee. The club will endeavor to increase the acquaintance of the Dartmouth alumni in the city and interest the young people in the college. It will entertain the President, E. F. Nichols the present month, with a dinner at the Newton Club.

THE PLAYERS.

The Players will give the third series of performances on the evenings of May 8, 9, 10, when the club will present "In Honor Bound" by Sidney Grundy, "Sunset" by Jerome K. Jerome and "The Changeling" by W. W. Jacobs. The cast will include Mrs. Wakefield, Misses Macomber, Stutson, Talbot and Tapley, Messrs. Carter Condit, Crain, Giddens, Pulsifer, Stutson and Wakefield.

MR. EDMANDS DEAD.

Mr. Frank Edmands, a native and life long resident of Newton Centre died at his home last Friday at the age of 62 years. Mr. Edmands was the son of the late J. Wiley Edmands and has been prominently identified with the public affairs of the village and city. He represented Ward 6 in the Common Council in 1884-85-86 and was deeply interested in the affairs of the Newton Centre Improvement Society. He was a member of the First Baptist church for many years. He was also a charter member of the Clafin Guards. For many years he was in the real estate and insurance business, but was compelled to retire some years ago on account of paralysis. He married the daughter of the late Mellen Bray, who survives him together with three sons, J. Wiley Edmands, S. Albert Edmands, Bradford Edmands and two daughters, Mrs. Robert M. Clark and Mrs. C. Faulkner Kendall. Funeral services were held from his late home on Lake avenue, on Sunday afternoon and Rev. M. A. Levy officiated. The burial was in Newton Cemetery.

MARRIED AGAIN

Although married once before, only in a much quieter way than tonight, Mrs. Dorothy Gilman Aiken Rockefeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aiken, 157 Webster street, West Newton, was again married Tuesday to Albert Franklin Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller of Auburndale, at the home of the bride's parents.

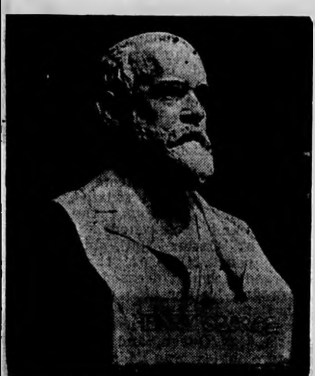

The couple were secretly married on April 20 at Nashua, N. H., by a justice of the peace. The couple forgot to get homes without the knowledge of their parents. They only managed to keep the secret a day however, when it became known.

The second wedding was only witnessed by a few friends of the couple. It was solemnized by Rev. Robert W. Van Kirk, pastor of the Lincoln Park Baptist church, of which both bride and groom are members. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Francis M. Terrell, a sister of the bride. The maid of honor was Miss Maud Rockefeller, a sister of the groom and the best man was Walter S. Aiken, a brother of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of white silk messaline, her bridal veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a large bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor was gowned in a dress of alic blue silk trimmed with lace.

Following the ceremony a lunch was served to the guests, after which the couple, assisted by their parents, received those present.

The couple left on an extended wedding trip to New York, Niagara Falls and the west, and on their return will make their home with the bride's parents.

BUST OF HENRY GEORGE.
Presented to Newton Library by Clifford H. Kendall.

THE POPS AT SYMPHONY HALL.

The twenty-sixth season of the Pop concerts in Symphony hall opened most brilliantly Monday evening, May 1st. The hall was crowded to its capacity with one of the most fashionable audiences that it has ever had. It is evident that the twenty-sixth season is to be at least as successful as the twenty-fifth which made a record and the chances are that it will surpass it. Mr. Strube is fortunate in some of the new pieces he has found and the old favorites excite as much enthusiasm as ever. The seasonable spring weather has done much to make the popularity of the concerts and big crowds are sure to be the rule. The programs for the second week show as much attractive music as those of the first week.

VACATION WORK

As the season for summer outings approaches the patrons of the Newton Vacation Week may not be averse to hearing of the good times they have given to the many in our midst whose life is not one long holiday, but rather a season of toil and anxiety. Donations varying in amount from five cents to twenty-five dollars, were received from one hundred and twenty-five people, and from ten Sunday School Classes, amounting in all to $375, of which three hundred was expended before October first, 1910, leaving seventy-five dollars for emergency cases, which have occurred during the winter. The channels through which these gifts have flowed, are as varied as the gifts themselves, but each has an interest of its own, and has accomplished its work of cheer. The $30 given the Old Ladies at the Home supplied to each of the fifteen guests there a crisp, new two dollar bill to be used for electric rides, a most popular amusement there, during the summer months, and the same amount sent to Sharon Lake Shore people, mothers and their children, the week, in one case, being prolonged to a month. The dozen children in the Pomroy Home would assure you that the $12 expended for them in numerous electric rides, and in a day's outing at Revere Beach with all its glories, dinner and the flying horses included, was not wasted money. The boys who enjoyed excursions of the Y. M. C. A., which their purses would not admit from two Sunday School Classes of boys who "wanted some other fellows," besides themselves to have "jolly times."

Eight ten dollar bills, and twenty-fives, from as many different people brightened the summer for an invalid artist with her aged mother—four faithful women, who for many years patiently taught Newton children, until the march of time, and the intricate machinery of the modern schoolroom, drove them from the work they loved—two brave seamstresses, always self-supporting until sickness and failing eye sight ended their active work—a hard-working woman who had an intense longing to visit the land of her birth and her aged father—the half dozen girls who were having joyous, enforced vacations because "work is always slack" in summer. These and many others enjoyed, through the Vacation Fund, days of unalloyed happiness. One young girl, the support of her family, spent a delightful week at Good Cheer Camp, and to another brave woman, a five dollar bill gave all the joys of a week at Old Orchard Assembly. Into two self-respecting families, sickness and death came, and the out-going fund supplied many little needs incident to the time.

An outing in one case meant a week's visit to the Hospital for medical advice in another, plates for feet with fallen arches, and in still another some much needed dentistry, all of which added comfort to the life, and efficiency to the work of the recipients.

The twenty $2 bills and thirty $1's furnished the means for picnics and day excursions which have been many and successful. The favorite resorts for the children being City Point, Revere Beach and Norumbega Park, while their elders preferred quiet country rides or excursions in the harbor. The Annual Day at Norumbega was voted a greater success than ever before, and equally so was the "Imaginary Picnic" in which some of our shut-in friends participated, the basket of "picnic goods" being sent to each with the request that the lunch be eaten in the open air.

BEATEN AT LAST

After winning seven successive games since the season opened, the Newton high school baseball team experienced its first defeat of the year Tuesday afternoon on Clafin field, the Rindge M. T. team of Cambridge winning by 8 to 6. Prior to this game the Newton high freshmen defeated an all-grammar school team, 9 to 2, in a seven-inning game.

The Newton high school management issued complimentary tickets to about 2000 grammar school students, and they were allowed to remain through the Rindge-Newton game. It was estimated that fully 2000 persons saw Newton high lose for the first time this spring. The team was not outplayed by any means, but with Capt. Grafton Sanderson out of the game it was considerably weakened at third base.

Although there was a lot of heavy hitting down by both teams, there was also a lot of good pitching by James Fitzgerald of Rindge and Robert Spalding of Newton. The honors were slightly in favor of the Rindge twirler, who struck out 15 batsmen, while his rival failed nine.

The strong wind that blew across the field bothered both pitchers, Newton made 11 hits, including six doubles and a triple, while Rindge got in 12 hits, two going for doubles.

In the fifth inning Hyatt lost an opportunity to tally, being called out for not touching first on his triple to left centerfield. He would have scored a little later on Whitney's double.

Kelleher and Capt. Mark Murphy did the best hitting for Rindge. The former made three hits, including a double, while Murphy got two singles. Hyatt with three hits, two of them doubles was high man for Newton.

N. H. S.

Newton high school won its fifth consecutive baseball game on Clafin field Friday afternoon when it defeated Wendell academy of Cambridge, 8 to 4. With the exception of the eighth inning, when Newton high bunched its hits and the visitors made two errors, Wendell academy outplayed the home team. The Cambridge schoolboys started off like winners and would have taken Newton into camp but for that one bad inning.

Only six hits were made off Whitney of Newton. However, Wendell's hits came at opportune times. Henderson, the colored boy pitched for Wendell and in the first seven innings only four hits were made off him, but in the eighth Newton made six.

The best hitting for Newton was done by Nash, Beal and Tucker. Brooks was back in the game behind the bat for the first time since he injured his finger three weeks ago, and he did fine work.

The hitting of Culhane and G. White was a feature of the Wendell team's playing.

if possible, at least with open windows and in the sunshine.

Such is the brief outline of the work of the Vacation Week for the summer of 1910. If inadvertently any who contributed to its success have failed to receive personally the thanks due them, let them rest assured that their donations were appreciated, and accomplished the end for which they were given, that of making the little world around them happier and better.

Active work for the year 1911 begins June 1st and donations, large or small, will be gladly received by any of the following ladies, Mrs. Hermon Hibbard, Mrs. A. B. Bassett, Mrs. Frank Hazlewood, Miss Emma E. Walker, Miss Mary Childs, Miss Elizabeth Spear.

To the Prospective Buyer

It is most advantageous to list one's requirements with a reliable real estate broker, the obvious reasons are: In a reliable, up to date real estate office great numbers and varieties of properties are listed at all times, and clerks are paid to keep people posted on whatever properties that seem to be what a client would consider. Another advantage of the agent is that many people will list highly desirable properties with a real estate broker when they would not let it be generally known that they were desirous of selling. My lists are at the service of the buyer.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND NOTES.

The playground activities are now in full swing. There are three baseball leagues, having a total entry of twelve teams of boys averaging from ten to sixteen years of age. The Mason Grammar school has a promising team playing in the Grammar School League. They have played two games, having defeated the Pierce school 27-3, and the Hyde school 8-3. Their next game at home will be played on May 11th at 2:30, with the Stearns school. Last Tuesday the Newton Centre team defeated the Theological Seminary 7-5. On Saturday, April 29th, the Newton Centre team won from Auburndale. It is planned to form the strongest team possible to represent Newton Centre, and to play on Saturday afternoons.

Dewey Bennett is the first boy to qualify for a playground button. To receive one of these buttons, a boy must pass the following tests:

For Grammar school boys under 13 years, 50 yds. in 7:35 sec. Standing Broad Jump, 5 ft. 8 in. Pull up 4 times.

All other Grammar school boys, 100 yds. in 14 sec. Pull up, 6 times. Standing Broad Jump, 6 ft., 6 in. High Jump, 3 ft., 10 in. 8 lb. Shot put, 22 ft.

There are also tests for high school boys of Newton Centre.

On May 13th at 9:30 a. m. there will be a four cornered track meet with Mason, Hyde and Claffin schools of Newton and motion school of Brookline, competing.

The next meet of the Newton A. A. will be held on May 20th, at 2:30 p. m. and on May 27th, at 2 p. m. The All-Newton Grammar school athletic meet will be run.

Young men over 15 years of age who desire to compete in the Newton A. A. meet on May 20th, should apply to F. D. Elchbauer, Director of N. C. Playground.

Miss Vall of the Pesce Gymnasium will be on the playground at 2:30 on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons during May, to conduct the play of the girls.

MAY DAY AT LASELL.

The May Day exercises at Lasell, which were postponed from Monday on account of the threatening weather, were held on Wednesday afternoon, and in spite of the cold wind which blew across the campus, a large number were present and enjoyed the fête.

The festivities opened with a parade of the seniors in caps and gowns in double line from the senior house. They carried twisted yellow and black ribbons, the class colors, and marched to the steps at Carter Hall, singing their class song. Out of the doorway emerged a senior dressed in cap and gown and by her side was Miss Lillian Lane, the May Queen. The senior was Miss Edna MacDonald, last year's May Queen, and the mistress of ceremonies was Ida Hammond.

The crowning of the May Queen took place on an elevated platform, the Queen being crowned by Miss MacDonald.

The seniors then marched to the Crest, which they decorated with their class colors. They then proceeded and planted a white clematis, their class flower. Miss Gladys Lawton, the senior class president then presented the spade to Miss Miriam Flynn, after each senior had thrown in some dirt. Miss Flynn is president of the Junior class.

The faculty reception to the students was held last evening, and was attended by a large number of friends and parents of the young ladies. In the receiving line were: Miss Lillian E. Potter, the princess; Miss Frances Dolly and Miss Grace Irwin of the faculty, and Elizabeth Farnham, Mary Goodwillie and Helen Thirkfield.

NEWTON'S REPRESENTATIVE IN CHINA.

Shanghai, March 30, 1911.

My dear Newton friends:—

Association history in the far east is as interesting and pregnant as any missionary history since the days of Carey. Its full import can no more be measured today than can an influence upon a child of ten years. For China is a child yet. However she likes our attitude, which, with our earnestness to help, suggests that we shall mould her not a little. The Shanghai Association story is typical. In this letter I shall give you a few facts only, and in my next letter I shall continue the narrative.

Shanghai being a cosmopolitan city, there must be association work for different nations. The Foreign Association, which is for the English and Americans, will be reorganized this autumn by a splendid secretary who is expected then. I will at that time write further about it. The Japanese work has 113 members, of whom 59 are in the night school. It publishes a magazine which has a thousand subscribers. In the local colleges there are 8 branches of our work with 443 members, half of whom are in Bible classes.

The Chinese work is, however, by all odds the most important. This Association was organized ten years ago; today it has a membership of 1600. Its first budget was about $5,000, now it is nearly $20,000. It began its career in a small rented building; in 1907 a modern structure was erected, and although that was hoped to be sufficient for ten years, today every inch of room is used and much more is urgently needed. There are four foreign secretaries. Will W. Lockwood is general secretary, Rev. W. E. Taylor (of Ontario) is assistant, and while Lockwood is in America on furlough, is acting general. Thirteen Chinese are on the staff, seven of them in training. The Association ideal is that where a Chinese can possibly do the work, no foreigner should do it. The Shanghai Association is the model for all China; here young secretaries are trained; the new national headquarters will be erected here. Unquestionably this means great advantage to these young men, many of whom are from far into the interior. To meet them is an inspiration. Each face tells its story—a burning Christian zeal that led them to sacrifice position and friends for this usefulness. They are true patriots. No man is sent here for training who has not already proved himself capable and energetic. I am sending Mr. Semerby a snap shot of one of them now here. He has a remarkable story.

Trusting that your own association work is going along as well as ours is here, I am, respectfully,
Your Chinese representative,
J. H. GELDART.

Y. M. C. A.

On Thursday evening May 11 at the Y. M. C. A. a very interesting entertainment will be held for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. Club, "The Man from Home" will be rendered by Mr. Edward H. Frye a famous monologist. It will be well worth your while to keep the date in mind and be present on that evening at the Newton Y. M. C. A. Eliot building.

NEW PASTOR.

Rev. Fr. John F. Keleher, who for the past eight or nine years has been the pastor of St. Margaret's church in Cam-pello, a suburb of Brockton, has been transferred from that pastorate by Archbishop O'Connell and has been assigned to the pastorate of St. Bernard's parish in West Newton.

Rev. Fr. John F. Keleher, who will assume his new duties the first of next week, was born in Woburn in 1861, and following his grammar and high school studies entered Boston college, from which he was graduated in 1880. He then went to Montreal to study for the priesthood, and following his ordination in 1883 returned to Boston and was assigned to Westfield for his first duties.
He was soon transferred from that place and brought to Charlestown,
where he served for a period of some two years, after which he was assigned to Salem.

From Salem Fr. Keleher was transferred to St. Joseph's church in the West End. Here he spent the longest period in any one parish, and while he was there the present archbishop, Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, was a priest with him, engaging in the work of the West End parish.

About eight years ago the late Archbishop Williams decided to separate the parishes in the Brockton district and he set aside that part of Campello which now is included in St. Margaret's parish and placed Fr. Keleher in charge as pastor.

Fr. Keleher is an energetic worker.
He is engaged the whole time with the welfare of his parish and the people of St. Bernard's parish will find in him a pastor whose efforts are constantly in their behalf.

1865 THE OLD FIRM 1910
George H. Gregg & Son
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
 All the Newtons 296 Walnut St., Newtonville

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

The General Court has made considerable progress this week, although some of it is progress in the wrong direction. The Senate, for instance, has passed the obnoxious eight hour bill, with our Senator voting in favor, as he did last year. On the last stage of this bill in the House, Mr. Ellis tried for an amendment which would allow municipalities which had voted for the eight hour bill in its original form to declare their preferences again in the present drastic draft. The amendment was defeated, as was another amendment placing the referendum on the new bill. In view of the Democratic opinion on the referendum the defeat of this amendment clearly shows that that party only wants a referendum when it falls in with its wishes.

Two bills have been favorably reported this week in which Newton has some interest. City Solicitor Slocum made so strong a plea last Friday that the committee immediately reported the bill to allow municipalities in the Charles river basin to bond 85 per cent of the accumulated assessments for that work, and there is no doubt of its passage. The Election Laws committee has also reported the bill to abolish deputy election officers in cities which accept the act. This measure will save about $300 in this city alone.

The bill to place the chiefs of police under civil service has been amended so as to call for acceptance by the people, and will probably pass in that form. It will have but little force in this city as our Chief of Police holds office during good behavior and not for a limited term.

One of the features of the week has been Mr. White's votes on several matters in opposition to his colleagues. He is recorded in favor of a second assistant district attorney for the Middle district, which Mr. Ellis opposed, and Mr. Bothfield is not placed. He is also opposed to the amendment to the constitution to permit the use of voting machines. Mr. Ellis voting in favor and Mr. Bothfield not placed. Mr. White was also one of the 10 members who voted against the amendment to the constitution to give the legislature more power in the matter of taking land for highway purposes. Mr. Ellis and Mr. Bothfield both voting in favor. All of our representatives voted against the public opinion bill, so called, against the bill to require prison made goods to be so marked, against the eight hour bill, against the 54 hour bill for employment of women and children, all of which were passed by the House by substantial majorities.

The direct nomination bill will be considered by the House next Monday.

The amendment to the constitution to provide for biennial elections which was passed by the House last week has been reconsidered and with a pending amendment offered by Mr. Bothfield to provide for biennial sessions of the Legislature, has been recommitted. Governor Foss has sent in a message on this measure urging that the recall be incorporated in the bill and as that feature is already there, the Governor gives evidence that he is not familiar with the bills he criticizes. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Governor's experts have found but little to really criticize in their examination of the state departments. Lieutenant Governor Frothingham in a recent speech puts the matter most concisely in the following words:

"When we find the Governor's experts making reports that show ignorance and lack of appreciation of what the state departments are doing, as in the state treasurer's department, and reports that criticize other departments for not handling in proper vouchers: when these experts themselves have been so negligent in the same line that we have had to return their reports for lack of proper vouchers, we realize what these experts' reports are worth. "When no greater criticism can be made of the treasurer's office than that it has too much money in the sinking fund, I think we need not worry about conditions in that office."

The Legislature has received the report of the joint commission asked to investigate the Riverbank and the Boylston street subway plans, and it is almost unanimous in favor of the latter. The commission finds that the Boylston street plan will cost from $4,300,000 to $4,700,000 as against $3,700,000 for the Riverbank, and thinks the increased convenience of the Boylston street plan, together with the fact that it forms a part of a comprehensive plan of future development, makes it more desirable than as rapid transit to Boston will require this subway.

Mr. Harvey S. Chase of West Newton, the Governor's principal expert, was a witness before the Ways and Means Committee this week and was given a severe cross examination by its members.

The Senate by a close vote has asked the opinion of the Supreme court as to the constitutionality of the eight hour law, which it has passed to a third reading by a large majority. The fact that 18 senators are not willing to listen to the opinion of the Supreme court as to the constitutionality of the bill, shows pretty clearly that the measure is pure politics.

The Senate has refused to ratify the amendment to the United States constitution to provide for a federal income tax. This measure passed the House by a large majority and the vote in the Senate was very close, being virtually 20 to 19.

One of the interesting features of the political situation is the announcement of the candidacy of Alexander McGregor of Malden for the Governor's council. Mr. McGregor is treasurer of the Houghton & Dutton Co. of Boston and is one of the best known business men of the metropolitan district. Mr. McGregor will be a great improvement over the present councillor from that district.

MOTHER'S REST.

The Finance Committee of the Mothers Rest Association announces that a garden fete for the benefit of the Association will be held at 65 Gray Cliff road, Newton Centre on Thursday June the first from two until six in the afternoon.

There will be special features of entertainment besides the usual attractions of a lawn party.

The fete will be continued in the evening from seven until ten o'clock with a musical program of great interest.

THEATRES

Boston Theatre—Montgomery and Stone back in Boston in "The Old Town" opened their return engagement at the Boston Theatre this time in an atmosphere of enthusiasm and to a chorus of welcoming plaudits. Since the opening night the popular big theatre has been crowded at every performance and the cordiality of the first night's audience has been re-expressed repeatedly. "The Old Town" by George Ade and Gustav Luders is a clean, bright, snappy, musical comedy, the action of which leaves no time for introspection so closely do song, dance, and incident follow in each other's train. The entire entertainment of course is dominated by Montgomery and Stone. Stone particularly, acrobat, clown, comedian and dancer, introduces bewildering and amusing "stunts" in which novelty and dexterity join in the appeal to one's admiration. Montgomery has an admirable song number with a Japanese chorus and ballet in support and a humorous character bit in the guise of an old Swedish woman. "The Old Town" enters upon the second and last week of its engagement at the Boston Theatre on Monday May 8th. Matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday.

B. F. Ketih's Theatre—Andrew Mack, the Irish singer who has won wide popularity as a dramatic star comes to Boston next week. Mack is not only a splendid singer with a wonderful voice, but he is a remarkably good story teller. He will head an exceptionally strong bill, another feature of which is Jack Wilson, and his company in a new version of "An Upheaval in Darktown." Claude & Fanny Usher will be seen in their comedy sketch "Fagin's Decision," introducing the famous "Spareribs." A novelty that is bound to attract a great deal of attention will be Rivoli, an Italian character change artist who enacts an entire play by himself. Newcomers will be Lee White & George Perry, in singing and dancing specialties that are far and away from anything that has hitherto been seen in vaudeville. Bertisch, the strong man, will also appear, and other features will be the Vissocchi Brothers, wonderful accordion players, and Rawson & June, the boomerang throwers.

GREAT INTEREST SHOWN NEWTON IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY POPULAR

The attendance and interest manifested at the first public meeting of the newly organized Newton Improvement Society, held Wednesday night at the Hunnewell clubhouse, clearly showed the need for such a movement. About 125 ladies and gentlemen were present when President O. M. Fisher called the meeting to order. Mr. Fisher stated that since the preliminary meeting in the winter, the organization had been completed by the choice of Alderman Grosvenor Calkins as secretary and Mr. Fred W. Stone as treasurer and the adoption of articles of organization. A report was received that there were 179 members of the Society, and that steps had already been taken by the Executive committee to improve the condition of the toilet rooms at the Newton railroad station and to have suitable care taken of the Eliot Memorial.

Mayor Hatfield was then introduced and gave a short talk on the city of Newton, showing stereoscopic pictures of many points of interest and public buildings. His remarks on the possible use of a portion of Farlow park for playground purposes for the smaller children was greeted with hearty applause and his comments on the condition of the Underwood school were received with great interest.

Mr. Frank A. Day followed with a brief statement as to the need of an Improvement Society in this part of the city and strongly urged a membership of 1000.

A discussion then followed in which matters as the cares of trees the care of streets, the need of playgrounds, the necessity of street lighting, the danger of the billboards of Nonantum Square and the billboards of Nonantum Square and the condition of the Underwood School.

Forest Commissioner Bucknam said that the matter of burning the trees by wires of the Electric company had been taken up and would soon be settled on a satisfactory basis. He called attention to the need of playgrounds in this part of the city, saying that it was the only ward in the city without one.

The city has over $162,000 of assessed valuation in its playgrounds and over $297,000 in its playgrounds and parks.

In answer to questions about street watering, Street Commissioner Ross said that the city had 72 horses and that for the past two weeks they had been busy in either watering or oiling certain streets. He said that on windy days, the dust would blow 15 minutes after the watering cart had passed, and it was impossible to keep down the dust with water. It was the policy of the city to put on oil as fast as possible and he had 5 cars of oil ready to use as soon as the weather became warmer enough. Nonantum Square, in his opinion required the most careful study as it was necessary to have a pavement suitable for automobiles, horses and pedestrians. He suggested a trial of a pavement used in Chicago with excellent results called Sarco.

Mr. F. L. Richardson, treasurer of the Newton Trust Co. then urged the need of a better pavement on Nonantum square. He said that a count showed 595 cars entering and leaving the square every 24 hours, besides automobiles and the constant change of passengers from one car to another. This causes an excessive dust. He called attention to the fact that a large number of fruit stores here needed protection as a matter of health. He presented a petition for a Sarco pavement in Nonantum square which was passed around for signatures.

Mr. A. F. Fessenden called attention to the dust on Cabot street and said the high school pupils who used this street, actually had to chew dust.

Mr. O. W. Holmes said that the streets on Hunnewell hill were in excellent shape in regard to dust.

Mr. F. H. Tucker urged the need of a playground and asked that the meeting vote to have a playground on Farlow park for children under 14 years of age. He thought a part of the park near the clubhouse could be easily made into a playground.

Mr. F. A. Day said he was in sympathy with the idea but wanted it considered further by a committee. Dr. Gleason said that a playground without supervision was worse than nothing as there would be objectionable language and bullying on the part of the larger boys. Mr. Holmes suggested a playground at the corner of Tremont street and Waverley avenue and said the boys in his neighborhood needed a place to play ball without breaking windows. Mr. F. L. Trowbridge favored Farlow park. The matter was referred to a committee composed of V. B. Swett, F. W. Stone and E. B. Church.

Mr. C. V. Moore suggested some relief for Nonantum square by creating an island in the centre, and said the movement of cars, of automobiles and the fire apparatus made it dangerous for pedestrians. A letter was read from J. C. Brimblecom calling attention to the dangerous condition of the square thru congestion of cars at Jefferson street, the nuisance caused from lack of public convenience and the unsightliness of the huge billboards. The matter of electric car congestion and service, was referred to F. A. Day, H. E. Bothfield and W. H. Emerson and the other matters relating to Nonantum Square to A. R. Weed, J. W. French and D. F. Barber.

The Underwood school was next considered, a letter being read from Mr. C. H. Barney in which he said that this school was considered a fester spot and a fertile source of infection for the diseases of childhood. Many parents refuse to send their children to this school. Mr. Barney said that the board of health was inconsistent in saying that the interchange of books had no bearing on the spread of scarlet fever and yet burned the books last used by every child contracting the disease. Mr. Barney claimed that the building was out of date, subject to contamination which cannot be removed and a fire trap as there were no fire escapes from the second floor. He thought that the policy of the city providing up to date buildings for the grammar grades and neglecting the primary should be reversed. He urged that the city government be asked to close the Underwood school until it had been thoroughly washed with antiseptic solution, fumigated, painted, white washed and all books destroyed. That a new modern primary building be erected on the same site, and that a rigid investigation be made of the methods of the board of health in matters of school inspection.

A letter was also read from Mr. Bothfield, chairman of the school committee, stating that the Underwood school had been painted inside and out last summer, and all woodwork varnished. The plumbing had been inspected and found adequate and tight. With the exception of the present outbreak of scarlet fever and one of measles a few years ago, there had been no considerable number of cases of contagious disease in the school for 26 years. The school committee has 13 wooden buildings in the city and some are more open to criticism as to conditions than the Underwood. In the opinion of the school committee the city has no unsanitary or unfit school buildings.

Dr. F. R. Stubbs gave a history of the case of death from scarlet fever which recently occurred, and after stating that the school had the finest medical inspection possible, and that the board of health had done everything possible to stop the epidemic, declared that it had been proven that the school building itself was responsible for the disease. He did not believe the community should longer harbor anything of the sort. He wanted a new building, which could be antiseptically cleaned, where walls could be flushed and absolutely sanitary in every particular. He also said that the school should first teach cleanliness, and not books. That the children should be taught to stop picking noses, putting fingers in the mouth and similar habits. That teaching should be done by leaflets and not from bound books and that the children's hands should be washed three times each session Supt. of Schools Spaulding in answer to a question said that the floors of kindergarten rooms were washed each week, some rooms were washed each month and some had never been washed. Dr. Spaulding did not believe the school building had anything to do with the scarlet fever outbreak and cited the Lincoln school, as the oldest in the city with but one case of scarlet fever in 1910, while the new Stearns school had had five cases. He said he would rather send his child to the Underwood school than to the Bigelow as its ventilation was much better than the more modern building.

Mayor Hatfield was called upon and said that he did not believe the aldermen on the facts in the case would favorably consider tearing down the Underwood school and building a modern school. If it was done he believed other sections of the city would demand the same, and 13 new buildings would be necessary.

Mr. V. B. Swett thought the matter serious enough to call for the appointment of the strongest possible committee, which would have no affiliation with the school board or board of health and would be composed of men from "Missouri" and such a committee was authorized.

It is a poor rule that won't work always.

A careful perusal of the facts stated at the meeting of the Newton Improvement Society this week with reference to the Underwood school, will convince any reasonable person that the recent agitation over an outbreak of scarlet fever in that school, was not due to the condition of the building. Certainly its age cannot have anything to do with the matter, or the Lincoln school and other buildings which have been in use longer than the Underwood would show the same conditions. Careful investigation shows also that the sanitary condition of the building is first class. Indeed, I can well remember that when I attended this school myself, its sanitary condition was far, far worse than what would be tolerated nowadays. The most reasonable explanation of the outbreak is, that an undiscovered case of the disease, which the parents were either ignorant, careless or superior to their public obligations, to treat thru a physician, was allowed to attend the school, scattering the germs of the disease among the children. The child first affected was probably one of the first to be kept from school when the other cases were discovered, and consequently was not found out when the careful medical inspection of the school was made. I have had four years of service as agent of the board of health, and had something to do with several similar outbreaks of scarlet fever. As a result of that experience, the board of health established a system of medical inspection of schools, which really inspected the children. The present method of school inspection, in my opinion, is not a preventative of these outbreaks, as the medical inspector is only called upon to see such children, as the school teacher sends out to him. It should be called a teacher's inspection of schools and not a medical inspection. Effort along the lines to improve the medical inspection of schools should be encouraged by every parent and would yield far better results than an unreasonable clamor regarding fairly decent school buildings.

The action of the aldermen in authorizing the appointment of a liquor officer, so called, is a step in the right direction. There is considerable unfavorable public comment thruout the city on the sale of liquor by druggists and its delivery by the expressmen. It is time that the real facts are found in order that if there is an evasion of the law, it can be corrected and if the licensed druggists and expressmen are well within their rights, public opinion will come to their side. One of the best features of the proposed method, however, is the certainty that the law will have an equal enforcement thruout the city, something which has been sorely needed for many years. With one man in charge of this work equal attention can be given all the licenses, whereas the present plan leaves this duty to the varying ideas of a dozen police officers. The plan will be given a trial for the remainder of the year with the prospect of continuance if it works as well as its friends prophecy. Highlands.

Attention is invited to the report of the good accomplished by the Newton Vacation Week, which is printed in another column. It is a story which ought to interest every one.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Newton Y. M. C. A. was held Monday evening. At the head table were seated the following gentlemen, President, Allan C. Emery, Rev. Geo. S. Butters, Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, Wm. C. Bray, J. W. Blaisdell and Clarence V. Moore.

The report of the nominating committee was given by Mr. Blaisdell and the following were elected directors for the term of three years: Messrs. Carlton L. Ellison, W. A. Sonnerby, Frederick D. Fuller, E. O. Childs, Jr., W. C. Wrye and P. E. Rutan. General Secretary Harry W. Bacon gave a report on the work of the past eight years and showed clearly just what the association has been doing for Newton's young men.

The Immanuel Quartet, consisting of Theodore H. Morton, Beverly Seard, Harold Moore and Samuel Gardner, sang several selections. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding of the Methodist church, Auburn. After the meeting had adjourned the board of directors held a meeting and the following are the officers for the ensuing year: President, Allan C. Emery; Vice-President, Carlton L. Ellison; Clerk, Clarence V. Moore; Treasurer, J. W. Blaisdell.

WOMEN'S CLUBS NEWS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

The gradual evolution of the different women's clubs is an interesting feature to study. Beginning as so many, if not nearly all of them did, simply as study clubs, there are now very few who do not do something outside of the literary work. This is a natural growth. The spirit of social service is in the air and the clubs cannot withstand the current any more than the trees can help away in the breeze. It seems to the Club Editor that the club which persists in remaining a study club, pure and simple, is missing a part of the club work, which is perhaps the most worthwhile. It is true that the small club with a small fee can not do a great deal, yet there are many things that need to be done which would take very little time and very little money. It may not be more than looking around to see what needs to be done, but even that will help to arouse public sentiment and an intelligent public opinion is something that is greatly needed at the present time. And so to all the clubs the Club Editor would urge, be openminded, study the present and its needs, as well as the past, and its deeds.

Mrs. E. C. Cooper entertained the Pierian club on Wednesday afternoon. After the business session, Mrs. Dreser rendered several piano selections and Mrs. Cooper sang. Mrs. Ryder read a paper on "The Life of Liszt, the Composer." This meeting marked the completion of fifteen years of work and there were present four of the charter members. An outing was planned for June 21st.

ANNUAL MEETING OF NEWTON FEDERATION.

On Tuesday morning members of the various clubs forming the Newton Federation met at the Central Congregational church, Newtonville, for the annual meeting of the federation. The reports of the officers showed the organization to be in good condition. Following these came the reports from the clubs, which were, as usual, of great interest. The Auburndale Review club's report was given by the president, Mrs. Edward F. Miller. Mrs. Hadlock presented the work of the Ladies' Home Circle, Mrs. J. J. Mitchell, president of the Mothers' club, spoke for her club; Mrs. James L. Wingate for the Parliament Law and Debating club; Mrs. L. S. Drake for the Social Science club; Mrs. H. H. Kendall, the retiring president, for the Newton Centre Woman's club; Mrs. C. T. Bartlett for the Monday club; Mrs. S. L. Eaton for the Shakespeare club. The Pierian club was reported, also the Newtonville Woman's Guild, given by Mrs. E. C. Adams. Mrs. C. A. Andrews spoke for the Waban Woman's club, Mrs. T. M. Elwell, for the West Newton Woman's Educational and Mrs. W. A. Corson for the Polymnia.

For the standing committees Mrs. Luther Woodward took what had been done by the social committee. Mrs. B. E. Taylor, chairman of the Social Service committee, told of the work under her care. The committee has continued its care and financial assistance of tuberculosis patients. Owing to the opening of several new state sanatoriums the expense this year has been materially decreased, the largest amount having been paid for any one patient, having been about $46 and the total expense have been but a little over $100. Of the patients which the federation has under its care from the beginning, two have passed beyond the need of care, one has been able to go on to a farm in Vermont to work, entirely cured and several others have so far recovered as to be considered arrested cases. Mrs. Taylor corrected the impression that the camp at the hospital is closed. It is not now in use as it has been found unwise to keep it open for only two or three patients when they can be better cared for in other institutions, but it is there ready for use whenever an emergency arises. The work of the federation has opened the eyes to the possibility for caring for patients and it has opened the eyes of the city fathers, so that at present they are ready at any time to co-operate. The Massachusetts General hospital reports a very much smaller number of patients coming to them from Newton and feels that conditions here are very satisfactory.

Of the dental work under consideration by the committee. The use of a room in one of the school buildings has been promised for holding a clinic, but it has been decided to postpone opening it until the schools open in the fall. Some money has been given for specially urgent cases.

The committee has raised money for its use through the sale of stamps and the method of collecting known as the "cycle of time," so that it has at its disposal $747.72 at the present time.

The new work now being planned is some method of combining the philanthropic and charitable organizations of Newton in order that work may not be duplicated.

Mrs. W. E. Shield, chairman of the education committee, stated that little educational work had been necessary this year. A set of biographical dictionaries has been presented to the Technical High school and sanitary drinking fountains to the classical building.

In the absence of the chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. H. H. Carter presented the list of officers nominated for the coming year and the following were unanimously elected:

President, Mrs. John H. Pillsbury; Waban Woman's club; Vice-President, Mrs. Geo. H. Wilkins, Newtonville Woman's Guild; Mrs. Frank E. Anderson, Newton Centre Woman's club; Mrs. William M. Mick, Shakespeare club; Recording Secretary, Mrs. J. W. McIntyre, Social Science club; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Bernard Early, West Newton Educational club; Treasurer, Miss Lilla A. Rider, Auburndale Review club; Auditor, Mrs. E. C. Cooper, Pierian club; Mrs. F. B. Hornbrooke spoke for a few moments upon the bird situation, distributing various leaflets which she has prepared and sent out as bird member of the conservation department of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

After the roll call matters relating to the proposed pageant were discussed at length and after careful consideration it was decided to postpone it for the present.

Luncheon was served in the hall below under the direction of the Social committee. The tables were attractive with their decorations of tulips and the luncheon itself most satisfactory.

The afternoon session was opened with the singing of a group of songs by the Polymnia club, after which Mrs. Taylor as chairman of the committee of arrangements introduced the first speaker, Mr. C. C. Carstens, secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Mr. Carstens spoke of the necessity of uniting the work of different charitable organizations within one section. There should be, he said, a dovetailing of the different agencies in a community, but this is one of the hardest things to bring about. We are businesslike in other matters but when we enter the charitable field we find that our charities are managed in a loose, unco-operative, unbusinesslike way. By specific examples he showed how prevention of duplication of work is managed in Boston and advised the starting of a bureau of confidential exchange of information in Newton.

Judge J. C. Kennedy followed Mr. Carstens, speaking on the need of a detention home in Newton. He said that the police work of the country lines of progress. They are trying to avoid punishing the wrong person and trying to avoid giving a boy a court record for minor offenses. The court is a sort of clearing house for unfortunate people. A place is needed where boys and girls who come before the court can be sent to, especially children that have been taken away from their homes. At present they are put into the hands of Boston societies and are out of Newton's jurisdiction. The police matron's rooms is not a suitable place to put children. The percentage of crime in Newton is very low. But with a drunken father and a drunken mother it is not hard for the children to go wrong.

Judge Kennedy urged more interest in the unfortunate. Kindness, he said, does more for them than locking them up in prison. He asked the co-operation of the women of Newton in securing such a home. He thought that at Chestnut Hill or at Oak Hill would be the best place to put such a home and that one good old farm house would answer the purpose very well. In response to questions he said that about thirty children a year come before him for one cause or another. At present we have to get somebody to come out from Boston to do what we ought to do for our selves.

The annual meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club was held on Friday, April 28th in Players' Hall.

A luncheon was served at one o'clock. The tables were daintily decorated with huge bunches of pink sweet peas. During the luncheon music was furnished by Miss Gertrude Brett, violinist, and Miss Charlotte Whinery, pianist. Between the courses of the luncheon the story of Louisa M. Alcott's life was told also quotations from her works. Mrs. Mary Martin, an honorary member, told of seeing Miss Alcott in some plays in Concord and described her and the Alcott family as she remembered them. Contributions were received to help swell the fund for the purchase of the Alcott home.

After the luncheon the business meeting was held. Mrs. Elwell the president presiding. The reports for the year were read by the chairmen of the various committees, and then came the election of officers for the coming year, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Thomas M. Elwell; Vice-presidents, Mrs. Fred B. Young, Mrs. Clara E. Ross, Mrs. Arthur C. Hill, Mrs. Henry Young; recording secretary, Mrs. Walter A. Beedle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harry S. Wells; treasurer, Mrs. Maurice Beardsley; auditor, Mrs. Ernest Fogg; directors for three years, Mrs. Samuel Darling, Mrs. Wilfred A. Clark, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. Frederick C. Graves.

The retiring secretaries, Mrs. Bernard Early and Miss Lillian Rudick, were each presented with a beautiful basket of pink roses, Mrs. Alvin H. Clifford making the presentation speeches.

On Monday afternoon, May 8, the Waban Woman's Club will hold its annual meeting.

The Children's Party given by the Newtonville Woman's Guild at the Newton Club last Saturday was a delightful affair and the industrial committee, who had the party in charge, great credit is due for its success both socially and financially.

The dancing was under the direction of Miss Diaz of Belmont. During an intermission Miss Mildred Macomber in costume danced a Spanish dance and an Italian tarantella. Her dancing was most artistic and pleasing and merited the encore which she received. Miss Frances Payne presided at the piano.

After the refreshments were served dancing continued until five o'clock. Mrs. Enoch C. Adams, president of the Guild and Mrs. A. D. Salinger, chairman of the industrial committee acted as hostesses for the afternoon.

At the meeting of the Newton Mothers' Club held on Monday afternoon, May first, the reports for the year were read and the work for the year considered. Among the things which this club has done has been to pay for a playground director for Nonantum last summer. It has also assisted at Stearns Neighborhood House and contributed to the fund for purchasing tooth brushes for the school children. Its work this season has been along social service lines and it is promised to continue it another year. The following were elected as officers for 1911-1912: President, Mrs. J. J. Mitchell; vice-president, Mrs. F. T. Walsh; secretary, Mrs. L. E. Kent; treasurer, Mrs. C. S. Cook, Jr. Tea was served at the close of the meeting and a social hour enjoyed.

The Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. closed its season with the annual meeting on Monday, May first, at the home of Miss Ella M. Bacall. The year just past has been full of interest and most successful. The club proposed to study Holland, Shakespeare and Browning during the coming year. These officers were elected: President, Miss Ruth Abbott; vice-president, Mrs. Sanford Thompson; secretary, Mrs. Arthur W. Burnham; assistant secretary, Mrs. Fred Hayward, treasurer, Miss Mary E. Hyde.

Mrs. W. R. Dewey opened her hospitable home for a reception for the Social Science Club on Wednesday afternoon, May third. In the receiving line were Miss Grace Weston, the newly elected president, and Mrs. Wolcott Calkins and Mrs. F. B. Hornbrooke, both charter members of the club. The house lends itself charmingly for such an occasion and the profusion of flowers added much to its attractiveness. The dining table was artistically adorned with flowers and green and candelabra with green candles all carrying out the club colors. An orchestra in the hall above furnished music during the afternoon. The members were out in full force and there were guests from the other clubs belonging to the Newton Federation as well as presidents from some of the neighboring clubs outside of the city.

Those who acted as ushers were: Mrs. J. H. Chase, Mrs. E. E. Kent, Mrs. C. B. Gleason, Miss Rose Loring, Mrs. Percy Kenway and Miss Ethel Gilman. In the course of the afternoon these ladies poured: Mrs. A. S. Twombly, Mrs. Thomas Weston, Mrs. J. W. Barber, Mrs. C. H. Breck, Mrs. F. A. Pickernell, Mrs. H. P. Kenway, and Mrs. F. H. Howes. Other assistants were: Mrs. George Angier, Mrs. H. G. Person, Mrs. V. B. Swift, Mrs. W. G. Brackett, Miss Georgia H. Emery, Mrs. H. G. Pratt, Mrs. W. H. Holbrook, Mrs. Curtis Nye Smith, Mrs. F. W. Dana and Mrs. A. R. Weed.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION RECEPTION.

The annual reception and donation party of the Hospital Aid Association was held at the Hospital on Monday, May first. The officers of the Association received in the small reception room of the administration building. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. John S. Alley and Mrs. Lewis R. Snear who were assisted by some of the daughters of members. The table was particularly attractive in its decorations. The gifts were more than usually generous and of much the same order as on former donation days. Something over $160 in money was contributed in addition to some special cash donations. Those in charge feel well satisfied with the results. The annual meeting of the Association will be held on Tuesday of next week.

An Added Profit

At this bank interest is paid on average daily balances of checking accounts.

This makes an added profit for depositors amounting to quite a little in the course of a year—an extra income which will take care of many an item of expense in your business.

But the interest paid on deposits is by no means the greatest advantage to be secured from a bank account in a strong and progressive institution like this.

Combination Coal and GasCrawford Ranges

The Crawford Gas Ovens are safe. They are lighted in a new way; there is no dangerous pilot light and explosions are impossible. This improvement is patented and very important.

The Damper is automatically opened by opening oven door to light the burners, which cannot be lighted until the door is opened.

In these Gas Ovens there is an extra set of burners at the top for broiling; a great advantage over the ordinary gas oven, insuring better broiling and great convenience.

The Oven Bottoms and Racks are cast iron, and the outer walls are triple—an interlining of asbestos between two sheets of iron, which assists to retain the heat.

The use of these Gas Ovens does not interfere in any way with the operation of the coal range—both can be used at the same time.

LETTER FROM MESSINA NEWTON MAN HAS INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Messina, April 4, 1911.

Editor Graphic: I stayed last night in this vast charnel house; notice that I do not say slept!

Most visitors approach Messina from the sea, and the busy harbor fairly filled with shipping; the massive fronts of buildings on the quay which are still standing, tend to give a first impression—especially from a little distance—that one finds later on was not warranted.

I approached Messina by the back door—so to speak—coming from Palermo by rail. It is a very interesting journey of five or six hours, all the way along the North coast of Sicily, skirting the blue Mediterranean all the way, while landward the country is rough and wild, the road crossing innumerable river beds—now almost entirely dry, but protected by heavy masonry walls several feet high, which indicates that at some time in the year these rivers become rushing torrents: the whole way is mountainous with snowy peaks visible at some points and between the mountains and the sea and along the river courses, is one vast succession of lemon groves and highly cultivated fields.

An one point—the Lipari islands twenty miles out in the Mediterranean can be seen and the island of Vulcano with its ever smoking crater seems very near; and it is said that on a very clear day one can even see Stromboli, which must be forty or fifty miles away. You first note evidences of the earthquake when about thirty miles from Messina but most of the damage seems to have been repaired, and it is by the new tilting on the roofs and the general look of improvement that your attention is called to it at all but this is in what seems a very rich and prosperous country; ten or fifteen miles before Messina you notice that while there are not so very many ruins still remaining, there has sprung up a crop of low small wooden buildings with galvanized iron or painted tin roofs. You come to Messina through a tunnel under the mountains, three miles in length and this tunnel seems to have suffered no damage. As you emerge from this tunnel and look down upon poor Messina that was, and winding down to the level of the plain skirt for a mile or two the little wooden houses of the new city, you begin to have some conception of what has happened. You draw into the old station which has been partially repaired, but as you follow the porter to your carriage the wavy and uneven condition of the pavement convinces your unaccustomed feet that you are where an earthquake has been.

I hastened to the so called "Grand Hotel"—a one story wooden building containing about seventy sleeping rooms—hastily built on the outskirts of the ruined city after the earthquake, and which is still the only hotel of any consequence. As soon as I had made certain of a room for the night, I selected an intelligent looking driver and started on a pilgrimage over the ruined city. You all remember the description of the ruins, written immediately after the disaster. All I can say it hat now—more than two years after—the ruin is more vast, more ghastly, more terrible than any description you have ever read. Of course much has been done; the streets have pretty generally been cleaned; that is to say, a channel dug down to the pavement so that it is possible for traffic to pass; but you know that after a big snow storm, the breaking out of the roads only seems to emphasize the bigness of the storm, so it seems to me that this channelling of this awful mass only makes the ruin more stupendous.

This was, as you know, the most important city in Sicily excepting Palermo; at the time of the disaster they claimed a population of one hundred and eighty thousand for Messina and environs. I was fortunate enough to meet on the train a man very prominent here, in fact the owner of the beautiful Villa Guelfonia which Baedeker says was the best point from which to view Messina. He is a prominent lawyer and careful and judicious in his statements. He places the loss of life at eighty thousand; of these not more than thirty thousand have been taken from the ruins and buried.

The area of the ruined city surprised me, and yet I do not know that it should have. If you were to level the city of Providence you would have a good many square miles of ruins, and the two cities were about the same in size. But you must remember that Providence is built of brick and steel and wood—while Messina was built of tufa stone and plaster, the walls of every building immensely thick, so that when destroyed the pile of material is at least twice greater than an American city like Providence.

Thousands of men have been employed and still are busy in carting away debris—and the work of men was supplemented you will remember by the steady shaking that the city got for weeks after the main quake, so that most of the danger from falling walls has been removed, although I noticed that the morning paper records that yesterday a man was killed by a falling fragment of the big Chamber of Commerce building.

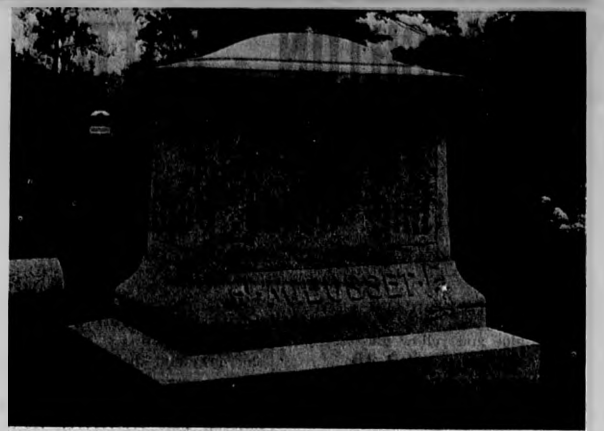

But in all this big city of ruins I saw hardly one building that had been rebuilt on its own site; that is the most surprising and significant thing to me: more than two years has elapsed and all of Messina is practically as it fell. You will find that in some cases, not many, some attempt has been made, where a building was not utterly destroyed, to patch it up so that it could be used; but substantially all of the business of Messina today is being done in buildings of wood, either huddled on the sites of buildings completely destroyed, or small structures on the squares or parks, or in the big new wooden city that has been built to the southward of old Messina.

I drove for miles through the destroyed city: the ruin is utter and complete; an "abomination of desolation." The day had been very warm but as evening drew on there were great masses of black cloud piling up in the western sky. It was quite a long way from the hotel when I noticed the storm coming, and gave orders to return. We had to drive slowly through those awful streets and meantime the storm gained on us. Perhaps the dreadful surroundings had something to do with it but it seemed to me I never saw a more terrific storm cloud than that which now filled the whole western sky; daylight was rapidly waning and the ruins took on a ghastly and sinister aspect. I reached the hotel just as the storm broke.

This hotel, wooden, bare and cheerless, was not sufficiently attractive to keep me up, so I went early to bed and to sleep; but shortly after midnight I was awakened by the crash of something falling. The rain which since night fall had been coming down in torrents had mostly ceased, but the wind was blowing more fiercely than ever; and such a wind! It would die away almost to stillness and then you could hear it coming again growing in strength and wildness until it seemed as if a thousand and furies were in the air fighting for the rags and bones of poor Messina; the wooden building trembled and shook like a rat in the jaws of a terrier; and in some of the wildest blasts it did really seem as if it must be torn in pieces. I think I have tolerably good nerves, but I'll own up to something that killed forty thousand and the quake of 1783 that swallowed up untold thousands—and the cholera that in 1854 carried off fifteen or twenty thousand—and of this horrible ruin thick with unburied dead, until it seemed to me I was in a place accursed of God. I didn't close my eyes until daylight and I wouldn't pass another such a night if in the morning all that was left of the city might be heeded to me free!

This morning I drove to the Campo Santo. This was one of the attractions of Messina; the terraces of beautiful tombs reach up to the top of the hill which was crowned with a beautiful and impressive Ionic Colonnade. The tombs either were not much injured or else have been carefully restored, but the colonnade is a complete and ghastly ruin.

Then I drove through what is called the American city, because, I suppose, it was here that America's generous gift of money was spent in rebuilding for the peoples homes. I should think this district was something more than a mile square—the houses all one story with tin roofs and all of the same design—making a city that is not a thing of beauty but it serves its purpose of housing the homeless people; this new city is regularly laid out and most of the streets were named after Americans that had to do with the distribution of the succor or the building of the city. The principal avenue is named after our strenuous ex-president although I noticed that signs read "via Roosevelt"; and there was via Belknap—via Hooper—via Elliott—and via everything American down to the boss carpenter. The most imposing building in the new city is the Hotel Regina Elena named for the queen. It is now nearly ready to open and looks quite attractive.

Will Messina be rebuilt and become again the important city of old? The hopeful ones say yes. My lawyer friend says "Yes, but not by the men of my generation; we have lost heart, courage and fortune."

It doesn't seem to me that Messina will ever be rebuilt: It is too vast an undertaking to clear away this tremendous mass of ruins and build again on its old foundations. Such city as here is today is a thing of shreds and patches; the wooden city is only a temporary makeshift. Where are the fifty or a hundred millions of dollars coming from with which to rebuild permanent-

Shoe Aristocracy Banished

The "Goodyear Welt" System of shoemaking machines—sixty of them—which reproduce the handicraft of the old-time shoemaker—has banished shoe aristocracy from the land—driven it out forever.

They have leveled to a common plane the footwear of an entire nation. These marvelous machines—intricate and sensitive—utilize the intelligence of skilled operators in the production of shoes that are durable and comfortable as if hand-sewed, but at only one-third the cost.

GOODYEAR WELT

Shoes for men, women, boys, girls and children are made of solid leather—they must be—and only substantial leather can be worked on these fast operating machines. Five hundred lock-stitches a minute are inserted, close, rapid and strong. Obviously cheap leather or inferior leather cannot withstand the speed of such swift flying needles. Thus "Goodyear Welt" is always a guarantee of solid, real leather. It is your insurance of wearing quality. Even the War Department recognizes this feature when it specifies the rapid Goodyear stitching as its standard in shoe contracts for the soldiers.

The feet of the Army are clad in Goodyear Welts. Shoes made by this method can withstand the severest marches. And they afford the greatest comfort. For these wonderful machines stitch the welt inner-sole and upper together in a seam that doesn't penetrate the inside of the shoe. Even the heavy outsole is lock-stitched to this welt with the seam entirely around the outer edge. The shoe is left smooth inside. Comfort is assured the soldier on his longest march.

Get this comfort for yourself. Just send us your name and address. Do it today. It brings you a list of five hundred different names of Goodyear Welt shoes that are real leather and smooth inside. Some are sure to be sold right in your town. Get this list before you buy another pair of shoes. Two booklets will also be sent you free, one graphically describing the sixty machines, the other—"The Secret of The Shoe."

STORIES OF THE WAR AS TOLD BY MEMBERS OF CHAS. WARD POST

(As was stated last week, the members of Charles Ward Post G. A. R., are giving a series of war talks in which their own personal experiences are related, and that most graphically. We give to-day the second article in this series.)

The subject of our next Post talk, "Virginia's Battlefields," was an enormous one which might be epitomized into half a dozen lines. The 17th of April 1861, Virginia seceded from the Union, and soon her territory was the scene of almost constant battles. In four years no fewer than 1260 engagements and skirmishes, big and little, were fought on the soil of the old Dominion, and these figures do not include expeditions or naval affairs. More battles were fought in one small Virginia county alone than in all of England's many wars during a century of time.

One of the first great battles in this long list was that of Fair Oaks, on the Richmond side of the Chickahominy river, a stream that was to become as formidable to the Army of the Potomac as the Confederates themselves. Here, on the 31st of May and 1st of June, 1862, three-fifths of McClellan's army and Joseph E. Johnston's entire force fought desperately for two days, the result being a victory for the North, but it was dearly bought. The losses in killed and wounded, a total of over 11,000, were about equal on both sides. Just at sunset on the first day the enemy sustained a heavy loss in the wounding of their commanding general and though Johnston was not mortally hurt, it resulted in his being succeeded by Robert E. Lee in command of the Confederate army.

August 9th, 1862, Stonewall Jackson, sent by Lee to deal with Pope, encountered the boys in blue under Gen. Banks, and then came the battle of Cedar Mountain. That gallant soldier from Massachusetts had only 8000 men, while Jackson commanded more than twice as many; yet Banks hurled himself upon his dangerous foe with great vehemence. If Sigel had obeyed Pope's order the result would have been different, for the small Union force, badly decimated, was compelled to retire from the field. This was about the time when the volunteers began to lose their hands, discharged by orders from the war department, and that was one of the most serious mistakes of the war. The boys at the front were getting a great deal of enjoyment and encouragement out of the music of their regimental bands.

A few weeks later came the turn of Comrade Samuel P. Putnam, now of Newtonville, whose regiment was the 1st Massachusetts heavy artillery. When Pope's fault that he was badly whipped in the second Bull Run battle, disobedient to Gen. Halleck's positive orders, McClellan did not send reinforcements to Pope until the campaign was practically lost. With those gallant 20,500 men of Heintzelman's and Porter's corps was the comrade-chaplain of Post 62, and he said:

"My regiment was stationed in the fortifications before Washington, south of the Potomac, guarding the capital against just such an attack as Lee planned in the movement which led to the second battle of Bull Run. Suddenly we were ordered to the front to reinforce Gen. Pope. Leaving our places in charge of a New York regiment, we sallied forth, 1600 strong, in glorious anticipation of doing our share in smashing Stonewall Jackson, who was on his way to capture Washington. No doubt we made an imposing appearance as we swung out on the Columbia turnpike, with our faces turned toward the south. The first night we bivouacked under the starry sky and slept soundly, with the twinkling stars keeping watch over us.

"Early next morning we prepared our 'salt horse' and coffee, then pushed forward again, and presently we heard the distant booming of cannon. This seemed to quicken our pace, and certainly it stirred our hearts to quicker beatings. We now began to meet occasional couriers galloping their horses as for dear life, with dispatches from the front. About noon time we were halted in a beautiful, fragrant pine woods, where we were ordered to unsling knapsacks and to proceed in light marching order. The knapsacks were deposited in a huge pile under the trees and left in charge of a guard composed of those who were unable to keep up with the procession, together with our hospital wagons and supplies. Realizing that it was uncertain whether we would come back the same way, if we ever came back at all, I placed the Testament my mother gave me, together with her portrait, in my haversack and then hastened on.

"The road soon became a pandemonium of panic stricken troops straining every nerve to get to the rear. Wagons, caissons, artillery, infantry, all were rushing in inextricable confusion intent only in getting away. The road soon became so crowded with fleeing soldiers that it was impossible for us to keep our formation, and we pegged along as best we could, dodging here, dodging there, taking to the fields, any old way, as long as we advanced; and I can still see myself trotting along as though I expected to catch somebody. After awhile we were enabled to restore some degree of order among the panic stricken troops, and to regain our regimental formation. Then we were drawn up in line of battle and thus managed to check the mad tumult.

"All day the battle had waged furiously; and that night we slept on our arms, expecting to gain a great victory the next day. But during the night Jackson was reinforced by Longstreet, and now our demoralization of the first day became a disastrous rout.

"My regiment was ordered to make all speed back to our guns in the fortifications, so as to cover the wild retreat of Pope's army, whose defeat had opened wide the way for Lee and his armed hosts to enter Washington. We passed through those beautiful woods where we had so tenderly deposited our knapsacks, so fondly that the 'Johnnies' had cut around on our rear and gobbled up every blessed one of them: hospital wagons, guards and all. I thought then, and I still think so, that it was exceedingly impolite for them to grab all my belongings without so much as saying, 'By your leave, my dear sir.' As a result I was minus coat, blanket, and other necessities for three weeks, when a box from home added greatly to my assets. We reached our old quarters and found that the new boys had turned things topsy-turvy. One of our guns was loaded half first! But we soon straightened things out, and, being familiar with the range, characteristics and temperament, so to speak, of each piece, we presented so formidable a defense that Lee declined to attack us and Washington was saved."

The evening's talk was continued with certain experiences at that slaughter pen known as the assault on the well-nigh impregnable stronghold called Marye's Heights, at Fredericksburg, where no fewer than six bloody but futile charges were made by the boys in blue, and which vain efforts the 28th Massachusetts—that would be Capt. John Ryan's regiment—gave grand account of itself. A short time before the 28th had been transferred from the 9th army corps to Meagher's famous Irish brigade in the 2d corps, where it was to fight with four other Irish regiments—the 63d, 69th, and 88th New York, and the 116th Pennsylvania. These regiments, after passing through the terrific engagement, and concerning which Ryan on, played their heroic parts at Marye's Heights, and here Comrade Ryan "takes the floor."

"The Army of the Potomac being all across the Rappahannock river, on the fatal 13th of December, 1862, Gen. Meagher rode along the front of our brigade on his magnificent white horse. He halted with his staff opposite the colors of each regiment, made a speech of encouragement to the men and wound up by telling us that if we gained the day we would probably be sent home, but if we failed we should have to go on fighting. The boys cheered him and swung their caps, and then each regiment in the Irish brigade was furnished with a sprig of green boxwood. After the battle it was indeed a sorry sight, the number of dead and wounded soldiers lying around on the field with boxwood in their caps. This Marye's Hill was about a hundred feet high and strongly fortified, its base covered with rifle pits, and anything more desperate than the effort to storm that stronghold it would be hard to conceive. With less than 8000 men, on and at the base of Marye's Heights, Longstreet repulsed Burnside's 30,000, with a loss to us of at least 9000, while that of the enemy was comparatively trifling. The execution by the rebel artillery and infantry was something awful; charge after charge being made, only to be driven back with terrible slaughter. Our regiment went as close to that stone wall and those rifle pits as it was possible for human beings to get; and we could tell the regiments farthest into the engagement by their dead. Our brigade lost so many men in these charges that we were permitted to recross the river that evening to the Falmouth side, where we soon had supper, with boiling coffee to strengthen us. Next day we were ordered back to Fredericksburg, and we supposed that we were going into battle again. As we marched through the town we could hear other regiments along the route saying, 'There goes the Irish brigade in another charge,' and they cheered us heartily. Instead of that, however, we marched up to the Catholic church where a green flag was presented to one of the New York regiments, and of course the rest of the brigade gave three cheers, which caused the Confederates to open on us with artillery, whereupon we moved back and resumed our position in line of battle. The evening of the 15th the Union forces recrossed the river on the pontoon bridges; and there the two armies faced each other again, with the Rappahannock between them. Nothing had been gained by this great slaughter."

"TWO-NUMBER" TOLL CALLS.

Various reductions in rates or extension of talking periods are announced by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in connection with a change in the method of handling short-haul toll calls.

After May 1 toll calls to most points within 15 miles of any exchange will be handled by what is known as the "two-number no-delay method." This obviates the necessity of referring the call to the toll operator and the somewhat cumbersome process of having her ask a lot of questions, such as "Whom do you wish to speak to?" "If Mr. So-and-so is out will you talk to any one else?" Who will speak at your telephone?" and so on.

Under the old method of operating, these questions were unavoidable because the answers were being jotted down by a recording clerk who in turn sent the slip containing these directions to the toll operator. Naturally this process consumed a good deal of valuable time, and time is a very important consideration in the transaction of business affairs in this swiftly-moving country.

After carefully observing the results throughout the territory, for slightly shorter distances the telephone people concluded they could handle calls up to, and including, 15 miles just as local calls are now handled, that is, by number. Instead of calling for some particular person, therefore, and being subjected to the exhaustive cross-examination of the toll recording operator, the caller must ask his local operator for the number he desires and then hold the receiver to his ear until the person at the other end responds.

In some places the work of supplying the necessary extra cable will not have been completed in time to permit the operation of this No-Delay System on May 1, but will be put into effect as soon as possible.

Under the old plan, one could call for a particular party and be charged a reduced rate if this party were not on hand to answer. This practice will be abandoned after the new system of

POINTS FOR THE MOTORIST.

How to Locate Small Punctures in Tubes.

Nearly every motorist has experienced the exasperating task of locating small punctures in inner tubes. The following suggestions may serve to lighten his trouble when he next meets with such a mishap.

In the first place the tube should be examined carefully to determine if the puncture is large enough to be seen. If not immediately visible the perforation may be very small, no larger than a needle point and in this case it is much harder to locate.

Inflate the tube slightly and hold it near the ground. Very often if the road is dry the puncture may be detected by the disturbance of the dust made by the escaping air.

If this test cannot be made or if it does not discover the puncture, present each portion of the tube to your cheek until you can feel the rush of escaping air. These methods failing to locate the puncture your only course is to immerse the tube in a pan of water, section by section, and watch closely for air bubbles. Where these bubbles rise is the point of puncture.

Sometimes even the water test will give no indication of a leak yet when the tube is refilled and inflated, the air pressure will again decrease slowly. You may then be practically sure that the trouble starts near the nut at the base of the valve. This is assuming that all other valve parts are in good condition otherwise when the valve was immersed in water, bubbles would have indicated the leak. An invisible leak of the nature described could be produced by screwing the nut at the base of the valve too tightly, or not screwing it tight enough.

In either case it is safer to return the tube to the manufacturer, for it is not likely that the motorist can make a satisfactory repair.

If no puncture is found in the tube, it would be well to re-test the valve. This can be done while the tire is mounted on the wheel. Simply turn the wheel until the valve is pointing straight down and immerse the valve in a glass of water.

This is accomplished by raising the glass until the valve is submerged. If bubbles rise to the surface of the water, examine the rubber security disk at the bottom of the cap and if this is damaged fit a new one in its place. If you have no regular rubber disk, use instead a small leather washer, or one made of cloth smeared with cement.

The Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, New Jersey, publishes in two volumes a complete instruction book on the care and repair of tires from which the above notes are taken. Copies of these volumes are sent free on request.

CAMP FIRE

There was an attendance of nearly 600 at the Camp Fire given in Masonic building, Newtonville, in honor of the Newton High schools by Charles Ward Post on Friday evening of last week. Considered from the weather point of view, it must have been a much more agreeable gathering than were some of those held by the "old boys" in their army life of half a century ago; for a more pleasant night could hardly be possible at this season of the year. Previous to the program exercises, which began promptly at 8 o'clock, Commander Albert Plummer presiding and past commander Henry Haynie serving as toast master, there was an informal reception to the young guests of the Grand Army men, and where the incomparable war relics were gazed upon with a sort of profound amazement.

The speakers, after the commander had welcomed one and all, were four in number, and verses from five army songs were rendered in a happy manner by the veterans and audience. Comrade S. E. Howard, of West Newton, who saw service in the 8th Vermont infantry, told what he called the story of Captain Bainbridge, and it was good. When the boys of the 8th Vermont first took notice of this captain in the regulars, they looked on him as a sort of dude; but in their first engagement Bainbridge's conduct showed them that he was of the stuff that heroes are made, and so it was with him to the end of the war. Comrade William T. Shepherd, who belonged to the 3d of the Vicksburg campaign, spoke of the Vicksburg campaign, after several months of besieging and hard fighting, with 36,000 Confederate troops, to Grant the 4th of July, 1863. His remarks were illustrated by a very large picture of the Mississippi river at and about that city. By the time the camp fire was extinguished, Shepherd was on his way to New York, en route for Europe, which delighted region he visits annually. He will be gone seven weeks this year.

The next speaker was Comrade George E. Johnson, formerly of the 9th Illinois infantry, now living in Auburn, Mass., who told of his experiences as a dispatch bearer for Maj. Gen. Curtis, under Gen. Fremont, in Missouri, were very interesting. The last speaker was Comrade Hosea Hyde, a charter member of the post, once a soldier in the famous 32d Massachusetts infantry—in the Newton company—and now residing in Newton. He dealt with the battle of Gettysburg, where he was seriously wounded, and would have fallen into the hands of the enemy but for the gallant assistance of three comrades in arms, two of whom were killed while endeavoring to save him. "In the toast master read an original 'strain' one verse of which ran:

Here's luck
To those who are brave and true,
Determined to do—this means you—
Upward and onward, willing to try;
Let that be the way of the Newton High.

MAY FESTIVAL

A delightful May Festival was held in the Unitarian Church, Newton Centre, last Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the ladies of the Woman's Alliance.

The tables were beautifully and artistically decorated with morning glories, the flower table in particular being a bower of beauty and fragrance.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the children's entertainment opened with a maypole dance and the crowning of the May Queen, that honor being conferred on little Miss Esther Clement, with Shirley Blanchard as maid of honor.

In the dance were Philip Darling, Alice Clement, Edward Stimpson, Barbara Buffum, Warren Buffum, Ruth Darling, Josephine Wells, Linnell Studley, Josephine Wells, Rodman Russ, Hope Corken, Clement Truitt and Joan Burroughs. The dance was followed by a short playlet entitled "In Arcady," presented by Eleanor Barber, Dean Roberts, Charlotte and Clement Truitt. Supper was served, followed by dancing in the evening.

Much credit for this most successful affair is due to the following: Mrs. Ernest Russ, who was in charge; entertainment committee, Mrs. G. F. Spaulding, Miss Roberts, Miss Smith; chairman of the decoration committee, Mrs. H. F. Stimpson; ice cream, Mrs. H. C. Hawks; candy table, Mrs. H. N. Smith; lemonade table, Mrs. H. C. Pearson; afternoon tea, Mrs. C. R. Darling; supper, Mrs. E. G. Swift; men's table, Mr. George Spaulding; check room, Mr. H. W. Willison; apron table, Mrs. A. J. Blanchard; food table, Mrs. H. E. Twombly; flower table, Mrs. E. C. Willison; fancy table, Miss Nellie M. Everett; bag table, Mrs. Ellen Ferguson; handicraft table, Mrs. A. H. Robinson; gifts, Mrs. E. F. Goodwin; palmistry, Mrs. Darling.

D. A. R.

The Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R. of Newton, held its annual meeting Monday, May 8, at the home of Mrs. Edwin D. Dodge, 326 Highland street, West Newton; and the hostesses with her were Mrs. Frank W. Pray and Mrs. David E. Baker.

The business meeting was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Arthur P. Friend, annual reports of officers being read by Miss West, Mrs. A. J. Friend and Mrs. C. D. Meserve were then read.

Acting upon the report of the nominating committee, Miss Fannie Allen, chairman, the following officers were elected:

Regent, Mrs. Charles D. Meserve. Vice regents, Miss Lucy E. Allen, Mrs. Charles E. Hatfield. Recording Sec'y, Mrs. Francis Newhall. Corresponding Sec'y, Mrs. Fred M. Lowe.

Registrar, Mrs. Frank W. Pray. Treasurer, Mrs. Frank M. Sherman. Historian, Mrs. Arthur G. Hosmer. Board of Management: Mrs. Charles W. Leonard, Mrs. William H. Lucas, Mrs. S. Homer Woodbridge, Mrs. John N. Eaton, Mrs. H. P. Converse, Mrs. John L. Damon, Mrs. A. Stuart Pratt, Mrs. Arthur P. Friend, Mrs. Charles E. Gibson, Mrs. George R. Pulsifer.

Mrs. Friend's spirited and entertaining report of the Twentieth Continental Congress followed, and was greatly enjoyed.

After singing America, the company adjourned to the dining room, where delicious refreshments were served.

Saturday, May thirteenth.

Smoke talk, Boston and its Harbor. By Henry C. Long, 8 P. M.

The Men's round up last Saturday night was a most successful affair with all the facilities of the club used to the limit. The crazy contests at bowling attracted a large number and the scheme of placing a high and a low number in a sealed envelope and allowing those rolling nearest to that number to roll off for the two prizes was something new and novel. Mr. S. R. Porter and Mr. W. W. Blair each entered the finals for the low score with 84 and Mr. Blair won by reason of being nearest to 84 in the finals. Mr. Harrington and Mr. Mitchell were nearest to the high figure of 111 and Mr. Mitchell won in the roll off. A substantial supper was served at ten o'clock in the assembly hall and fully 125 gentlemen were present. Mr. Grille gave some capital stories and songs and impersonations and Mr. E. W. Harrison played the piano in his usual excellent style. The crowd joined in singing the popular songs of the day and all had a most enjoyable time.

THE PLAYERS.

The Players gave the 52nd series of performances last week at their hall in West Newton and attracted large audiences on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings with the productions of three one act plays, entitled "In Honor Bound," "Sunset," and "The Change Ring." The casts follow:

"In Honor Bound," Mrs. A. L. Wakefield Jr., Miss Dorothea Macomber, Mr. G. R. Pulsifer and Mr. P. W. Carter. "Sunset," Miss Margaret Tapley, Miss Marion Stinson, Miss Josephine Talbot, and Messrs S. M. Crain, J. A. Condit and A. L. Wakefield Jr. "The Changing," Miss Ruth Stutson, Mr. Waldo Glidden and Mr. T. E. Stutson.

Handley's orchestra rendered musical selections at each performance.

Mr. Arthur G. Hosmer was stage manager, Mr. G. R. Pulsifer, acting manager for "In Honor Bound" and Mr. A. L. Wakefield Jr. acting manager for "Sunset." The ushers at the performances were Messrs Harry L. Burrage, Dana Thomas, F. Rogers Thomas, Sinclair Weeks, Henry W. Robbins and Hon. Charles E. Hatfield.

LODGES.

The first grand concert and dance, given under the auspices of the Newton Lodge 110, Knights of Pythias, was held Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows Hall, West Newton.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of William M. Johnston, CC, Frank F. McIntyre, Charles M. Potter, William H. Edwards, Harry M. Stout, Pe. Herbert F. Skelton and John R. McLean, PC.

Newton Lodge 8, 9, 10, O. O. F. and Tennyson Rebekah Lodge will observe the anniversary of Odd fellowship with a pop concert and dance next Wednesday evening in I. O. O. F. hall, West Newton.

This evening General Hull Lodge A. O. U. W. will hold its annual lobster supper and entertainment in Dennison hall, Newtonville.

PLAYGROUND NOTES.

The next meet of the Newton A. A. will be held on May 20, at 2.30 P. M., and on May 27, at 2 P. M. the All-Newton grammar school athletic meet will be run.

On May 13 at 9.30 A. M. there will be a four cornered track meet, with the Mason, Hyde, and Claffin schools of Newton, and the Devotion school of Brookline competing.

GENEROUS AID

Editor Newton Graphic:—

It may be of interest to your readers to learn that the Newton Improvement Association, through the kind co-operation of the Newton Y. M. C. A., have secured the services of Mr. William MacPherson, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., who will give his afternoons to the supervision of Cabot Park during the summer months, beginning immediately.

Mr. MacPherson, besides his experience with the boys in the Y. M. C. A., was supervisor of one of the playgrounds at Springfield before coming to Newton.

The parents of our boys may, therefore, feel much gratified to have the operation of Mr. MacPherson and Mr. Bucknam, our forest commissioner, in having our Cabot Park Play-ground under such able supervision the coming season.

The Newton Improvement Association desires to publicly express its appreciation of the co-operation of the Newton Y. M. C. A. in bringing this matter about. We invite the hearty cooperation of all our citizens who have the best interests of our section of the city at heart.

O. M. FISHER,
President Newton Improvement Association.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

T. Stuart & Sons who are doing the grading at the new building have smoothed out the athletic field and rolled the track so that now everything is in first class condition. It is hoped that the young men and boys will have patience, however, and wait until the grass can grow sufficiently so that it can be played on without being destroyed. The grading in front of the building will soon be done and grass seed sown, so that the appearance of the building will be much improved. The building will be dedicated next September. It is barely possible that some parts of it may be used before that time.

Mr. Wm. MacPherson, Physical Director of the Association, will supervise Cabot Park playgrounds under the direction of a committee appointed by the Newton Improvement Association.

The baseball team will play a strong team from Allston on the South Diamond at Cabot Park next Saturday. The team has been in process of organization but now a number of strong players have signified their intention of joining the team, so the game next Saturday ought to be one of unusual interest.

NEW RECTOR.

Rev. Lucien W. Rogers, the new rector of the church of the Redeemer at Chestnut Hill occupied the pulpit for the first time last Sunday morning and was greeted by a large congregation. An informal reception followed the service. Rev. Mr. Rogers comes to Chestnut Hill from St. George's church at Central Falls, R. I.

WHIST AND DANCE.

The Nonantum Conclave of Heptasoph held their last dance and whist party of the season on Friday evening. The committee and aids in charge were Messrs C. E. Josselyn, J. C. Ward, C. B. Oak, J. P. Shattley, D. R. Austin, H. Johnson, T. W. Burgess, H. E. Conant, F. E. Maguire, J. A. Wilson, H. Wilcox, J. P. Doyle, J. A. Doyle, T. H. Burns.

During the evening the district deputy Supreme Archon presented the Conclave with an American flag.

Souvenirs were presented to Miss A. E. Manning, Miss Muriel Hilton, Mrs. MacDonald, Messrs J. J. Coughlin, D. J. Leary and J. L. Sullivan.

FIRE CHIEF INJURED

While answering an alarm of fire at Waban last week Thursday afternoon, Chief Walter B. Randlett collided with the automobile driven by Mrs. A. E. Spencer of Waban, and the chief received a bad cut on the leg which necessitates the use of a cane in walking. The chief's auto was going west on Beacon street and at the corner of Chestnut, where the view is somewhat obstructed, came suddenly upon Mrs. Spencer in her machine. The chief's car was turned sharply to the right but not sufficiently to avoid a collision, as Mrs. Spencer seemed unable to control her machine. Stillman J. Gurney of Truck 2 who was riding on the rear seat of the fire auto was thrown fully 15 feet, but neither he, nor Clarence W. Randlett, the chief's chauffeur nor Mrs. Spencer were injured. The chief's machine lost a wheel and the Spencer car had a bent axle.

DEFEATS WALTHAM.

About 2500 people witnessed the first game of the season between Newton High and Waltham High on Claffin field, Newtonville, Wednesday afternoon. Newton won the game by a score of 10 to 0.

Newton started off the game by tallying twice in the first and two more runs were registered in the fourth. Newton tallied her fifth run in the sixth. Waltham's rally came late in the eighth, when three runs were scored, partly due to wild heaves by Newton.

In the first of the ninth Cobb connected with one of Spaulding's slants for a triple into left center field. Andrews was safe on a misplay and on a wild pitch by Spaulding Cobb scored.

Much credit for Newton's win belongs to Frank Frapp, center fielder. In the third when Cobb drove a long fly Frapp sent the ball home, catching a Waltham player at the plate on a perfect throw to Brooks. His batting, too, was easily the feature of Newton's playing, working in two singles and a double, and scoring two of the five runs. He also stole a base and made three difficult catches.

Hyatt in left field covered a lot of ground, making three hard running catches, while Henry Nash played a brilliant game on first base and made a double and triple.

The catching of Brooks of Newton and Richardson of Waltham was of a high order.

POLICE NOTES.

In the police court Monday morning before Judge Kennedy, the cases of William Traconi, Michael Boleunos, Anthony Roslinski, Anthony Slinkie, charged with gaming on the Lord's day, Peter Neumuehli, Charles Truncuna and Frank Dumbroski and Adam Yumtchu, charged with being present where gaming was held, The men were arrested Sunday morning by officers McKenzie and Cronin. Yumtchu, the proprietor of the house, was fined $30 for allowing gaming in his house and $5 for being present. Entrance to the house was gained by climbing up to the second-story by means of a ladder by the officer and the other one standing at the door. When the officer entered the room, the room suddenly went into darkness, and the men began to find places to conceal. Some were found under beds, in the cellar, behind doors and one was found by the police concealed in a secret closet on the first floor. The closet was found by means of a crack in the wall and a button overhead and when pressed, revealed the man whom they were unable to find. The others were fined $10 each for gaming and those present were fined $5 each, which they paid.

BAD FIRE

A fire, or rather a series of fires which caused a general fire alarm signal to be rung took place Monday afternoon when the barn attached to the Edmonds estate on Centre street, Newton, caught fire. Box 13 was sounded, but before the department could reach the premises over a long hard hill, the building was entirely in flames. Indeed, some men who were working in the barn stated that they had a lively time getting out themselves. Besides the long climb up Centre street hill, the barn itself is quite a distance from the street and it required long lines of hose to reach it. While everyone was watching the burning of the barn and the efforts of the firemen to stop its spreading to other outbuildings on the Day and Marcy estates, the upper portion of the Marcy house on Sargent street was found afire. As the roof is of slate and tin, it is probable that the wind, which was blowing rather strong at the time had carried a spark or ember either into an open window or into a wooden gutter. It was not discovered however until it had obtained considerable headway and before it was extinguished had gutted the upper story of the building and badly damaged the lower floors with water. About all the furniture was carried from the house and after being placed on the lawn was stored in the stable. Small fires also started on the greenhouse of Mr. F. A. Day and the roof of his tool shed also caught in several places but was quickly extinguished. When the Marcy house caught, Chief Randlett ordered a second and then a general alarm in order to call in the apparatus which had answered an alarm for a small brush fire just previous to the ringing of box 13. Chief Johnson of Waltham was a visitor at the fire after the general alarm had rung and offered assistance which was declined, altho the Waltham department held itself in readiness to answer any other calls which might come in. Chief Randlett also received a call for assistance from Dover, which he was unable to answer.

The fire attracted a large and very orderly crowd, and the smoke rolled up in a most picturesque fashion. Embers from the fire were subsequently found as far north as the Hunnewell club and it was fortunate that no more serious consequences followed.

There was a curious rumor during the afternoon that some pigs were burned and that a cow and a bull had been made so wild that it was necessary to kill them. As a matter of fact it seems that the killing of the cattle had been determined upon before the fire and the team from the abbatoir came while the fire was in progress.

The damage is estimated at from $5000 to $10,000 being probably nearer the smaller figure.

Musicians and Sneezing.

Nobody can dispute the sincerity of the players in a big orchestra like the Philharmonic of the New York Symphony. Most of the time they take their work seriously, but sometimes the men break loose and play tricks on one another as though they were youngsters in school. Of course the audience knows nothing of these things; they're usually perpetrated in rehearsals.

The red pepper trick is the commonest. The jokers scatter it where the bassoon and trombone players are likely to suck it up. The result is chokes and sneezes. Sometimes the epidemic reaches even into the strings, but of course the players on the wind instruments get it worst.

As a matter of fact, the jokers are playing with fire. "A confirmed sneezer can't get a job in a good orchestra, no matter how good a performer he may be," said a consistent concert goer. "Think of the effect of a sneeze on a pianissimo! Why, it would spoil a whole concert, one sneeze would. A conductor has to guard against a sneeze as he does against ineptitude."—New York Sun.

A Lucky Game of Chess.

A story is told of the Moorish prince Abul Illex, who was thrown into prison for sedition by his brother Mohammed, king of Granada. There he remained for several years until the king, fearing he might escape, placed himself at the head of a fresh revolt, and seized the crown, ordering one of his pashas to see to his immediate execution. Abul Illex was playing at chess when the pasha came and bade him prepare for death. The prince asked for two hours' respite, which was refused. After earnest entreaty he obtained permission to finish his game. He was in no hurry about the moves, he was told, and well for him he was not, for before an hour had elapsed a messenger brought the news that Mohammed had been struck dead by apoplexy, and Abul was forthwith proclaimed king of Granada. It was indeed a small favor for the pasha to grant, but it altered the whole current of the king's career.

Elephant Humor.

The courage of a lion at bay, great as it is, is no greater than that of the buffalo, and he must yield his scepter to the elephant, declares H. L. Tangye in his book, "In the Torrid Sudan," as to courage, size, strength and intelligence. It is a temptation to declare that the elephant possesses a sense of humor. A herd of elephants once fell in with a train of donkeys. Their attention concentrated on the load the donkeys carried. With all the mischief of monkeys, the loads were torn asunder and their contents distributed over half the province. At Bor, on the Mountain Nile, the elephants were at one time full of practical jokes. Passing at night time through the village, they would knock the sleepers up by demolishing their huts above their heads, then contentedly march away.

Beauty and the Beast.

A well known churchman was visiting New York, accompanied by his wife, who is as beautiful as her life mate is homely. They were walking down Broadway one afternoon, and the pair attracted much attention. One of two young "sports," evidently thinking to attract the favorable attention of the churchman's wife, in an audacious aside remarked that it was another case of "the beauty and the beast." Quick as a wink the husband turned and, as he swung his right to the speaker's jaw, scoring a knockout, said, "I am a man of peace, but I never allow any one to call my wife a beast."

Solitude.

Solitude is dangerous to reason without being favorable to virtue. Pleasures of some sort are necessary to the intellectual as to the corporal health, and those who resist gaiety will be likely for the most part to fall a sacrifice to appetite, for the solicitations of sense are always at hand, and a dram to a vacant and solitary person is a speedy and seducing relief. Remember that the solitary person is certainly luxurious, probably superstitious and possibly mad. The mind stagnates for want of employment and is extinguished, like a candle in foul air.—Johnson.

Rastus and His Razor.

"You are charged with carrying a razor," said the magistrate. "What have you to say?"
"But hit's a safety razor," pleaded Rastus.
"What difference does that make?" the court asked.
"Well, yo' hono,' a safety razor am carried only fo' de moral effect."

A Fair Proposition.

"But," the patient exclaimed, "your advertisement said 'no cure, no pay.'"
"I shall cure you," the doctor replied, "if you only will be patient and give me time."

"Very well. I will pay you if you will be patient and give me time. When shall I call again?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Meditation.

Try to secure some part of each day for meditation. Apart from men we can look ourselves more honestly in the face, lift up our hearts to God and give our putting lives a chance.—Stevenson.

A Joke on the Artists.

Some years ago there was a colony of artists painting in a Maine village some twenty miles from Prout's Neck. All were enthusiastic admirers of Winslow Homer, and all having had a go at the painting of rocks and men and realizing how difficult was the task, betthought them of Homer, only twenty miles away. How refreshing it would be to have a glimpse of the man's work in his studio! Fully aware that it was not his custom to admit strangers, they ventured upon the pilgrimage to that shrine. They counted on his waiving the rule where it concerned a group that conjoined at least one full fledged national academician and several associates of that august body. They all went to Scarborough (Prout's Neck), put up at the hotel and sent him a joint note, signing their names and begging that he would receive them. When the messenger returned they read with dismay that Winslow Homer presented his compliments and begged to be excused from receiving "art students." The joke was so good that the story was given out in artistic circles.—Arthur Hoeber in World's Work.

Mock Suns.

Mock suns are similar in point of origin to the mirages of the desert, only they occur in the arctic circle. As the long winter night of the polar region wanes once every twenty-four hours a slight glow is seen at some point on the horizon. Often accompanying this glow is seen the phenomenon of the mock suns. Several degrees up in the heavens as many as five of these spectral orbs have been seen at one time. Invariably they are all connected in a geometric figure, the suns seemingly bound together with circles and arcs of light. Often when only one appears it is mistaken for the real god of day, and natives rejoice at the early end of the long winter night only to be disappointed when the light disappears. The explanation of the phenomenon is given by physicists as refraction and reflection of light from the real sun below the horizon on the mist in the upper atmosphere.—St. Louis Republic.

Crossing the Bar.

Tennyson's famous poem "Crossing the Bar" was written, said his son, in the poet's eighty-first year, "on a day in October when we came from Aldworth to Farringford. Before reaching Farringford he had had the 'morning of the bar' in his mind, and after dinner he showed me the poem written out. 'That is the crown of your life's work,' said his son, who was the first man after the poet to read 'Crossing the Bar' and who passed the first criticism upon it in such fitting and generous language. 'It came in a moment,' said the poet, and he explained the pilot as the Divine and Unseen, who is always guiding us. A day or two before he died the poet, calling his son to his bedside, said, 'Mind you put 'Crossing the Bar' at the end of all editions of my poems.'

Old Time Taxation.

During the eleven years from 1005 to 1700 the Englishman over twenty-five who shirked matrimony was called on to pay 1 shilling annually, with a further sum, according to rank, of 5 shillings for a gentleman and £12 10s. for a duke, a tax which yielded to the revenue about £1,000 a week. In these "good old times" the Briton had to pay a tax when he took a wife and another tax every time he qualified as a father. Thus a duke's nuptials cost him £50 4s., his heir £30 2s., and for each later male addition to his family his joy was discounted by a payment of £25 2s. The benedict whose income was less than £50 a year had to pay 2s. 6d. on his marriage and 2 shillings every time he became a father.—London Standard.

Wagner a Living Paradox.

As an artist Wagner had unequalled genius. As a man, though generous, temperate and virtuous to an unusual degree, he also had extraordinary faults. He was egotistical and proud, prone to fierce enmities; he went to extremes in everything. A living paradox; impatient, irritable and nervous; noble and petty; never made a man more friends and more enemies. He was worshipped and hated. Taken all in all, musically he stands as the most notable figure of this age.—Dole's "Famous Composers."

With a "G."

"Gentlemen," said the lawyer for the defense in closing his eloquent and impassioned speech, "all I demand for my client at your hands is justice—justice with a large 'G'!" The principal of the district school was on the jury, and the verdict was guilty—with a large G.—Chicago Tribune.

Many Sided Question.

Miss Lonely—You ought to be careful, Kitty. Marriage is a serious matter.

The Maid (who has a proposal)—Yes, ma'am; but staying single is a serious matter too.—Columbus Ledger.

Fatal Anyhow.

"Won't you try a piece of my wife's angel cake?"

"Will it make an angel of me?"

"That will depend on the kind of a life you have led."—Houghton Post.

Out to Be In.

Never be in your place of business when a person wants to borrow money of you, because if you are in you will be out, but if you are out you will be in.—London Answers.

The grand essentials of happiness are something to do, something to love and something to hope for.—Chalmers.

IN MEMORIAM.

At the last meeting of the Every Saturday club the following beautiful tribute to Mrs. Sherman was read and accepted by the club as a fitting expression of the affection and appreciation of those among whom she had been so many years a friend and fellow member. Mrs. Sherman's association with the club dates from its organization in 1870, while she was still Miss Briggs. Her marriage to Mr. Sherman in 1870, while she was still Miss Briggs. Her marriage to Mr. Sherman may be considered one of the delightful romances of the earlier years of this club so dear to its members.

The passing into the Higher Life, of Mrs. Rebecca B. Sherman, following an illness borne with marvellous fortitude and serenity, has removed from our sight a personality which combined in a remarkable way, strength with gentleness; common-sense with idealism; sincerity with sympathy. From her life, singularly unselfish in purpose and helpful in expression, the power and influence of character are clearly indicated. No conflicting motives and qualities blur the impression of fine womanliness which her life afforded.

Her home and its interests were her supreme concern, but she seemed never to lack time, strength, and means to lend to every worthy cause the aid which her ready sympathy and good judgment approved. Particularly efficient and capable in all that she undertook, she was not without sympathy for the inefficient and unsuccessful, expressing by word and deed her solicitude for such. Distinctive and characteristic was the selection of the interests to which she gave herself.

Though social prominence was easily within her grasp, she chose rather to ally herself with movements for social betterment, to broaden her vision by travel; to see the best in Art, and to hear the best thought available. Given to charity for others, to high standards for herself, and to a generous hospitality, her place in the Every Saturday club has been one of great influence.

Through many years of membership, active and honorary, both her character and her unflinching interest in the welfare of the Club have proven of inestimable worth. To those who have long cherished its standards and aims she has been a comrade in an earnest desire to see its fine traditions preserved, and in pride in its peculiar charm; to others, who have but lately enjoyed its privileges, she has represented many of the qualities which have made it so admirable and desirable among clubs.

That the last act of an oft-repeated, gracious hospitality was extended to this Club, that, in carrying out that cherished plan so much pleasure and satisfaction were hers—these are the last of many beautiful memories which will remain to this Club a legacy from this strong, but spirit whose going was ordered as her living, victoriously.

"Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail, Dispraise, or blame: nothing but well And what may quiet us, in a death so noble."

WOMEN'S MISSIONS.

The Woman's Foreign Mission, Home Mission, Baptist church Newton Centre, held their annual meetings last Tuesday. A dainty lunch was served in the dining-room shortly after one o'clock to the members and guests of the Societies. The company then repaired to the chapel and after prayer by Mrs. Galusha Anderson, the time was given to reports of successful activities. It appeared that during the year $854 had been devoted to Home Missions, and $1,644.44 forwarded for Foreign Missions.

The election of officers was followed by a thought-provoking address on "The Twentieth Century Whirlpool" by Miss M. A. Greene, L. L. B. of Providence, R. I.

The following officers were elected: Woman's Foreign Mission Society, Mrs. Alvah Hovey, Honorary President, Mrs. M. Grant Edwards, President, Mrs. E. R. Kimball, Jr., First Vice President, Mrs. R. R. West, Second Vice President, Miss G. T. Colburn, Treasurer, Mrs. F. L. Anderson, Assistant Secretary, Mrs. W. Claxton Bray, Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Stephen Greene, Auditor.

Woman's Home Mission Society, Mrs. E. W. Varney, President, Mrs. F. E. Anderson, Vice President, Mrs. E. R. Benton, Second Vice President, Mrs. L. S. Jenkins, Treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Edwards, Secretary.

Benevolent Society, Mrs. S. A. Shannon, President, Mrs. G. E. B. Putnam, Vice President, Mrs. Maurice A. Levy, Second Vice President, Mrs. Charles T. Bartlett, Secretary, Mrs. S. Harold Greene, Treasurer.

At the evening service of the First Baptist church next Sunday, at 7.30 Rev. M. A. Levy will give the third in the series of "Sermons on Superlatives."

The subject for this service will be "The Most Vital Thing in the World." The soloist will be Miss Sophia J. Muldoon, whose singing has won her many friends.

To the Prospective Buyer

It is most advantageous to list one's requirements with a reliable real estate broker, the obvious reasons are: In a reliable, up to date real estate office great numbers and varieties of properties are listed at all times, and clerks are paid to keep people posted on whatever properties that seem to be what a client would consider. Another advantage of the agent is that many people will list highly desirable properties with a real estate broker when they would not let it be generally known that they were desirous of selling. My lists are at the service of the buyer.

MASONIC BUILDING

MONTE CARLO

INTERESTING DESCRIPTION BY NEWTON MAN

Monte Carlo, April 22d, 1911.

Editor Graphic:

Perhaps there is somewhere a more beautiful place than this. I have never found it. Nature here was kind and man and money have wrought miracles! Sixty years ago all that was here was the castle and old town of Monaco, a mile or so to the west ward. The rock on which the Casino now stands was a rocky promontory covered with pines and cacti, where thyme and lavender grew wild, and lizards sunned themselves; there was then but one building in that section known as the Condannée, now packed close with beautiful buildings, mostly hotels, all the way to Monaco.

In 1863 M. Blanc made to the Monaco government an offer of about $350,000 for such of the Casino as had then been built—only partially completed—and never successful, provided he might have the exclusive privilege of gambling. His offer was accepted, and he and his friends took over the company that was already formed and which was called "The Society for Sea Baths and Club for Strangers at Monaco" and that is still the name under which the establishment is run. From the beginning M. Blanc was successful, and when the railroad which was completed in 1868 provided easy communication, the name and fame of Monte Carlo became world wide. Up to the middle of the seventies the gambling was in comparatively small sums and the Casino people sold checks or counters of the denomination of two francs, and any player was expected to "cash in" at the office when he was through playing. But this was not always done and gradually these "chips" began to circulate as money, not only in Monte Carlo but in the region round about. After a few years M. Blanc decided to call in all these tokens and to the astonishment and chagrin of the company they found they had to cash over four hundred thousand of these pieces, while only one hundred thousand had ever been issued. A gang of counterfeiters up on the Corniche road had seen the opportunity and improved it! From that time "chips" were abolished and only actual money used at the tables. After M. Blanc's death in 1881 the capital was greatly increased. I think it now stands at 30 million francs, although the stock is pretty closely held and when there is a sale on the exchanges it is for many times the par value, as the gains of the company are said to run from 20 to 30 million francs annually.

M. Blanc's original concession was for fifty years, and would have expired in 1913. But in 1898 the company grew nervous over the possibility that the concession would not be renewed and began negotiations with the Prince of Monaco. These were ultimately successful although the price is said to have been a pretty stiff one; at any rate the Casino people are secure in possession of their privileges until April 1, 1948.

This little principality of Monaco is said to be the most thickly populated country in the world. It contains only about 300 acres and has a fixed population of something over 16,000. The Casino alone provides employment for about twelve hundred—all men; and practically the whole of Monaco depends on the gambling establishment.

The growth of the place in recent years has been something enormous. I came here first about ten years ago and I should say Monte Carlo had much more than doubled in number of buildings—while in value the increase has been vastly more. There are hotels almost without number, and the new ones—such as the magnificent Riviera Palace, part way up the mountain, the Balmoral and The Hermitage must have cost many millions. The general impression is I think that hotel prices here are very high; but there are plenty of good quiet hotels here where one can live exceedingly well and at a cost certainly no greater than at Nice or Mentone. I am at a small hotel at the top of the public garden, only a minutes walk from the Casino. I have never stayed at any other so I am not much of an authority on Monte Carlo hotels, but I get a good room, with sunny dressing room, and all meals, all for twenty francs per day; and the most delicious cooking I have ever found anywhere at any price. The place is famed for its wines and its cuisine, and yet they have practically no American patronage.

Your readers who come over from Nice or Mentone and spend a few hours think perhaps that they have seen Monte Carlo. I've been here four times; I stay a week each time, and yet I never take a walk in any direction that I do not find something new and interesting. And if only I knew enough French to ask questions and understand answers I'd know a lot more about the place than I do.

Those two splendid rows of palms in the public garden—what kind are they? They are not Royal Palms. I've seen millions of those in Cuba, but they are just as straight and the bark is as smooth; there are sixteen of them, eight in each row. I measured several of them with my hands, roughly this morning; there is not one of all the six—less than three feet in diameter—several are over four feet and two very nearly or quite four and a half feet! And you that carefully cultivate a rather scraggly rubber tree or two in your houses, did you ever notice the one in the Casino garden, at least forty feet high, as symmetrical as one of our Temple street maples and with a spread of more than thirty feet? And such flowers—great beds of splendid purple pansies and the most wondrous geraniums, several like our June, great masses of purple Bouganvillea and all sorts of flowering shrubs and all so wonderfully kept! There are scores of men always working in the Casino grounds. The lawns are as beautifully kept as the Brae Burn greens, and yet I never saw a lawn mower here. I saw three men mowing this afternoon, all with the curious clumsy looking scythes, I measured one of them; the blade was 6-12 inches wide at the butt, tapering to a point.

Did you ever go up to La Turbie? Choose as perfect a day as I did yesterday: the station of the funicular is only three or four minutes walk from this hotel; the trains run about every half hour. In twenty minutes you are landed seventeen hundred feet up in the air. From a semi-circular balcony built right on the edge of the precipice you get a superb view. Monte Carlo and Monaco are almost beneath your feet. It seems as if you could throw a stone into the Casino, and in front the beautiful Mediterranean gloriously blue and nothing between you and Africa; to the east you can see away beyond Mentone and beyond the Italian border, while to the west the mountain La Tete du Chien shuts off Nice from view; and then walk back to the quaint village of La Turbie with the old Roman ruin which gave the place its name, and which was built before the Christian era.

O, there are other things than the gambling to make this place worth visiting, but of course it is the gambling that has made this earthly paradise possible. I am not going into the ethics of gambling; but if you do have the gaming instinct you can gratify it as you can nowhere else on earth. Think of a magnificent club house—costing up to over four millions of dollars—set in the midst of a splendid garden, and in which you may gamble from ten o'clock in the morning until midnight, with an unbreakable bank that only asks for one chance in seventy more than it gives you; that permits you to run away with your winnings if you are wise enough, and never knows or cares whether you come back to spend them or not! and yet which itself has "stood up to be shot at" for fourteen hours every day in the year!

Of course that eminently respectable lady from Andover who timidly and half guiltily thrusts five franc piece on to the Roulette table—and a moment later saw it raked in by a relentless croupier, may not agree with me; and that big wool man who lives in—well, I won't say in which Newton—who seemed to think that the more numbers he covered at one time the greater his opportunity of winning—might dispute my statement of the chances: I saw him lose over two thousand francs in less than half an hour and I am sure that he knew no more about roulette after than before. Those are the people that pay for the running of this little municipality.

But what an enormous affair it all is!—and how perfectly it is all run. The season lasts much longer that it used to. Its height is supposed to be Feb. 15 to March 15, but here it is the last of April and all the hotels are open and apparent-Casino going full blast in the afternoon and evening; for many hours daily there must be upwards of three thousand visitors at a time, and as the crowd is constantly coming and going I should suppose that a daily attendance of five thousand was a low estimate.

Suppose you come a stranger to Monte Carlo and wish to have a try at the game; you first apply at the bureau at the left of the main entrance there are a dozen men whose only duty is the examination of would-be visitors—recording certain facts—and issuing numbered tickets. You are asked your name, occupation, where from, where staying; then if the examiner is satisfied with your looks and dress, you are turned over to a clerk who in a great book writes down all you have told of yourself, and possibly some other facts for identification, and then you are passed along to another clerk who prepares your ticket; this ticket is numbered to correspond with the number of your entry in the ledger, and is a different shape and color each day; you may get a six sided orange colored ticket today, but here you can get in another day, this ticket must be taken to the bureau, there your record is looked up in the great ledgers, and if no black marks are found against you will be exchanged for a new ticket which may be a round blue one, but will never be like the one of the day before; and when four of these daily tickets have been issued to you, you may on your fifth visit if your record is clear get a ticket for a month and this monthly ticket admits you to the gaming rooms through a different entrance and the three frock suited guards are a bit more obsequious than those at the entrance you have been previously permitted to pass.

The only games permitted in the Casino are Roulette and Trente-Quarante. I had heard that in the private rooms Baccarat, Faro and other card games were run. I found a gentlemanly official in the bureau yesterday who answered to him: some few he charged at and I didn't wonder; so for this reason my letter may not be as interesting but it is authoritative and he says also that all the gaming rooms in the Casino close at midnight.

When everything is running there are nineteen roulette and six trente-quarante tables in operation. In the very dull part of the year they get down to about five and two. Each roulette table begins daily with 80,000 francs in gold, silver and bills on the table, and each trente-quarante with 150,000 francs. So when all are running full it takes two million four hundred and twenty thousand francs, about half a million dollars to start things going.

At roulette the smallest bet you can make is 5 francs, and the largest 6000. At the other game which is purely a card game with no mechanism the smallest is a "Louis" (20 francs) and the maximum 12,000.

What is meant by "breaking the bank at Monte Carlo" is merely winning all the money at one table so that that table has to make a fresh start. You can see that this is by no means impossible; supposing three men start when the table begins and each bets the maximum on the same chance, leaving original stake and winnings on the table; they would only have to win three times running before it would take 144,000 francs to pay them;—and to win three times in succession is a very common thing. I saw a "run of eight" at one of the tables yesterday.

Let me try to describe a roulette table on the chance that not all of you have seen one; the table itself is something more than three times as long as it is wide, divided in the middle by the "roulette" so that there are two groups

the table and sunk flush with the top;

then there remains only the great pile of silver five franc pieces; these are counted tendant with a spirit level which he puts on the roulette: one of the croup-

iers examines it carefully—approves—

it is tried once more at right angles,

There is in the Casino a quite gorge-

The frequency of grass and brush fires in this city is a disgrace. There is altogether too much childish loitering
among grown up people to see the fire department run to answer a fire alarm,
and the opportunity to turn in an alarm
for fire is taken on the slightest pretext.
No consideration is taken at all of the wear and tear on the apparatus, or the serious danger of accident while passing along the streets at a high rate of speed.
There is also the possibility that while the department is responding to some foolish call, a most serious fire, such as occurred this week may arise. Education of our citizens to the advantage of preventing fires by the exercise of ordinary care in burning up brush and rubbish seems to be almost a necessity, but as the fire fool is always with us it would be an act of wisdom to heavily fine every person whose carelessness leads to the necessity of ringing in the fire alarm.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Editor Newton Graphic:

On several occasions you have referred to the improved service of the Boston and Albany railroad. True it is that they keep to schedule better than at one time, but to do this they have taken off trains and cut down the running time of
all. One glaring instance of poor accommodation may be found in the rush hours. A very good train leaves Boston at 4.40 p. m. The next train is five minutes later, at 4.45 p. m. Then there is a wait of 25 minutes to 5.10 p. m. Think of it,—trains 25 minutes apart during rush hours. The consequence is that the 5.10 train is a very long one and even then there are passengers standing in the aisles. I frequently come out on the 5.10 and in no case have I seen seating room enough for all. And this has been going on for more than a year while the papers have been talking up improved service. Under the B. and A. we had a train every ten minutes between 4.30 and 6.30. That gave 13 trains. Now we have ten trains. Where is the improvement? We can stand the loss of a few trains but that wait of 25 minutes is by much too much.

A MAY PARTY.

Last Friday evening the ladies of the U. O. I. O. L. held their annual May party in Denison hall, with their usual success. The hall was artistically all decorated with flowers and banners all having been arranged by Mrs. Harry A.
Preston with her customary good taste.
The interesting part of the elaborate program was what was styled the song sheet. There were six young ladies dressed up to represent some flower
in a decorative manner, chanted about the blossom. Miss Constance Hicks recited about the beauties of the poppy. Miss A. C. Whalen told of the children's favorite, the daisy. Miss Gladys G. Preston sang of the message of the violet. Mrs. Milly Beardsley portrayed the sun flower. Miss Margaret Daniel rehearsed the ever favorite rose,
and Mrs. Louise Chisholm disclosed
the simplicity of Erin's national flower,
the shamrock, while Miss Kathryn M.
Murray presided at the piano with marked ease and grace.

Miss Annie Lyons sang a solo
"Love's bouquet" dressed as Mary Mary, quite contrary, and illustrated it
by carrying a watering pot and sprinkling the flowers before her. Miss A. E.
Dumphy gave a pleasing reading, and Miss Allen performed a fairy dance. The committee in charge were the chairman
Mrs. Eva Fogwill, Mrs. Annie Preston,
Mrs. May Berry, Mrs. Beardsley, Mrs.
Plaisten and Mrs. Lillian Fogwill. After the entertainment dancing was enjoyed by all. The music was furnished by

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

The Club Editor is in receipt this week of copies of The American Club Woman and of The General Federation Bulletin for May. Both magazines seem to fill a peculiar place in the club world.
The former contains an interesting article on "Women in the Canal Zone," and devotes much space to the doings of individual clubs all over the country.
The Bulletin, on the other hand, being the official organ of the General Federation and of many of the State Federations it is much more concerned with the doings of these composite groups of clubs rather than with the single clubs. Both magazines are warm in their praises of the treatment received by those who attended the Council meeting at Menphis and of the friendly spirit of goodwill which prevailed throughout the sessions. In the Massachusetts section of the Bulletin there is an outline of study for clubs on "Home Economics" prepared by Miss Helen Louise Johnson of Good Housekeeping and a member of the Home Economics department of the State Federation. Miss Johnson will be remembered by Newton women as one of the speakers at the conference at Newtonville last January. The outline is accompanied by a complete bibliography, which should prove most helpful.

The plans for the annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation are already announced promise a very interesting session. The party will leave Boston on Wednesday, May 24th, at 12.50 P. M. for New Bedford. At five that afternoon there will be an organ recital in the Rogers Memorial church at Fairhaven and an informal reception in the Old Dartmouth Historical Society Building at New Bedford in the evening.

On Thursday morning at eleven o'clock the meeting will open in the First Baptist church, Williams street.
That session and a portion of the afternoon session will be given up to reports of officers and chairmen of standing committees followed by an address by Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation. In the evening the hostess club extends a musicale and reception to the visiting delegates.

The business of the annual meeting including the election of officers is set down for Friday morning followed by further committee reports and a report of the Council Meeting of the General Federation held at Memphis and an address by Miss Alice Lakey on "The travels of the Pure Food Law." At the afternoon session the remaining committees will report and the new clubs
and new officers will be presented.

The adjournment will come early enough to ensure arriving in Boston about five o'clock.

The regular quarterly board meeting of the Newton Federation will be held at the New Church parlors, Newton-ville, on Monday, May 15, at 10.15 A. M.
The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold a sale of cooked food, candy,
aprons and homemade rugs in Society
Hall, Taylor's Block, Auburndale, on Saturday, May 13, from 1 to 7 P. M.
This will be the final sale of the season
and should have a hearty response.

The last meeting of the Home Circle
for the season will be held in G. A. R.
Hall, Newtonville, on Thursday, May 18, at 2 P. M. A fine entertainment will be given and refreshments served.

A year of active work was brought to a successful termination at the annual meeting of the Waban Woman's Club held with the president, Mrs. Helen S. Andrews, on Monday afternoon, May 8th.

The customary reports were read by the officers and delegates covering the various phases of the year's efforts. The report presented to the club at the previous meeting were voted upon, the following officers being elected to serve during the coming year: President, Mrs. Helen S. Andrews; vice-president, Mrs. Isabel M. Parker; recording secretary, Mrs. Edith Virtue corresponding secretary, Mrs. Sarah B.
Ambrose; treasurer, Mrs. Anna P. Vebster; new director, Mrs. Annie H. Robinson; chairman of entertainment committee, Mrs. Mahel Piser, press correspondent, Mrs. Lucille Z. Sawyer; Federation delegate, Mrs. Alice C. Congdon.

After the election Miss Marion Miller rendered two piano selections and
Mrs. Slade, a Quincy guest of Mrs.
Andrews, sang several numbers. A social half-hour was then enjoyed over the tea cups and the club informally adjourned until November.

A full and interesting report of the Child Welfare Conference held at Worcester on May fifth will appear in our next issue.

NEWTON TEAM WINS.

The Immanuel Associates of Newton have won the championship of the Norumbega Bowling League composed of classes from the various Sunday schools of this district. The Immanuel team won 64 and lost 16 and received five of the ten prizes offered by the league. Mr. John C. Ward of Newton won the high average. Mr. Jensen of Waltham being second and Mr. William Cady of Newton, third.

The close of the season was marked with an enjoyable banquet held Tuesday evening at Immanuel Baptist church, Newton, when about one hundred bowlers and their friends sat down to an excellent meal. President Lawrence Lane presided and there was speaking by Messrs. Blaisdell, Anders, Hatch and other captains and teachers of the teams and classes. Silver cups were awarded the winners and fobs given to the members of the winning team, composed of Messrs. D. Webster, Anders, captain, J.
C. Ward, Wm. Cady, W. D. Ward and Harold Moore. Beverly G. Secord was the manager.

A sixth sense.
An interesting discussion arose at a recent college lecture concerning the "instinct of direction" possessed so marvelously by savage races and by animals. Undoubtedly animals are aided largely by scent. In the case of humans it is different, and some of the pupils argued that the primitive man is able to find his way in the densest forest without taking note of the sun, the wind, the lay of the land or the course of the streams. Therefore it was said he must be guided by a sixth sense because none of the regular five senses could aid him. Other pupils, however, argued that the Indian found his way in places where there were no apparent guides because he knew how, because he had learned all his life how to do it, just as the writer, for instance, will write page after page of copy, spelling all the words correctly, but yet cannot if asked to spell a simple word. This is because he learned the words long ago and his spelling is purely mechanical. It is so with the Indian finding his way through the woods.—
Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Fiction or History.

After all, fiction is not always the worst place in which to look for history. There is a story of Mr. Disraeli at the time of his extremely humptu-ous youth when he had just returned from his travels in the east. As a young man, much under thirty, he met Lord Melbourne, who was then prime minister, at dinner. Lord Melbourne proceeded to discourse on the eastern question, but instead of listening to the prime minister with the respect which he ought young Disraeli said, "It seems to me that your lordship has taken your knowledge of the east from 'The Arabian Nights.'"

Some prime ministers I have known would have snubbed the young man severely. Lord Melbourne was not of that kind. He rubbed his hands with great cheerfulness and said to the young man, "And a devilish good place to take it from!"—Lord Rosebery in an Edinburgh Address.

Warming the Eggs.

There was once an old lady in Scotland who kept a few hens. As she lived close to the house in which a church minister lived he asked her to send him two new laid eggs every morning and he would pay her for them.

So the old lady sent her girl to the minister's house every morning with two eggs, and the minister's servant always thought the eggs were newly laid because they felt quite warm, as if they had just been taken from the hen's nest.

But one day the eggs were cold, so the servant asked: "Are the eggs fresh today, Janey? They do not seem warm."

The simple girl looked at the maid and then said, "O, aye, they're quite fresh, only my mother could not get the cat to sit on them this morning,
as it ran away."

Locating Icebergs.

The captain of an ocean steamer in most cases finds out when his vessel is approaching an iceberg from the men down in the engine room. That sounds queer, but it is a fact nevertheless. It appears that when a steamship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster.
Such water usually surrounds the vicinity of icebergs for many miles.
When the propeller's action therefore is accelerated without the steam power being increased word is passed up to the officer on the bridge that icebergs may be expected, and a close lookout for them is established. There are natural reasons for the propeller acting in this way, and sea captains will assert the same thing.

A Remarkable Shawl.

The empress of Russia was once presented with a shawl of a remarkable kind. It is contained in a box only a few inches square, in which it fits easily, yet when it is shaken out it is ten yards square. This notable gift was from a group of some women weavers in Orenberg, southern Russia, by whom it was presented. The box containing it is of wood, with hinges, hoops and fastenings of beaten silver.

Trapped.

"I saw the cutest thing today," began Miss Pussy coyly. "It was a painting of the—or—what is the name of that little girl that represents matrimony?"
"Well, now," said Mr. Timmid,
"you've got me."
"Oh, Mr. Timmid, this is so sudden!"
—Catholic Standard and Times.

Force of Habit.

A burglar went home one night, fumbling noiselessly at the keyhole and let himself in without making a sound.
He was about to creep softly upstairs
when his wife appeared on the upper landing. "Dan," said she, "wot makes ye come in so quiet?" "Blame it," bellowed the burglar, "I thought I was in another house!"

The Puzzling Point.

Teacher—And did you make out a list of the nine greatest men in the history of the world, as I told you?
Willie—Almost. I can't pick out the best catcher, though, to save my neck.
—Puck.

A Taste of It.

Missionary—And do you know anything whatever of religion? Cannibal—Well, we got a taste of it when the last missionary was here.—Toledo Blade.

one vice will efface many virtues.—

Women on Warships.

In the British navy of Nelson's day it was not uncommon for wives to live aboard men-of-war with their sailor husbands. Scarcely one of England's "walk of oak" in Nelson's time but had some woman aboard who braved the perils and hardships of the sea in order to be with her husband. In nearly every one of the twenty-seven line of battleships under Nelson's command in the great battle of Trafalgar was one or more women, wives of sailors. Surprise may be expressed that English men-of-war's men were permitted to have their wives aboard. It was only by special permission of the admiralty that this could be done—and then permission was granted somewhat in the light of a penance for sanctioning the press gang system, which was largely in vogue at that time. Men were seized in the streets and other public places and compelled to serve in British warships because "the king needed men." Some of the men thus seized had political influence and, being unjustly compelled to serve in the navy, were permitted to have their wives share their involuntary servitude.

A Mean Advantage.

In a breach of promise case the barrister who held the brief for injured beauty arranged that his fair client should be so placed that her charms should be well under the observation of the jury. He began a most pathetic appeal by directing their attention to her beauty and calling for justice upon the head of him who could wound the heart and betray the confidence of one so fair, concluding with a peroration of such pathos as to melt the court to tears. The counsel for the defendant then rose, and after paying the lady the compliment of admitting that it was impossible not to assent to the encomiums lavished upon her face he added that nevertheless he felt bound to ask the jury not to forget that she wore a wooden leg. Then he sat down. The important fact of which the fair plaintiff's counsel was unaware was presently established, and the jury, feeling rather sheepish at their tears, assessed damages at the smallest amount.

The American Baby.

The American baby has a fine, strong ancestry. The young men of England who were impatient of religious restraint and of physical oppression; the young men of Germany touched with the dream of democracy; the pick of northern Europe, the strong, the fair, the self-reliant, the conscientious English at bottom, but with a dash of the best blood of other races—this is the American baby, and no king and no lord ever had a better heritage. Take it as it goes, in Massachusetts, in Ohio, in Michigan, in Washington, in California, the average American baby has in its veins more of the blood of the Plantagenets than any king now living has. It was his fortune to have come from the daughter lines and the lines of the younger sons, not from the elder son, whom British custom has marked for the aristocrat.—David Starr Jordan.

The Young Man's Tact.

The man who was having his picture taken in the photograph gallery was an innocent listener to the conversation between two young ladies on the other side of the screen:

"You know, Kate, I sometimes wear a long curl hanging down the back of my neck?"

"Yes."

"Well, when Phil was calling on me the other evening he asked me if he might have that curl, and I jokingly said yes. Before I knew what he was about he had taken a little pair of scissors out of his pocket and clipped it off close to my head."

"Why, the idea! Didn't that make you furious?"

"Not for the smallest fraction of a second. I thought it was splendid of him that he didn't seize and pull it off."

Not His Fault.

A doctor was summoned to attend the miller's little boy. He wrote out a prescription, which was promptly made up and administered in due form. The next day he called again to see his patient and found the whole family in tears.

"Alan," said the mother, "I shouldn't have thought that my poor child would have died of the measles!"

"What?" exclaimed the doctor. "He had the measles, and you never told me?"—Paris Journal.

The Soft Answer.

Irritated Frenchman (to Yankee, who had taken him for a waiter)—Sir, you have gr-r-rossly insulted me. There is my card. My seconds will wait upon you, sir.

Yankee—Never mind your seconds, Frenchy. You can wait upon me just as well. Pass me the sauce, and be quick about it.

Shopping by Mail.

Not long ago in a little town in one of the prohibition states a young man entered the postoffice and asked the postmaster for a postoffice order.

"For how much?" asked the postmaster.

A Real Surprise.

Mamma—And you say your Uncle Titowid gave you a penny, Tommie? Tommie—Yes, ma'am. Mamma—And what did you say? Tommie—I was so surprised I couldn't say anything. mamma.—Yonkers Statesman.

Life, that ever needs forgiveness, has, for its first duty, to forgive.—Bulwer Lytton.

An Added Profit

At this bank interest is paid on average daily balances of checking accounts.

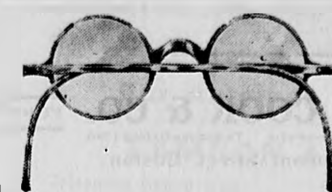

This makes an added profit for depositors amounting to quite a little in the course of a year—an extra income which will take care of many an item of expense in your business.

But the interest paid on deposits is by no means the greatest advantage to be secured from a bank account in a strong and progressive institution like this.

INJURED AT ALLSTON.

Benjamin F. Wright, 37 years old, of 4 Highland terrace, Newtonville, and Dominick Bennett, 32 years old, of 49 Angler street, Newtonville, were injured as the result of a premature explosion of a blast they were preparing at the corner of Park Vale avenue and Princeton avenue, Allston, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Wright received burns about the face and hands. He was attended by Dr. Edmund Myer and later sent to the City hospital in the ambulance of division 14. Bennett had his left leg injured, but was able to go to his home.

The men were employed by J. H. Bomhard of 58 Carleton street, Newton, and were blasting rock to make way for house foundations.

Waban

—Dr. John B. May is building a house on Waban avenue.

—Mr. A. W. Moriarty of Chestnut st is erecting a garage.

—Mr. George V. Phipps of Brookline is building a fine residence on Kent road.

—Mr. J. L. Gooch of Wakefield is building another house on Nesbitt road.

—Mr. H. P. Dowst read a parody on Kipling at the recent dinner of the Pilgrim Publicity Association.

—Mrs. Frederick H. Putnam gave a delightful luncheon bridge to twelve ladies last Friday at her home on Upland road.

—The new "Ladder" or all the year challenge tournament will be inaugurated at the Waban Tennis Courts next week.

—Mr. T. H. Dyer and family of Beacon st have moved the past week into the house formerly occupied by Mr. H. G. Cloyes on Montclair road.

—Mrs. Wm. M. Buffum of Beacon street arrived home on Tuesday from a three months stay with her brother Mr. R. D. Coe in Ponce, Porto Rico.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Parker of Collins road entertained Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Angier and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Lane over the week's end at their Rhode Island summer place.

—Last Friday evening the Guild of the Church of the Good Shepherd held a successful fair and fancy work sale in Waban Hall, followed by an enjoyable entertainment in the evening.

—The auto truck of Mr. Christopher McEale, operated by Arthur B. Morse collided with a trolley car on Boylston street near Berkeley street at Boston Monday noon. No one was injured but the street car was slightly damaged.

—The Guild of the Good Shepherd held a successful fair and sale of fancy articles in Waban Hall on Friday afternoon and evening of last week. The booths were artistically decorated and the whole affair highly satisfactory. About $175 was made.

—The annual meeting of the Waban Womens Club was held on Monday afternoon at the home of the President, Mrs. C. A. Andrews on Moffatt road. The election of officers for next year resulted in a return of all the names on the official ballot and very few changes in the present list were made. The new officers holders being Mrs. Edith Virtue, recording secretary, Mrs. Anna I. Webster, treasurer, Mrs. Annie H. Robinson new director, Mrs. Mary Collier second delegate to the Newton Federation. A tea followed.

—A playground is at last practically assured to Waban, and the whole village is taking the plan up with enthusiasm in a large part due to the two large meetings held for this purpose during the week past. On last Friday night a meeting was held in the Waban School Hall attended by about 150 people, at which several outside speakers explained the various phases of the modern playground, its necessity and benefits all being listened to with great interest and the closest attention. They included the Mayor the Hon. Mr. Hatfield, Mr. Thomas Curley of Waltham, one of the leading authorities on the subject in this country. Dr. Spaulding the superintendent of schools in Newton, Mr. S. B. Paul of the Newton Centre Grammar school and Mr. Allston Burr of Chestnut Hill and President Matt B. Jones of the Board of Aldermen.

—Mr. Lewis H. Bacon presided. On Wednesday evening a smaller meeting was held by the Improvement Society in Waban hall but the discussion was most encouraging. About $10,000 will be required to carry out the full scheme and of this $3000 has been promised by anonymous friends out side of Waban and the city is expected to appropriate $4000. This leaves some $3000 to be raised and 3 men have already pledged $300 apiece if necessary while a number promise to be good for $100 apiece. A committee of 21, 14 men and 7 women is to be appointed immediately to canvass the village.

The selection of a camp for boys often puzzles parents. This can easily be remedied by reading the following. "If you want your boys to have a good time, and yet to be held up to a high standard of morals and gentlemanly conduct, so that they may return to you in September, clean, manly fellows, send them to Camp Algonquin. If you merely want them to have a good time regardless of character and good manners, Camp Algonquin does not want them."

MR. NICHOLS DEAD

Mr. Francis H. Nichols, for many years a resident of Newton, died at his home on Church street on Monday, the 8th inst. Mr. Nichols was born in Boston in December 1838, the son of William and Louise Carlie Nichols. His first business connection was with the old firm of Horton Sawyer & Company, in whose employ he remained until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the Twenty-fourth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers and served as Quartermaster Sergeant during the entire term of service. Immediately following the war he was in the Department of the Sanitary Commission in Washington for a year or more, then returned to Boston, engaging in the shipping and commission business as a partner in the well-known firm of Holmes & Nichols, from which he retired some ten years ago.

He was a charter member of the Hunnewell Club of Newton and a member of the Bostonian Society. He is survived by a widow.

Funeral services were held from the home yesterday afternoon in charge of Rev. Laurens MacLure, rector of Grace church. A male quartet rendered several selections and the burial was at Mt. Auburn cemetery.

THEATRES

Tremont Theatre—The announcement from the Tremont Theatre of the re-appearance by special engagement of "A Country Girl," presented by the Gray-Stewart Co., beginning May 15, is of uncommon interest. Coming at a time when the season begins to drag, this captivating musical play offers a fort night of unqualified delight to the lovers of clean, happy fun, melodiously haunting music and brilliant ensemble. The forebodings of this conspicuous event assure a notable presentation of the piece, rich and complete in the every detail of the cast, chorus, scenery, costumes and all supported by a largely augmented orchestra under the direction of Anton Heindl. No time, effort or money is being spared to make this special engagement an extraordinary one, and the promise of another opportunity to hear "The Rajah of Bhong," "Cool," "Yo-ho! Little Girls!" "Under the Heodan," "Peace! Peace!" and the dozen other fascinating songs is not the least alluring thing about this particular month of May. The evening performances begin at 8 o'clock and the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2 o'clock. The regular Tremont Theatre prices 50c to $1.50 now prevail.

Hollis Street Theatre—For two weeks beginning Monday May 15, S. T. King offers Aphie James and her own company in a new comedy drama of the romantic Seventeenth Century period entitled "Judy O'Hara" by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett. This new play is in the vein of the author's best works. It has an exciting plot, a romantic love story, Mrs. Burnett's characteristic humor and a strong sympathetic appeal. It is a picturesque costume play of the Georgian period, having to do with the endeavors of James Stuart's supporters to place him on the throne of England. The locale of the play is first in the old Clancfergus Castle in Ireland then in Lord Saxton's home in England and last in James Stuart's retreat near London. As Judy O'Hara, the leading character of this new play, which Miss James plays with a delightful ease of humor and dramatic finesse, she is reputed to reveal the best work of her artistic career, appearing as a rollicking Irish girl, a loyal hearted lady of quality, a dashing highwayman and an ideal woman. Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given during Miss James' engagement.

Castle Square Theatre—Next week the play at the Castle Square will be "The White Sister," dramatized from Marion Crawford's novel of the same name. From beginning to end it is alive with sensation and emotion. It has been highly commended as one of the most vigorous of Marion Crawford's plots. To have made so good a play from a novel, so that it may be enjoyed both by those who are familiar and unfamiliar with it, is no small achievement, and that is what has been accomplished in "The White Sister." It is a play that will be thoroughly enjoyed by those who like to see incident on the stage, and who are impressed and moved by emotional acting. Following "The White Sister" during the week of May 22nd, will come a revival of Sheridan's brilliant comedy, "The Rivals," with Donald Meek returning to the Castle Square stage in the part of Bob Acres after an absence of several months.

For three reasons the Spengler cooker is of interest to every householder: it is an economy of fuel, it saves heat and space. It is a device which makes one flame do the work of three ordinary burners. It saves two thirds of the fuel expense and can be used on any burner stove. Three things cooking over one flame do not throw off the amount of heat that three flames would cooking over three flames. This burner is shipped prepaid to any part of New England for $2. It is sold by Knapp & Dewar, 649 Old South building, Boston.

Uncommercial List.

Artistic folk frequently have somewhat vague notions about business. Some of them are quite ignorant of it, others utterly indifferent to it and others yet hate the very name of it. One in the last named category was Liszt. He had returned from a successful tour, and Princess Metternich, the wife of the celebrated statesman and diplomatist, was questioning him regarding the concert he had been giving abroad.

"I hear," she said, "that you did good business in Paris."
To which Liszt gave the tart reply, "I only played some music there. Business—that I leave to bankers and diplomatists."

To another lady the musical cleric gave a still more sarcastic answer. "Ah, Abbe," she sighed, "what a great fortune you would make if only you could be induced to go to America to play!"
"Madame," returned Liszt, "if you stood in need of that fortune, believe me, I would go at once."

The Names of Moses.

Moses of Scriptural fame is called by eight different names in various places in the Bible. Bathia, the daughter of Pharaoh, called him Moses because she drew him out of the water. Jochebed, his mother, called him Jekuthiel, saying, "I had hoped for him." Miriam, his sister, called him Jared because she had descended after him into the water to see what his end would be. Aaron called him brother Abi Zannuch because his father had deserted their mother. Amram, the father of Moses, called him Chabar because he was again reunited to the mother of the lad. Kehath, the grandfather of Moses, called him Abi Socho because he was once bidden three months in the Tabernacle. Abi Israel called him Shemariah because "in his days God heard their cries and rescued them from their oppressors."

Dot and Trouseau.

Dealing with the weaknesses of actors, some noted for meanness, a Paris contemporary relates a good story of Frederick Lemaître, the celebrated actor, who was somewhat parsimonious. When his daughter was about to marry, Lemaître agreed to provide the "dot" and the troussau. "Dot," it may be observed, is the French equivalent for the English "dower" or Scottish "tocher."

When the notary came to complete the contract and was reading the terms Lemaître said: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaître has not need of a dot. M. Le Notaire, strike out the dot."

The prospective son-in-law was present, and he had the courage to reply: "The daughter of Frederick Lemaître can easily clothe herself with the fame of her father. M. Le Notaire, pray strike out the troussau."

The Cry of the Loon.

The cry of the loon is one of the strangest, weirdest sounds in nature. Those who have heard it can scarcely wonder that it has so often been woven into song and legend.

A blood red ring hung round the moon,
Hung round the moon. Ah, me! Ah, me!
I heard the piping of the loon,
A wounded loon. Ah, me!
And yet the eagle feathers rare
I, trembling, wove in my brave's hair.

Almost all writers who have attempted to describe the cry of this bird have likened it to unmitigated laughter. Thus Mr. Vernon Bailey, speaking of the sound, describes it as follows: "Only on the lonely lake in the heart of the woods do you get the startling thrill of the loon's wild cry—one clear, piercing note or a long, quavering, demure laugh that to the timid suggests a herd of screaming panthers."

Four Kinds of Liars.

The late Sir Frederick Bramwell was famous both as a witness and arbitrator in engineering disputes. It is recalled that his brother, the late Lord Justice Bramwell, on giving advice to a young barrister told him to be careful of four kinds of witnesses—first, of the liar; second, of the liar who could only be adequately described by the aid of a powerful adjective; third, of the expert witness, and, finally, of "my brother Fred."

Extra Hazardous.

Beers—Poor Mrs. DeAlterres has always been unlucky in the selection of her husbands.
Townsend—Why do you say that?
Beers—Her first husband was a guide in the Adirondacks, her second was a baseball umpire, her third was a manufacturer of dynamite and her last was an aviator.—Chicago News.

A Generous Spirit.

"Henry, I want $2 this morning."
"What for?"
"Must I account to you for every penny I spend?"
"I don't insist upon knowing about every penny. When it's less than a nickel you can bunch it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wanted It Abbreviated.

Jeweler—What shall I engrave in it?
Customer—G. O. to H. L.
Jeweler—What's that, sir?
Customer (meekly)—George Osborne to Harriet Lewis; but just the initials, please.—Lippincott's.

His Sole Dread.

Hammond—Don't you dread the silent watches of the night? Martin—No; it's the cuckoo clocks that give me away.—Harper's Bazar.

Good intentions will never justify bad actions.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

The legislature has been really working the past few days and is making considerable progress in cutting down its calendar. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the week was the demand from Mr. Harvey S. Chase of West Newton, expert in chief to Governor Fass, for an opportunity to answer the statements of State Treasurer Stevens, in which he ridiculed the expert report on his department. Mr. Chase made a demand on Mr. Stevens for access to his books once more—a demand which Mr. Stevens refused and upon which he asked the opinion of the attorney general. Regardless of the right or wrong of the situation, it is extremely poor politics for Treasurer Stevens to refuse the request of Mr. Chase. If Mr. Stevens' position is correct, he ought to welcome the most thorough and repeated investigations, or otherwise, the people will get the idea that he is endeavoring to conceal something. Mr. Stevens ought to receive some good advice from the leaders of the Republican party on this point.

Speaker Walker has got in "wrong" in attempting to introduce a bill to allow the state to levy an income tax, and the Rules committee has acted wisely in refusing to suspend the rule to admit it at this session. While the Senate has killed the federal income bill in the form of an amendment to the national constitution, there is ample evidence that the necessary number of states will soon be found to ratify the amendment, and it would be folly for Massachusetts to levy a state income tax, with the national government authorized to put on another Senator Pearson of Brookline has the right idea in advocating a method which would authorize the national government to levy an income tax, and return the major portion of it to the states retaining a portion for its own use and for the cost of collection. A state income tax would drive wealthy persons into other states, while a federal income tax would be collected all over the country. It has always seemed advisable to me to have the taxes on all forms of personal property levied and collected by the national government, as a plan which would tend towards equity in assessment, collection and thoroughness. The suggestion of Senator Pearson, who comes from Brookline, by the way, is in this direction.

Representative White made a valiant effort last week to induce the House to substitute his bill to regulate the business of pharmacy, for the adverse report of the committee in charge, but notwithstanding the fact that Mr. White is a pharmacist, the House enjoyed his speech but sustained the committee.

Our three representatives have voted as a unit the past week, in favor of amendment to the bill to provide for punishment of officers of railroad corporations who violate certain laws, by inserting the pregnant word "willfully," the amendment being defeated, and also against the bill itself, the bill passing however by a large margin. They were in the majority, however, on Monday on the vote for the bill relative to taxation of legacies, the margin of success being small.

Mr. Ellis was one of the speakers to oppose the bill to allow the sale of "baby" veal, and that bill as well as one to authorize cities to provide lunches for school children were deservedly defeated.

Senator Mulligan has voted against reconsideration of the defeat of the federal amendment to tax incomes, against the amendments to the night messenger service bill, in favor of tabling the resolutions in relation to direct election of U. S. Senators, in favor of indefinitely postponing the resolutions protesting against removal of duties on boots and shoes, against the bill to enlarge the authority of local municipalities in granting street railway freight franchises, against the peaceful persuasion bill, and in favor of the amendment to the state constitution to enlarge the power of the Legislature in taking land for highways.

Practical Politics pays a deserved tribute to the work against the Greater Boston federation, saying:

"The house on Thursday, with hardly an effort, killed the poor skeleton of a Real Boston bill which the chamber of commerce and allied bodies finally won out of the committee on metropolitan affairs. The house could do but little else. The Real Boston scheme as proposed by the chamber included a metropolitan council and several other similar contraptions. It was a great big, lusty, and yet somewhat crazy, scheme. Ostensibly the chamber was yelling that it would mean that Boston would be rated as the fourth city in the country in census returns, which was not so and never could be so.

Then the Anti-Real Boston people from Newton got to work and punched the chamber of commerce plan full of holes.

When they closed their arguments, the chamber was down on its knees calling for mercy, and the spell-binders, who for six months had been talking it up, were wondering where they fitted. As a concession the Newton people agreed that they would allow a bill to be reported which would provide for Metropolitan Boston in name and that the chamber could go as far as it liked in trying to get statistical recognition for it. The chamber was willing to take anything which it could get at that time, and it assented. The bill came into the house and was rejected Thursday. There was some debate, but hardly enough to win a notice in the newspapers and the end was without tears.

The one man who more than any other, deserves credit for the puncturing of the foolish claims of the chamber of commerce people is Frank T. Miller, a Newton alderman. Miller has but little use for fancy schemes, but has an unholly method of handling facts, and he gave the chamber people their full of them. When they talked about the council he showed how it would be useless. When they talked of statistics, he was right at home. There were other members of the Newton committee, but Arthur Blakemore, who wrote the original report, and Miller, who furnished the fireworks, did the fine work. Miller lined up some 29 cities and towns in opposition and got them so they knew what they were opposing. Today the chamber of commerce takes the stand that it was defeated by the combined efforts of a majority of the cities and towns in the proposed district. It is a consoling thought, in reality the chamber and its 4500 members was kicked by Franklin T. Miller, who has a habit of getting after things and sticking to them till the job is finished."

Notwithstanding the strong fight which the Newton and Waltham men put up for the $25,000 bill for improvement of the sanitary condition of Charles river between Waltham and Newton, it was defeated in the House, Wednesday afternoon 53 to 80 and a rollcall refused. Mr. Lomasney of Boston, whose constituents use the river as much as any section of the district was the leader in opposition on the ground that Boston would pay one half the expense. Yesterday the rejection was reconsidered and the whole matter referred to the next general Court.

Shoe Aristocracy Banished

The "Goodyear Welt" System of shoemaking machines—sixty of them—which reproduce the handicraft of the old-time shoemaker—has banished shoe aristocracy from the land—driven it out forever.

They have leveled to a common plane the footwear of an entire nation. These marvelous machines—intricate and sensitive—utilize the intelligence of skilled operators in the production of shoes that are durable and comfortable as if hand-sewed, but at only one-third the cost.

This economy permits every man, woman and child to enjoy the wonderful benefits distributed by the "Goodyear Welt" shoemaking machines.

The foremost shoe manufacturers of the world employ this method in their plants.

shoes for men, women, boys, girls and children are made of solid leather—they must be—for only substantial leather can be worked on these fast operating machines. Five hundred lock-stitches a minute are inserted, close, rapid and strong. Obviously cheap leather or inferior leather cannot withstand the speed of such swift flying needles. Thus "Goodyear Welt" is always a guarantee of solid, real leather. It is your insurance of wearing quality. Even the War Department recognizes this feature when it specifies the rapid Goodyear stitching as its standard in shoe contracts for the soldiers.

The feet of the Army are clad in Goodyear Welts. Shoes made by this method can withstand the severest marches. And they afford the greatest comfort. For these wonderful machines stitch the welt innersole and upper together in a seam that doesn't penetrate the inside of the shoe. Even the heavy outsole is lock-stitched to this welt with the seam entirely around the outer edge. The shoe is left smooth inside. Comfort is assured the soldier on his longest march.

Get this comfort for yourself. Just send your name and address. Do it today. It brings you a list of all five hundred different names of Goodyear Welts, the shoes that are real leather and smooth inside. Some are sure to be sold right in your town. Get this list before you buy another pair of shoes. Two booklets will also be sent you free, one graphically describing the sixty machines, the other—"The Secret of The Shoe."

STORIES OF THE WAR

AS TOLD BY MEMBERS OF CHAS. WARD POST

(We give today the third of the war talks which the members of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R. of this city, are indulging in this year. These reminiscences by the old veterans are attracting wide spread interest in our community.)

It was Grant, who had been given supreme command of the Union armies, that fought the famous battle of the Wilderness, a two days terrific struggle early in May, 1864. In that blind, furious grapple, in almost impenetrable woods and thickets, where Union soldiers pushed aside bushes to find mortal enemies bursting through the adjoining jungle and face to face with them; where there was 14 hours of severe fighting on the 6th of May, and during which combat Gen. Wadsworth was shot in the head while inspiring his division of Warren's corps; where the smoke of at least 200,000 men destroying one another with valiant saltpetre filled the valleys, rested upon the hills, hung in lurid haze all around the horizon when the red sun went down; where on the afternoon of the 7th, Gen. Longstreet and the enemy were having it the hardest over on the Union left; and where a small squad of the boys in blue came, in the thickest of the rebel dead, upon a northern soldier severely wounded the day before when the Federal troops had advanced the farthest and had remained unmolested within the enemy's lines, but was now crawling about gathering wild violets, and had already made up a lovely bouquet of those sweet smelling flowers, that great battle some of the Newton Post took their gallant part.

One of these was Comrade Colonel S. Ober of Auburn, Maine, who served in the 31st Maine Infantry, assigned to the second brigade, second division, ninth army corps, then commanded by Gen. Burnside. He spoke of his regiment's march from Alexandria to Bristow Station, with five days' rations, navy-sacks, and no shoes, and of the hardships of the march, which had been more or less often covered by advancing and retreating armies; of fording the stream called Bull Run, where he saw many relics of the first great battle of that name, so disastrous to our forces; of passing the earth works at Centerville, where Lee had held McClellan at bay with guns impregnable in appearance, but which proved to be made of mud, logs; and of his regiment's crossing the Rappahannock and the Rapidan rivers, finally reaching the front—the Wilderness battle—just as the sun was rising the morning of May 6th.

"We were marching," said Comrade Ober, "in regimental front, and of all the tangled underbrush, thorns, briars, herry bushes, morasses, hills and dales, that land held them all. I held my gun, and used to keep my face from being scratched, but both my hands were bleeding. We came to a roadway where we were ordered, in a whisper, to load our guns, which done several of the men fired into the woods in front, and this brought out shells from a rebel battery on our right. We struggled deeper into the tangle, formed a line facing battery, and were ordered to keep on. I lie down with shot and shell coming frequently though not disastrous, as only a few of my regiment were wounded. There happened to be a big pine tree directly in front of me. I gladly sat down behind it, and hardly had I done so when I heard the rebel yell for the first time.

Presently I began to look around, taking in with such much as possible. On our side Hancock's corps had a breastwork of logs, which the enemy charged close up to then a part of the second corps charged back at them, and this was repeated two or three times, much to my delight, for I was now seeing the northern and southern armies in actual warfare. But I was soon satisfied and felt somewhat like the man from Scituate, Mass., who, after going through a series of battles and exposures of every kind, often short of food, received a letter from his wife asking him where he had placed some article that he had used just before leaving home for the front. He wrote her that he put it in the closet back of the kitchen stove, and he wished to heaven he was there with it.

"The battle of the Wilderness was now on in full force. Grant with 125,000 men was facing Lee, who had about half as many; as the latter was in a chosen position, on interior and shorter lines, his smaller strength was equal to our own. Besides, Grant could not make use of all his force at the same time. Later in the day our regiment withdrew from the position taken in the morning and we went to the rear where, in an open field, we made coffee, after which we returned to the same position. But we lost hardly more than 25 men in killed and wounded. The afternoon of the 7th we marched over the plank road about four miles to Chancellorsville tavern and cross-roads, where we were drawn up in line and all the men in the 31st who could chop down a tree were ordered to sto to the front. I joined the choppers and went to a stump where an axe was given me. Only recently I was relating this incident to Mr. Perkins, of the firm of Silas Peirce & Company, of Boston, and he informed me that he was the man who handled me that axe.

"We felled trees and piled them up to make a defence against any attack that might be made by Lee's troops on Grant if he attempted to retreat toward Washington, as all other generals had done before, after fighting the Confederates at or near Chancellorsville and Fredericksburg; but instead he continued on toward Richmond, to 'fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.' By and by I was relieved from further duty for the night and laid down for rest and sleep. Just then a boy of about 12 years, who joined us at Boston and persistently remained with us to the end, came to me for something to eat, but I had to tell him my larder was entirely empty. He borrowed my knife, went off, to soon return with a partly filled haversack, and I was happy once more."

Comrade Ober gave the losses in the battle of the Wilderness as—Federal, 37,000; Confederates, 11,000. Gen. Alexander, Longstreet's chief of artillery, places the number at—Federal killed, wounded and missing, 18,366; Confederates, 7750. Other authorities make the Union loss about 17 per cent, and that of the enemy 18 per cent of the number engaged, which would be 20,400 for the former and 11,700 for the latter. Certainly no other great battle ever took place before on such ground; but little of the combatants could be seen at any time, and its progress was known to the senses chiefly by the rising and falling sounds of a vast musketry fire which continually swept along the lines of battle many miles in length.

On the evening of May 7th Grant set out for Spotsylvania Court House, hoping to pass around his adversary's right, but Lee was there before him, and an unparalleled struggle—unparalleled because of the duration, its duration and the individual heroism shown—was the result of that race for position. Comrade Ober's regiment was in that fight, and his brief story of Spotsylvania, where he arrived just after dark, will begin the next article of the series.

FINE FURNISHINGS.

An unusual opportunity is presented for men to secure the newest, noblest and classic personal furnishings, at the new store recently opened of Greene Company at 21 High street and 167 Federal street, near Dewey square, Boston. This is a corner, and the high windows give splendid light for making selections. Mr. Greene has been a resident of Newton for almost 30 years and is an expert haberdasher. His selections of scarfs, shirts, socks, pajamas, gloves, etc., represent the finest productions in those lines, which are all offered at concessionary prices that will meet everyone's expectations.

CHESTNUT HILL HORSE SHOW.

Seventeen classes are in the prize list of the eighth annual open-air Chestnut Hill Horse Show, which will be held on the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club on Tuesday, May 30. Entries will close on May 15. The conditions are similar to those of past years. The show will open at 10.15 A. M. and continue until 5.30 P. M., with an intermission for luncheon. Parking spaces for carriages and automobiles will be available.

There will be two pony classes and a class for harness tandems. Four harness classes are provided, with three for saddlers and a couple for combination horses. The jumpers have three classes and there is also a hunt club class and a military class.

REAL ESTATE.

Through the office of A. L. Barbour & Co. house and land No. 25 Smith Court has been sold to Mr. Charles McCarthy, and lot No. 4 Gilbert St. sold to N. S. Eng who will build residence for own occupancy.

The estate of Mrs. Rowe, No. 37 Shaw St., has been leased to Rev. A. P. Huizinga of New York. Dwelling No. 44 Harris road, rented to Mrs. Bowen, Dwelling No. 6 Lincoln Park rented to Mr. Geo. Hugo and dwelling No. 245 Webster St., rented to Mr. Frank Bernard.

BUFFALO BILL.

Considerable interest has been aroused in this vicinity through the announced appearance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East at Boston May 15th to 20th. Col. Wm. F. Cress, the original and only "Buffalo Bill," will appear in the big exhibition and positively appears at every performance, rain or shine, but this will be his rarest appearance in this section as he is soon to retire. One of the principal points of the red men, in which he took active part, will be pictured in the open-air melodrama. Contrasted with this scene will be an Oriental spectacle which will picture the gorgeous beauties of the Far East, its scenery and people, its pleasures and pastimes, and its strange costumes and customs. Turning again to American history, there will be an Attack Upon an Emigrant Train and A Holiday at "T-E" Ranch. Rossi's Musical Elephants will be a particular feature of the Far East scene, and as an individual feature of the Wild West section of the exhibition Ray Thompson's Trained Western Range Horses will show in feats of grace and equine skill. Sharpshooting by Johnny Baker will be a particularly attractive feature, and a bunch of bucking bronchos will furnish the principal comedy element of a truly exhilarating and strenuous exhibition.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—One of the most sensational novelties ever imported for the B. F. Keith circuit will be introduced in Boston next week. It is called "The Magic Kettle," with which the most extraordinary feats are performed, such as heating water without the aid of fire, burning ice, and a number of other feats that are done in full view of the audience and all of which seem incredible. On the same bill next week will be Bessie Wynn, the beautiful songstress. Still another attraction will be Frank Milton and the De Long Sisters, in a musical comedy called "Twenty Minutes Layover at Alfalfa Junction." Agnes Scott & Harry Keane are also on the bill with a new sketch called "Drifting." Bert Fitzgibbon, the eccentric comedian; Goldsmith & Home, the musical comedians; Inge & Farrell, two pretty girls who are new-comers to Boston; and an extraordinary European transformation company called the Four Charles, will complete one of the strongest bills shown in Boston in a long time.

GOOD WORK.

Efficient work on the part of police officers in the various cities and towns where the Edison Electric Illuminating Company's service is used has resulted in the arrest and conviction of quite a number of rowdies and irresponsible boys breaking electric street lamps. The latest convictions for this crime were in Court at Stoughton last week. Two boys, Arthur Lane and Edward Curran, were sentenced and ordered to make restitution. Clarence Clark was discharged and the cases of Henry McDermott and Joseph Gibbons were continued. The Judge in the case reserved the right to impose further sentence at the end of six months' probation, if necessary.

In several towns, among them Canton and Sharon, boys have been running riot in breaking street lamps. In the eyes of the law this is a very serious offence. Not only is there a severe penalty for interference with the property of an electric lighting company, but Chapter 208, Section 78, of the Laws of Massachusetts, reads in part as follows:—
(Whoever) wilfully, intentionally and without right mars or defaces a building or sign board, or extinguishes a lamp or breaks, destroys or removes a lamp, lamp post railing or post which has been erected on a bridge, sidewalk, public way, court or passage, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than six months or by a fine of not more than fifty dollars."

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has instituted a vigorous campaign to break up this form of depredation. It is extremely dangerous, especially for persons like firemen, milkmen, physicians, etc., who often have to make hurried emergency trips, and who have been accustomed to govern their speed and their direction by certain lamps. If these lamps are out when the emergency call comes, results are likely to be disastrous and perhaps fatal. Last year it cost the Edison Company nearly $10,000 to replace street lamps that had been broken maliciously. Such acts as these lead boys into more serious trouble as they grow up heedless of the rights of others and without respecting the law until, finally, they graduate as members of the "gang," become full fledged hoodlums, a disgrace to their parents and a menace to society. If parents kept a stricter watch over their boys, there would be fewer cases of juvenile crime and general annoyance to the public. Many a mother's heart has been needlessly broken—a sound thrashing administered when the lad began to be wayward would have cured the boy and made a useful man out of him.

THIRD WEEK OF THE POP CONCERTS.

The third week of the POP concerts in Symphony Hall will open on Monday evening, May 15th, with "German" Night. The feature of this program will be the performance of a number of German folk-songs by the Horn Quartet of the Orchestra composed of Messrs. Hess Lorbeer, Hain and Phair. The season is progressing admirably with large patronage, especially of music lovers from the towns surrounding Boston. Stricter attention is given in the box office to all telephone orders for seats and tickets will be held until eight o'clock on the night of the concert.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC.

VOL. XXXIX. - NO. 35.

NEWTON, MASS., FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1911.

TERMS, $2.00 A YEAR.

CIVIC FEDERATION

The annual meeting of the Civic Federation of Newton was held at the Newton Club, Newtonville, May 11th, 1911. The officers of the Federation and representatives from the various Improvement Associations to the number of twenty-seven were present at the dinner.

The following officers were reelected for the ensuing year: President, Charles E. Kelsey, Vice-Presidents, Frank A. Day, Hon. George Hutchinson, Allston Burr, Treasurer, Frederic W. Freeman, Secretary, Harry D. Cabot.

Mr. H. R. Lane of Waban made a report for the Committee which last year had charge of the photographic contest. The results obtained from the contest seem to warrant a repetition of it this season and it was accordingly voted that a committee of five with full powers be appointed by the Chair to conduct a photographic contest similar to the one of last year.

His Honor, the Mayor, was called upon for a few remarks and complimented the Federation and various Improvement Associations on the excellent work which they have done and urged all to cooperate for the best interests of the city.

At the conclusion of the dinner, the President called upon the following gentlemen to make reports in behalf of their respective organizations and districts:— Mr. E. B. Squire, Auburndale; Mr. A. C. Burnham, Newton Centre; Mr. J. A. Gould, Newton Upper Falls; Mr. C. F. Johnson, Jr., Newton Highlands; Mr. Wm. Price, Newtonville; Mr. Geo. M. Angier, Waban; Mr. Chas. E. Gibson, West Newton.

These reports more than justified the existence of the Federation and the Improvement Associations, and did much to prove our right to the title of the "Garden City."

The Mayor then called the attention of the Federation to the condition of the streets in certain districts of the city and stated that owing to the expense incident to oiling the streets the resulting taxes were a burden on certain communities, and recommended this question to the consideration of the Federation. After some further discussion, on motion duly made it was voted that the Chair appoint a committee of three to confer with the Mayor with a view to improving the condition of the streets in such districts and arrange for the payment of the expense incidental thereto as might seem advisable.

The preservation of improvements and the protection of the citizens from the injuries to their property and trees was then brought up for action. A considerable discussion of this matter followed, and on motion duly made it was voted that the Chair appoint a committee with full powers to confer with the Mayor, the Chief of Police and the Judge of the Court with a view to eliminating as far as possible depredation and destruction of property and improvements.

The matter of play grounds in the various districts of Newton and having directors to manage them occupied a prominent place in the business of the meeting. Mr. W. C. Brewer made an extensive report on the history of the Newton Centre playground, and it was the sense of the meeting that the different associations should acquire land for playground purposes and develop the same as necessity and opportunity would permit.

Several complaints were made in regard to speeding autos on Commonwealth Avenue and lack of police protection to pedestrians. No official action was taken on this matter, and it was left for the individuals to register any complaints with the Mayor or Chief of Police.

It was the general opinion of all present that the meeting together of the representatives from the various dis-

THE NEWTON CLUB

Saturday evening last, 13th inst., an interested audience listened to Mr. Henry C. Long who with the aid of stereopticon views showed the vast tonnage that would come to Boston from Canada and the West were its port facilities what they should be and in the opinion of the lecturer what they will be in a few years time.

The lack of proper loading and warehousing capacity was strikingly shown in contrast with Montreal, Santos, Brazil, Buenos Ayres, Valparaiso, Liverpool, Manchester and Rotterdam. In each were found all modern and up to date contrivances for quick transfer from vessel to warehouse or vice versa. The placing of pier warehouses with double tracks on each side and the system of swing cranes, each propelled by its own electric power, was in marked contrast with Boston's one and two story sheds and method of handling, by windlass or hand, its incoming or outgoing packages.

The needs of Boston were well set forth. A new Harbor Board was advocated for the harmonious development of the port. Business now lacking would come if facilities for handling were present. A dry dock of largest size; long piers to permit a vessel discharging and loading by moving only a ship's length; electric cranes, suitable trackage and warehouses and a belt line railway embracing territory within a radius of 20 miles are needed to put us well ahead of any other city in our own country, though only on a par with cities above named.

Our citizens will do well to heartily support any legislation framed to properly secure the utmost development of Boston's neglected opportunities. The cost would be more than met by benefits and increased valuation, rentals, etc.

The lecturer was warmly congratulated on his able presentation of the material. The Club hopes to have another illustrated talk from him in the fall on similar lines.

The finals for Boston Pin Club Championships were rolled between Al. George M. Cox and J. Mervin Allen. They were closely matched and at end of 5 strings Mr. Cox was found to have a margin of 18 pins, thus winning the title.

Books from Mr. Robert Douglas and Mr. L. E. C. Green are acknowledged by the Library Committee.

DEATH OF MR. PICKARD.

News received Monday morning that Mr. George P. Pickard a son of the late Hon. Edward L. Pickard of Auburndale, had committed suicide, by shooting himself in a hotel at Providence R. I. shocked the entire community, where he is well known. Mr. Pickard was a member of the firm of Pickard and Dooner, engaged in the wool business, and business troubles are alleged as the cause of his death. Mr. Pickard was 44 years of age and was born in Lynn, Mass., altho he has lived most of his life in Auburndale. He was a member of the Congregational church and Rev. Dr. W. C. Gordon officiated at the funeral services held yesterday afternoon at his late home on Maple street. He is survived by a widow and one son, Norman. The interment was at Newton cemetery.

Mr. Joseph W. Brine, the Boston representative of Camp Utopia, reports a very bright outlook for the coming season at the camp. Boys are expected from a great many different parts of the United States. At present, there are boys booked from Arizona, Mexico, Tennessee, New York City, etc. Camp Utopia is considered one of the finest boys' summer camps in Canada.

Trials of Newton and the interchange of ideas on matters of improvement would produce very beneficial results in the year to come.

AFTER LONG SERVICE

At the fifty eighth annual meeting of the English High School Association held in the school building, Montgomery street, after the report of the secretary A. H. Gilson, William H. Partridge the treasurer for thirty two years presented his annual report. He made a statement that when he took the office there was about $120 in the treasury and now reported more than eighteen thousand dollars safely and well invested in permanent funds to aid scholars in the school, and that he felt after more than a generation's faithful performance of his trusts that he was entitled to be relieved of his duties. J. B. Clapp of the Silas Peirce Co was chosen treasurer. Clarence H. Carter presented the following resolutions on the past treasurer's retirement:

"The Members of the English High School Association in Annual Meeting on this 10th day of May A. D. 1911, learn with extreme regret that their Treasurer William H. Partridge Esquire feels compelled to relinquish at this time the responsibilities and labors of that office. For thirty two years he has cheerfully assumed these growing responsibilities and most efficiently performed those labors. During that long term of humble service he has seen the funds of the Association grow from almost negligible quantity to a large and creditable fund wisely and safely invested for the benefit of the school and its deserving pupils while we have known and rested secure in that knowledge, that every cent of principal and income has been religiously guarded and accounted for, every expenditure carefully scrutinized. Possessed of experience and good judgment in matters of Finance, accounts, methodical and scrupulously honest, he has been a model Treasurer."

We also appreciate the value of Mr. Partridge's services as a member ex-officio of the Executive Board of the Association. In their labor during all these years he has borne a conspicuous part, giving freely of his time and ever willing to undertake his share and more than his share of the work involved. This is his record as an officer of our Association, a record without parallel in its history.

As a citizen he is equally deserving of our honor. A volunteer in the Civil War. An enthusiastic and consistent advocate of social and political reform the Standard bearer of his party before the voters of our Commonwealth, in every walk of life he has merited and won the regard and respect of his associates. We assure him of our grateful appreciation of his character and of his services and we cordially wish for him many years of contented prosperity and useful life.

Signed by the President, Vice President and Secretary. It is needless to say that the Boys who have been helped financially by the Association last year stand high at Harvard and Dartmouth.

It is needless to add that an appreciation of one while living by his fellow men, is much more timely than when delayed for post mortem expression.

DONATION PARTY.

The annual reception and donation party given by the directors of The Newton Day Nursery Association will be held at Stearns Neighborhood House 281 Watertown street, on the afternoon of Wednesday May 24th from 5 to 5 o'clock.

An exhibition of the work of some of the classes and clubs will be given in Stearns School hall at 3 o'clock.

Donations of money for the repairs lately made of table linen, towels and household supplies will be gratefully received.

All who are interested in Stearns Neighborhood House are cordially invited to be present on this occasion.

WIN TWO GAMES

Newton High won two games this week, the first from the Harvard 2nd nine on Saturday afternoon, 4 to 3 and the second on Tuesday, from Malden High, 5 to 4. Both games were on Clifton Field.

On Saturday Newton did all its scoring in the fourth and fifth innings on clean hitting and good base running. In the eighth inning, when the visitors had scored two runs and had a man on second and third, a difficult fly was hit to center field and was captured by Fripp after a hard run, retiring the side. Fripp played his usually fine game, getting two hits and a sacrifice and stealing a base. The batting of Tucker was also good. Minot, Bartholf and Sullivan played best for the losers.

On Tuesday Cady started in to pitch for the home team, but was later relieved by Whitney, who held the visitors safe the remainder of the game.

Fripp opened the game by reaching first on an error by the catcher, stole second, reached third on Nash's sacrifice and scored on a wild throw to third. Brooks also got to first on an error and scored on a hit by Capt. Sanderson.

The visitors scored two runs in the first inning by clean hitting. Butler of Malden hit the ball over the left field fence for a home run, making one of the longest hits ever made on the grounds.

Fripp played a fine game for the home team, scoring three runs, making six putouts and stealing three bases.

SMITH-EARLE.

The wedding of Miss Edith H. Earle the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Earle of Newton to Mr. Charles W. Smith of Chelsea, took place last week Wednesday evening at the home of the bride on Maple avenue.

The bride wore a gown of pale blue silk and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. Her sister, Mrs. Effie E. Nagel, attended her as matron of honor, while Mr. Charles Connell of Chelsea acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. George S. Butters of the Methodist church of which the bride has long been a member and the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played by Miss Evalyn P. Warren.

ORGAN PROGRAM.

The program of John Hermann Loud's last recital this season in First Baptist church, Newton Centre, next Monday evening is as follows:

MR. FRANK D. FRISBIE DIES AT HOSPITAL AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

MR. FRANK D. FRISBIE.

Mr. Frank Dunlap Frisbie one of the best known residents of the city died Tuesday morning at four o'clock at the Newton Hospital after an illness of less than three weeks with leukaemia. While Mr. Frisbie has been in poor health all winter, his condition was not considered serious until two weeks ago Thursday, and a week ago Saturday he was taken to the Hospital, where he has been unconscious since last Thursday.

Mr. Frisbie was born in Woburn, Mass., Sept. 2, 1867, but has lived in Newton since he was five years of age. He was educated in our public schools and has been engaged in literary pursuits all his life. He was the author of two novels and has written and delivered several lectures. For the past ten years he has been associated with the Graphic and was a past president of its success. He was a past president of the Newtone chapter Sons of the American Revolution, a former secretary and always an active member of the Katahdin Club of Newton, president of his class at Chautauqua, and secretary of the Alumni Association of Chautauqua, a member of J. Wiley Edmunds camp, Sons of Veterans and of the Unitarian Club, one of the organizers and president of the Ward One Republican club and served for many years on the Republican ward and city committee. He was the only son of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Frisbie, who survive him.

The Frisbie home on Centre street was completely filled with Mr. Frisbie's many friends at the funeral services held yesterday afternoon, and the ket was banked with the most beautiful flowers, the last fond tribute which can be paid. The services, which were most simple were in charge of Rev. Harry Lutz pastor of Channing church, assisted by Rev. George S. Butters D. D. of the Methodist church.

Rev. Geo. S. Butters, D. D. said: Our neighbor and friend has served this community well and deserves the honest tributes accorded him on every hand. I speak today as a representative of the Churches of this city to which cause Mr. Frisbie as a reporter gave so much of his time. He belonged to the Church Universal and was ever ready to do all in his power to build up that church. He had many excellent traits of character, but this must be a simple service and my tribute necessarily brief. First of all I wish to speak of his kindness.

It is an honor to any man to be called kind in the midst of the rush and hurry of this busy world, but Frank Frisbie was never too busy to stop to do a favor and this spirit endeared him to all classes in the community. The ministers of this city especially appreciated this, for among his notes there was often something he had clipped which he thought we ought to know and he had taken the pains to save it until he should see the man for whom it was intended. That kindness made him more than a newspaper correspondent, for hundreds of people had come to regard him as one of the helpful assets of Newton.

But a stronger trait was his friendship.

He certainly has shown himself friendly and to all classes of people. He had a great opportunity to be friendly and he counted it a joy to improve that privilege. With all classes, creeds, nationalities he was a friend and the amount of his service was only limited by his opportunity and strength. He had a fine sense of the true ethics of friendship and that sense kept him from the mistakes so commonly made by less thoughtful men in his profession. He had many warm friends and he deserved them all.

The trait that appeals to us most today is his courage.

He has been a sick man for weeks, but he would not give up. He knew that all his strength and courage was needed at home and when urged to give up his work and take a needed rest he felt for the sake of those he loved that he must maintain the even tenor of his way, so that those at home should not know how poorly he really was. The last time he was in our home we spoke of his condition, but he replied "I am not so badly off as I look. My anxiety is for my father who is more poorly than I have ever seen him and I must brace up." That is exactly what he did and all honor to him and every other heroic soul who, for the sake of others, forgets his own ills and comforts and blesses those who need his courage in his own home.

He needs no eulogy in this community. Here are the people who knew and loved him and they have only words of praise. He has had due honor from his fellow citizens, and was worthy of all he received. He was for seven years president of his Chautauqua Class and for a good many years secretary of the Alumni Association of that large body of busy men and women who have been ambitious to continue their study in the midst of the responsibilities of active life. He was mainly, generous, ambitious, and true. He was a most devoted son, a faithful citizen, a kind neighbor and a broad-minded follower of Christ. He did much for his city and Newton honors him today.

The body was taken to Mt. Auburn cemetery for cremation.

IN MEMORIAM.

With the passing into the higher life of Frank D. Frisbie hundreds of people in all the different villages of this community have experienced a personal loss. It was one of the characteristics of his nature to make friends and once a friend always one with bright, genial "Frank" for so we all called him. It may be truthfully said of him that he left no enemies behind him for to be an enemy to him would be an impossibility. To us who have been associated with him in every day life perhaps his death means more than to other of his friends. We shall miss him. Miss him more and more as the days go past and his cheery smile and hearty hand clasp are missing. Full of charity toward others, never speaking or doing ought but good, and at the same time as unostentatious as possible "Frank" was one of the kind who do good by stealth and never wished "the left hand to know what the right hand did." For seven odd years it has been my privilege to know him, and he was always the same. Possibly the only way to tell his character in a word is the fact that he was an "old fashioned gentleman" and that expression carries with it a great deal more than empty words. "God surely must be kind to him, he was so good."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

After several games which have ended seriously for the local Y. M. C. A. team, it came into its own last Saturday afternoon when it defeated the strong Allston Baraca's 21-4. This is the first game that the Allston team has lost, but it was owing to the good pitching of Belding and the heavy hitting of the Newton team, especially that of Halliday who got five hits in five times at the bat, all of which were timely and aided in the run getting. The other heavy hitters were Holmes who connected with a three base hit, and John Hines. The fielding of the Newton team was fast and hard. Next Saturday they will play the Washburn-Crosby team on the North Diamond.

The Association now has a strong team and it deserves the support of all those interested in Association baseball.

An interesting series closed Saturday morning when the "Gym" boys defeated the "Game" boys

Shoe Aristocracy Banished

The "Goodyear Welt" System of shoemaking machines—sixty of them—which reproduce the handicraft of the old-time shoemaker—has banished shoe aristocracy from the land—driven it out forever.

They have leveled to a common plane the footwear of an entire nation. These marvelous machines—intricate and sensitive—utilize the intelligence of skilled operators in the production of shoes that are durable and comfortable as if hand-sewed, but at only one-third the cost.

This economy permits every man, woman and child to enjoy the wonderful benefits distributed by the "Goodyear Welt" shoemaking machines. The foremost shoe manufacturers of the world employ this method in their plants.

 shoes for men, women, boys, girls and children are made of solid leather—they must be—for only substantial leather can be worked on these fast operating machines. Five hundred lock-stitches a minute are inserted, close, rapid and strong. Obviously cheap leather or inferior leather cannot withstand the speed of such swift flying needles. Thus "Goodyear Welt" is always a guarantee of solid, real leather. It is your insurance of wearing quality. Even the War Department recognizes this feature when it specifies the rapid Goodyear stitching as its standard in shoe contracts for the soldiers.

The feet of the Army are clad in Goodyear Welts. Shoes made by this method can withstand the severest marches. And they afford the greatest comfort. For these wonderful machines stitch the welt inside and upper together in a seam that doesn't penetrate the inside of the shoe. Even the heavy outsole is lock-stitched to this welt with the seam entirely around the outer edge. The shoe is left smooth inside. Comfort is assured the soldier on his longest march.

Get this comfort for yourself. Just send us your name and address. Do it today. BOARD OF ALDERMEN

With the return of President Jones, the session of the aldermen last Monday evening resumed its former appearance of dull routine. Only one incident took place which showed that the proceedings were being carefully followed. An order authorizing the mayor to arrange for renting the old armory had been passed without question, but later Alderman Calkins had it reconsidered, found that no member of the board knew anything about it, and the entire matter was then referred to a committee.

There were many hearings assigned for the evening, the Edison Co. asking for underground conduits in Commonwealth ave., and for locations in Forest ave., Vernon st., Hollis st., and Hammond st., the Telephone Co. asked for attachments on Dudley road, Jackson st., Arthur P. Friend, Prince st., and F. W. Brown, Berkeley st., asked for gasoline licenses, and there were hearings on laying concrete sidewalks under the letterment act on Arlington st., Marlboro st., and for changing the street lines of Church and Bellevue streets. On the matter of poles on Forest st., Mr. R. W. Ness spoke in favor. Later the hearing was reopened and Prof. W. L. Puffer and Mr. F. S. Retan opposed the location stating that Mr. Ness could be reached in another way and that the electric wires in the street would destroy some beautiful and valuable trees. On the matter of sidewalks on Marlboro st., Messrs. R. W. Bartlett, R. C. Binney and H. C. Wiggin spoke earnestly in favor and Alderman Calkins stated that Mrs. Fellows wished to oppose the matter.

The board of health asked for a sewer in Boylston road and E. W. Bradford filed a petition for the same. Other petitions received were from H. H. Keith for appointment as weigher of coal, Simon Morrell for wagon and liquor transportation permit, Wellington st. for sewer off Homer st., W. A. Knowlton, Hancock st., E. F. Russ, Loring st., J. D. Bennett, Prescott st., A. F. Ranlett, Central st., Ellery Peabody, Perkins st., J. A. Cahill, Boylston st., J. R. Prescott, Linwood ave., L. W. Arnold, Waban ave., and W. S. Place, Chestnut and Beacon sts., all for street sprinkling, S. A. Corbett for common victualler license, W. A. Fogwill for sewer in Greenough st., J. D. Bennett for concrete sidewalk, Prescott st., C. A. Clark for concrete sidewalk, Floral st., J. J. Fitzpatrick for concrete sidewalk, Charles st., Mary E. Fanning for damages on account of drainage, Pise st., F. L. Richardson for improvement of Nonantum square and of the N. & W. Gas Light Co. to open certain streets for laying gas mains.

Petitions of A. Dudley Dowd and Samuel W. Tucker for renewal of victualler licenses, of Anna E. Wallace to give a private school exhibition May 24 and of Leander Sampson and Angus McDonald for wagon licenses were granted.

The invitation of Charles Ward Post G. A. R. to attend the exercises of Memorial day was accepted.

On recommendation of committees, $37,446.67 was granted for city expenses to June 15, $308 authorized for purchase of adding machine for city auditor, $633 authorized for maintenance of bathhouses, $6000 appropriated for purchase of the Froebel school property.

ty, street sprinkling ordered on Green st., Grove st., Hancock st., Central st., Concord st., Linwood ave., and Loring st., sewer authorized in Centre st., water mains ordered laid in Bridges ave., Gasharri ave., Kent road, Nesheboe road, and Sheridan st., street lines of Church and Bellevue streets changed near N. M. C. A. building, hearings ordered June 5 on concrete sidewalks under betterment act on Margin st. and Floral st., leave to withdraw given on petitions for street sprinkling on Webster st., to Barnet Ruff for license to sell second hand articles, and Espanzo Marini for liquor transportation permit, a common victualler license granted R. A. Cooper, and minor's licenses granted Fred and Frank Avantaggio, pole location on Vernon st. granted the Edison Co., N. & W. Gas Light Co. granted permission to open certain streets for laying gas mains, the mayor authorized to sell certain land owned by the city, and the City Engineer directed to prepare plans for a public convenience station at Nonantum Square.

Alderman Moore presented the gift of 21,000 square feet of land near Winchester street, Newton Highlands, representing about $3,000 in value to be used as a public playground and the gift was accepted. Alderman Moore stated that a further gift was contemplated as soon as certain signatures could be obtained, making a tract of about 9 and one half acres. He asked for prompt action in order that the land might be made available the present season.

An order was also introduced and referred, changing the present water rates.

The board adjourned at 8.58.

Generally it is all right to take things as they come, but it is dangerous to take a goat that way.

THEATRES

Castle Square Theatre—Sheridan's famous comedy, "The Rivals" will be given at the Castle Square next week. There is a fund of merriment in this play that is inexhaustible, and in every character it abounds in agile wit and clever sayings. It is a play to test the skill of any company of players, and Mr. Craig and his associates will triumph in it as they triumphed last season. Its role of Rob Acres, a country squire who although a coward at heart is inveigled into a duel with the audacious Sir Lucius O'Trigger is a character to command the skill of any clever comedian. In this part Donald Meek made a distinct success last season, and he will reappear in it before Castle Square audiences after an absence of several months. "The Rivals" can be given for a period of only one week.

B. F. Keith's Theatre—What promises to be in many respects the most pretentious bill of the year is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. It is headed by Irene Franklin, who is by common consent the greatest character singer now on the stage, and her song, "Redhead" will be remembered for all time. J. C. Nugent, the western actor, and a splendid company will appear in a comedy called "The Squarer." There will also be Stepp, Mehlinger & King, three boys from the western coast who have created a sensation in New York with their rag-time singing, piano-playing and impersonations. The week will also mark the first appearance in vaudeville of Anton Torelli, unquestionably the greatest double bass player in the world. Other features will be Hill & Sylvani, balancers; Paul LaCroix, "the man with the hats"; Gordon Brothers, singers and dancers; and La Toy Brothers, comedy acrobats.

Colonial Theatre—Opening at the Colonial Theatre on Monday evening, May 22, 1911, Mr. Ralph Herz will appear as a star in "Dr. De Luxe" under the direction of Joseph H. Gaites who has been giving to Boston such excellent

If All Housekeepers Knew the Advantages of the

Crawford Ranges

few others would be sold

In the saving of time, trouble and labor and in superior cooking ability, no other range can compare with them.

The Single Damper (patented) is the only perfect fire and oven control; one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," and the range does the rest.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. One Hod for ashes, instead of the old, clumsy ash pan; the other Hod for coal.

The Oven with its cup-joint flues is heated all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots."

The Patented Grates save trouble and money.

Auxiliary Gas Ranges at the end or above the range, if desired.

To the Prospective Buyer

It is most advantageous to list one's requirements with a reliable real estate broker, the obvious reasons are: In a reliable, up to date real estate office great numbers and varieties of properties are listed at all times, and clerks are paid to keep people posted on whatever properties that seem to be what a client would consider. Another advantage of the agent is that many people will list highly desirable properties with a real estate broker when they would not let it be generally known that they were desirous of selling. My lists are at the service of the buyer.

CHILD WELFARE CONFERENCE.

A conference on Child Welfare was held by the department of Industrial and Social Conditions of the State Federation at Worcester at the Woman's Club House on Friday, May fifth. While there was not the attendance that the conference merited a goodly number of delegates went up from the clubs of Greater Boston and many from neighboring towns as far as Springfield were in attendance. The Worcester women were indefatigable in their efforts to make it pleasant for their guests and everything was done to make the meeting a success. What was lacking in numbers was fully made up in interest and enthusiasm.

The meeting was called to order by Miss George A. Bacon, president of the Federation and a member of the hostess club. Mrs. Florence S. Stocomb, president of the Worcester Woman's Club, presented the greetings to Worcester and Miss Bacon responded.

Mrs. Caroline S. Atherton of Roxbury, a member of the committee who prepared and sent out the Questionnaire on Child Welfare, was the first speaker of the morning and explained some points which have been misunderstood in this questionnaire. Mrs. Atherton took her hearers back to the address of Rahbi Wise at the mid-winter meeting and his question "Is it well with the child?" and his conclusion "Then it is well with you."

The committee she said, had been encouraged to try this method of obtaining data from the good results of a similar set sent out by the Education department several years ago. It is necessary to get a knowledge of conditions before suggesting any subject for study of the clubs. In replying to some criticisms which have been made of the questions, she said that it is necessary to particularize before you can generalize. No child's name is to be used and only approximate figures are meant when it comes to income and expenses. One set of questions is to be answered for the same child all the way through and it is hoped that the clubs will pick out children in different walks of life. One club had replied "We have no shins." Data concerning the children of the well to do and the rich is needed just as much as that of the poor. This is something Boston can not do nor Worcester nor the committee each working separately, but all together can. The returns will be of great value.

Dr. Amy E. Tanner, who assisted in the preparation of the questionnaire, is connected with Clark University. She spoke on "The Use and Abuse of the Questionnaire." She said that this sort of an investigation is something which has never been attempted before and expressed the opinion that the Federation is rendering great service in getting information along this line. Miss Miriam F. Witherspoon, secretary of the Worcester Associated Charities, told of Worcester child-welfare conferences.

—The May Party given by the Sewing Circle of the Universalist church in Temple hall last Saturday was under the management of Mrs. J. L. Atwood, and was a great success. Mrs. Paul Revere Knight conducted the entertainment consisting of singing and fancy dancing. There was a Dutch dance by the Misses Cady, King, Soden and Baker. Miss Mildred Macomber danced an Italian Tarantelle with piano accompaniment by Miss Frances Payne.

—The Mt. Ida Council, No. 1247 Royal Arcanum will hold its next meeting May 22nd at seven o'clock in Denison hall. At the close of the business meeting there will be an entertainment, smoker and social good time. The prizes in the bowling contest will be presented. It being the nearest meeting to Memorial Day, the entertainment will be in keeping with the memories of the season. Chas. Ward Post 62 G. A. R. and J. Wiley Edmunds Camp 31, S. O. V. have been invited to attend. The speaker of the evening will be Bro. Ernest E. Hobson, Grand Regent of Massachusetts.

which have been held in that city, and of the Children's Institute under the direction of Clark University and of all the material available there.

During the intermission after luncheon there was opportunity to look around the commodious clubhouse and to visit the Art Museum close by.

At the afternoon session two phases of the subject were presented by experts, Miss Alice L. Higgins, general secretary of the Boston Associated Charities, spoke on "The Child and the Home," and Philip Davis, supervisor of licensed minors of Boston, on "The Child and the Street."

Miss Higgins in opening her address referred to the vast number of nationalities comprised in the population of Worcester. The making of the Americans of tomorrow or the Americanizing of the immigrants is the problem of the social worker. Customs and prejudices rule the world. The social worker should be like the interpreter who knows both languages. Too often they know only one people and this fact is nothing short of a social crime. They should be the custodians of the land from which the immigrants come in order to understand them and to help them to become Americans. The family is much less strong here than it was where it came from. Carelessness here may take the place of what was care there. Miss Higgins cited cases where the New England woman with her Puritanical ancestry utterly fails to comprehend the ways of the foreigner. A danger which should be avoided is that of belittling the parents in the children's eyes. Lane Adams has appreciated that and for the purpose of enhancing the children's estimate of their mothers' has collected in her Social Museum samples of the beautiful handiwork of the women from the different countries and points to it as something which our women cannot do.

The question of assimilation, said Miss Higgins, is a tragic one. The social worker is confronted with a new view of ethics. In Syria it is no crime for the children to beg, so these people still regard it when they come to this country. The investigator will go to the home and find the mother gone and nothing in the house, so concludes it to be a case of vast poverty, while very likely the father of the family is working hard to support his family. The family has merely been carrying on in this country the customs of the one from which they came. She urged her hearers to get into touch with the race leaders and not to judge by specific cases, and advocated the pensioning of widows that they may keep their families together instead of turning them out upon the community. Many of these foreigners have become intoxicated with the idea of liberty. We don't know half enough of the heroes of other races. We can make Americans through the kinship of ideals and heroes.

In his address Mr. Philip Davis, who is by the way a Russian Jew, said that the street is steadily piling on vices upon vices with which we shall have to deal later. New York has given up the job as hopeless. The time to deal with the street problem is before it gets beyond us. Among the diseases which originate on the street he mentioned "trolleyitis," the jumping off and on cars, "moneyitis," "matching pennies," the moving picture shows, being out late nights and the smoking habit. The children have one conductor for the home, another for the school and still another for the street and the result is a peculiar child. There is no need of forbidding the selling of tobacco to children. They get all they want from half-used cigarettes picked up from the street. The manufacturers know how to cater to the desires of the small boy with their pictures of base ball players and other "heroes." The Anti-Cigarette League will accomplish little with its didactic literature. Let them follow the example of the tobacco dealers and give the boys the sort of thing they crave and they will accomplish much more.

The street is an open book, but he wanted to call attention to a form of life among city children which needs to be modified up a healthy and useful situation. The boys regard the street as No Man's Land where they can do anything they like without check or hindrance. They take certain liberties which they can't have anywhere else. The street as an institution is unknown in Europe and is peculiarly a city institution. It is necessary to make all children feel that life on the street is as carefully supervised as in the school or in the home and that there is as kindly an eye watching over them as in school or at home. And it is disastrous to settle down to the conviction that the present street or the present home are going to stay as they are. At present the street is not a fit place for the bringing up of the children. In reply to questions he mentioned some remedies as the night messenger bill, the curfew law, the fact that only children convicted of crime are able to get the sort of practical school that many desire, the Children's Bureau bill, plenty of playgrounds. Many of these measures have been "hung up" and "Why?" This was the question he put to the club women to find the answer. He felt that no home can possibly be as bad as the street. Of the curfew he felt that it is important for setting a standard for the children and the parents.

Miss Higgins asked the privilege of replying to Mr. Davis's "Why?" and said that it lies with our fathers and husbands and brothers, it is a question of taxes and it depends upon us to make them see that it is an economical and wise investment.

The many mourners at the funeral services yesterday for Mr. Frank D. Frisbie, testified in no uncertain manner to the love and esteem he had won in all our hearts. I feel the loss so keenly, after many years of close and intimate association with him, that words are inadequate to express my sorrow and grief. I have known Frank Frisbie, boy and man for the past thirty years, and it is one of his chief characteristics that during that long period, I never heard him speak ill of any one. He invariably looked for the best in every one and everything, and he naturally allied himself with those things which "work together for good." He was interested in the church and other organizations for the benefit of humanity, and gave them loyal and devoted service. Every thing he undertook was marked with unusual faithfulness and he was conscientious to the highest degree, giving the most painstaking care to the smallest details. As a comrade and friend, he was always loyal, always sincere, always straight-forward and frank, and the community is vastly poorer by his untimely death.

Some one has aptly said that while we all may not be leaders, we all of us can do our full duty as followers. Our friend, who has just passed from us, in the first prime of manhood, was doing his full duty in the ranks of humanity, and well merits the welcome of his Master. "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of Thy Lord."

The criticism in our last issue as to the train service on the B. & N. B. between 4:45 and 5:10 P. M. is hardly justified, if careful investigation is made of the facts in the case. Of course, if we proceed on the theory that only Newton patrons are to be consulted, it is useless to go any farther, but if it is recognized that other persons are entitled to train service at this busy time of the day, the facts are as follows: The Riverside train leaves at 4:45, the Buffalo express at 4:50, an American express train at 4:52, the Circuit train at 4:55 a Worcester train at 5:00 and one for South Framingham at 5:05. As the railroad commissioners required five minutes clearance on all passenger trains leaving the South Station, it would seem as if the demand for additional trains to Newton during that period, is unreasonable.

It is most gratifying after many years of harping upon the self evident facts in our water department, to have an order introduced into the aldermen, to reduce the water rates. If this order is adopted it will reduce the present rate per 1000 gallons from 35 to 30 cents, the minimum rate from $10 per year to $9 and the faucet rate from $6 to $4.50, saving the water consumers on the present basis of consumption about $18,000 per annum.

LUNCHEON TO GENERAL FEDERATION PRESIDENT.

Newton is to be honored by a visit from Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, during the last three days of May, when she will be entertained by Mrs. Alvin R. Bailey. The Newton Federation is arranging a luncheon in Mrs. Moore's honor to be given at the Newton Club on Wednesday, May 31 at 1:30. The affair is open to all club women and the tickets, at $1.50 each, may be obtained from the presidents of the various clubs. As it is many years since a president of the General Federation has visited Newton, it is hoped that many women will come out to do her honor.

WOMEN'S CLUBS NEWS

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

This issue of the Graphic contains an account of the closing of the series of department conferences of the State Federation, that of the department of Industrial and Social Conditions. In looking back over these conferences this last was in many ways one of the best of the series. The growth in value and in popularity of the conferences marks one of the great advances which have been made by the Federation during the present administration. More and more, too, are the clubs co-operating, which is adding strength and definiteness to the work. There is, however, one thing to be guarded against, and that is, the danger of overdoing the conferences. Those which have been most successful have been the departments which have either not held regular conferences before or which have entered upon some new field of work. It will not be possible to keep them all up to the highest standard if each department holds a conference every year. There cannot be of necessity a great deal new to present from one season to the next. Might it not be better for a committee to skip a year once in a while?

Another point which the chairmen should bear in mind, and that is, that there is a difference between a conference and a meeting. Occasionally the program has been crowded full with speakers, so that no time or very little was left for the free discussion which a meeting should give. The feeling of haste often drives all questions from people's minds and the result has been a most interesting program meeting, but not a conference in the real sense of the term. A good example of the fact that women will talk when they have something to say was shown at the last Presidents' conference when so many had something to give that there was not time for all who wished to speak. And these were not women who had been asked beforehand to speak. Long live the conferences, but make sure they are going to be conferences!

The club women of Newton are reminded of the annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation to be held at New Bedford on May 24, 25 and 26. Train leaves South Station on Wednesday at 12:50 P. M. There will be an organ recital that afternoon at five in the Rogers Memorial Church, Fairhaven, and an informal reception in the Old Dartmouth Historical Society Building at eight o'clock.

The convention proper opens on Thursday morning at eleven and will continue through that day and Friday, the election of officers coming on Friday morning. Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation will be present on Thursday and Miss Alice Lakey of New Jersey will address the meeting on Friday.

The train at 8:30 on Thursday will reach New Bedford in time for the opening of the convention. Owing to railroad complications it has been impossible to secure the special rates previously announced, but the committee on meetings advises the use of mileage or trip tickets.

At the meeting of the executive board of the Newton Federation on Monday morning there was not much of general interest. Mrs. B. E. Taylor will continue as chairman of the Social Service committee and Mrs. Luther Woodward as chairman of the Social committee. Mrs. L. S. Drake of the Social Science Club will act as chairman of the Education committee. A committee will be appointed to consider carefully the matter of a pageant and report at the first meeting in October. It is very necessary for the corresponding secretary to have the list of new delegates from each club that the annual leaflet may be prepared.

Club presidents are requested to see that the information is sent as soon as possible to Mrs. Bernard Early, 2322 Washington Street, Lower Falls.

The class in Civil Service Reform, which is open to members of Federated clubs, will hold its last session at the Boston Public Library on Saturday morning May 20, at 10:30.

RECEPTION TO PASTOR.

This is Our Specialty

This is an age of specialists, and the most efficient service in any particular is given by men who have had a lot of experience in that line. The specialty of this bank is handling the banking business of wholesalers and jobbers in shoe, leather, wool, textile and other lines. While we do a general banking business and are fully equipped for it, we are prepared to give special attention to the banking needs of the lines of trade above mentioned. The convenience of our location with reference to those branches of business is also a strong argument in favor of our ability to give especially good service in the direction indicated.

THE NEW WAY

Which?

The old way of removing paint taxes your strength to the limit—burning, sanding, discoloring and charring the woodwork, causing annoyance to everybody in your neighborhood, raising disagreeable odors, and spending wasteful hours and money on the job. Try the new way, use

BOSTON SLOW SETTING PAINT and VARNISH REMOVER

It means less labor, saves money. It dissolves the paint, varnish or shellac, no matter how tough or old it is, and KEEPS IT SOFT so you can easily scrape it off without injuring the woodwork.

If you don't find Boston Paint and Varnish Remover far more satisfactory in every way than the old paint burner—we will refund the money you paid for a trial can.

STORIES OF THE WAR

AS TOLD BY MEMBERS OF CHAS. WARD POST

"The battlefields of the Wilderness and Spotsylvania Court House," continued Comrade Oher, of the 31st Maine, "were so deeply wooded that I really saw comparatively nothing except in the limited space which my company occupied. I could not see the whole of even my own regiment at the battle of the Wilderness. At Spotsylvania we supported other troops and were in reserve until the night of May 11th, when we were placed on the firing line: I was detailed for picket and stood until midnight in a pouring rain, with all the other comforts such as mud, chills and fever, a bad cough and lack of food. Before daybreak we were in line, then marched down a hill and jumped either the Po or the Nye river, I was never quite sure which—three streams, the Matt, the Po and the Nye, form the Mattaponi river, just below—it was, I do know, however, that I did not succeed in reaching the opposite bank when I jumped and went in up to my middle. I climbed out, with my long-legged boots full of water, and these were not taken off until I reached the hospital in Washington.

"Our regiment then formed and went up in front of the 'Bloody Angle,' to support Gen. Hancock's charge, where he captured so many prisoners and guns on the morning of May 12th, 1864. A heavy fog covered the low land delaying the charge until 4.30 o'clock before it was light enough to pick our way over through the many obstructions. Gen. Edward Johnson, who commanded a division in Ewell's corps, was taken prisoner, and Hancock put out his hand to greet that gentleman whom he had known at West Point. The captured officer said he would not 'shake the hand of a Yankee,' whereupon the Union soldier replied that he would not have offered his hand under other conditions. Our regiment was in front of Lane's brigade of Hill's corps, at Hancock's left. About noon I was wounded in the left arm, under the most terrific musketry fire I had experienced or could conceive of. I went back to the Spotsylvania Court House where there were ambulances for the most severely wounded: the others were told to walk to Fredericksburg and from there to Bell Plain, where they could take boat for Washington. There were a dozen or more surgeons at a rough board bench cutting off legs and arms, and a man was carrying the severed limbs away in a wheelbarrow.

"I went up on the scaffold of a barn near by, made a bed of some hay and was soon at peace with the world, even with the man who shot me. Nor did I awaken until after sunrise the next morning. Then I started for Fredericksburg, following the procession of wounded soldiers. As we turned out of the woods into the roadway I saw the orderly sergeant and another member of my company, who was the regimental clerk; the sergeant was so cramped with rheumatism from the wet weather that he was unable to do duty. They had a large piece of ox liver and fried me all I could eat, no small quantity, as I had not eaten a mouthful for two days. I then proceeded to Fredericksburg, reaching there about 4 in the afternoon, and staid in the brick building on Myer's Heights; it had many breaks and holes from cannon fired at the great battle fought under Burnside in 1862. I do not wonder that the loss then was so heavy. I believe one man entrenched on those heights could kill ten before they reached him. The houses were mostly vacant, as the citizens followed in the rear of Lee's army, going to their friends in Richmond, Petersburg and other places.

"The next morning I walked with the throng of wounded down the heights of Fredericksburg, across the level plain to the Rapidan river, crossing by a pontoon bridge, and so on to Bell Plain, where we took the boat which had brought up the 1st Maine and 1st Massachusetts Heavy artillery regiments. Thus find about doing duty in the foris at the capital, but were now changed to infantry, and they soon got their bloody baptisms of battle at Spotsylvania. They had enormous knapsacks, shoe brushes, pans and kettles tied on, but soon put them off. A big valley, or ravine, here was packed full of confederate prisoners, captured at the Wilderness and at Spotsylvania. We reached Washington the next morning, and Mt. Pleasant hospital, after a bath, clean clothes and plenty of good food, seemed heaven indeed."

The confederate capital was still

Grant's objective, and he proposed to advance on it by direct overland route, while Gen. Ben. Butler, moving from Fortress Monroe up the river James, was to secure a point at its junction with the Appomattox from which to operate on the southern communications. Several engagements followed this movement of Butler, and in a short while the "outlaw," as he had been proclaimed by the Confederate government, because of his conduct at New Orleans, found himself and army on a rather small neck of land formed by the winding river, and in this cul de sac he was held, "bottled up," by Beauregard. This particular attempt of the Confederate general brought on a series of actions rising almost to the severity of pitched battles, but finally Beauregard was at liberty to detach nearly half his force to the assistance of Lee. Comrade George Hill, of Newton, who served in company A, 24th Massachusetts infantry, was in these engagements and he told the Post some of his experiences of that campaign. His story will begin in the next article of the series.

MEMORIAL WINDOW DEDICATED

Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, minister of the West Newton Unitarian Church, preached on "The Memory of the Just is Blessed," at an impressive service held there Sunday afternoon. The congregation assembled to participate in the dedication of a beautiful window placed in the east wall of the building as a memorial to the late Rev. Francis Tiffany, for seventeen years minister of this congregation.

In the course of his sermon, Mr. Jaynes said: "He was not what is called a popular preacher. He did not understand the art of drawing crowds. But he knew how to challenge the trained mind and to charm the soul that rejoiced in the dips and swirls of strong-winged flight. He was poet, philosopher, painter, satirist, prophet, philanthropist, all in one. His preaching was a mental tonic, a guide to the high places of moral vision and a welcome help toward a sane, brave, cheerful meeting of life's troubles and difficulties.

"He possessed an exceptional power of imagination. We called him original and were startled at his strange interpretations; but what he saw was not fanciful. He had simply passed over the commonplace and had gone further and deeper than many were able to go.

"And how rich he was! I never knew another who was so opulent in literary and historic resources and who so easily made the best things in the past serve his need. I have seen him take a naked little idea, seemingly of plebeian birth, trace its lineage back through noble lines, clothe it with jewelled garments drawn from the literary wardrobes of other days, until I felt as though I were in the presence of royalty itself.

"How he loved truth! How he hated sham and with what ease he pricked its little vanities or with fiery invective scorched its baser forms. He smoothed my way and never caused me one pang of sorrow or pain. And now in your behalf I accept this gift from the hands of the donors, and we jointly dedicate it to the memory of him who served God by serving his fellowmen by enriching their minds and deepening their devotion to high ideals. We place it there beside the memorial of her who shared with him in every service of his ministry, and in whose face he, too saw the Eternal."

The window, which is beside the corbel, a memorial to Esther Alison Tiffany, the minister's wife, is in three sections and is a symbolical design, portraying the fine arts paying tribute to the sentiment of religion. The memorial is the gift of former parishioners.

The parade will start from the corner of Centre street and Centre place, passing through Hall street and up Washington street to Harvard street, Washington street to Harvard street, Washington Park to Walnut street to Cemetery.

Flags should be flown at half mast until noon, after which they should be at mast head.

LASELL SEMINARY.

The annual concert of the Lasell Glee Club was held last Saturday evening in the gymnasium and was attended by several hundred friends and relations of the young ladies. The stage was prettily decorated with palms. The choral singing of the young ladies was unusually good, and there were several duets by the Misses Miriam Flynn and Agnes Adelsdorf which were well received. Miss Ida Hammond and Miss Eleanor Hammond sang several duets which won applause. Miss Marion Orlway was the accompanist and the leader was Miss Miriam Flynn.

The members of the Glee Club who took part in the concert were: president, Marion Shinn; vice-president, Mary Goodwillie; director, Miss Goodrich; treasurer, Dorris H. Powers; business manager, Edith F. Waller; first sopranos, Helen E. Scott, Ruth Graham, Vivian Cooke, Edith Waller; first altos, Doris Powers, Virginia Lee, Florence Poston, Mary Goodwillie, Florence Myers; second sopranos, Marion Shinn, Eleanor Hammond, Ida Hammond, Agnes Adelsdorf, Genevieve Bettcher, Bernice Lincoln; second altos, Edessa Warren, Alma Bunch, Lois Hammond, Vera Bradley, Gertrude Tingley, Genevieve Evans.

The commencement week exercises will begin tomorrow when the annual drill of the battalion will take place at 3 P. M. The following is the rest of the program: May 29, 9.30 A. M., River Day; May 31, 7.45, Commencement concert; June 1, 3 to 5 P. M., art exhibit and household economics exhibition; June 3, 8 P. M., senior reception; June 4, 10.45 A. M. sermon before the graduating class by the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in the Congregational church; 6.15, Commencement vespers; Monday, June 5, 7.45, Class day exercises, cards necessary; June 6, 10.45 A. M., Commencement exercises in the Congregational church, with address by former Governor John D. Long; 12.30 P. M., singing in the crows nest; 2.30 P. M., reunion of the alumnae and old girls.

The annual outdoor fete of the Lasell seminary missionary society was held Monday evening on the campus of the seminary and which was prettily decorated with the colors of the different classes. The proceeds of the sales will be devoted to various charitable organizations in Boston and a portion will be used for foreign missions.

Each class had charge of a table, the seniors having the salad and sandwiches; the juniors, the home made candy; the sophomores, the ice cream and strawberries; the specials, the musical program; the freshman, the lemonade, and the preparatory students the peanuts. In the crows nest a fortune telling booth was conducted.

An interesting part of the program was the concert given in the gymnasium by the young women. Aided by an old bed spring as a harp, a clothes basket and stick as a bass violin, a tin kettle as a drum, the students gave a number of selections which proved very amusing.

BAD ACCIDENT

A serious automobile accident took place Saturday evening about six o'clock near the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Grant avenue, Newton Centre, when a car owned by Kenneth H. Lewis of Beverly Farms and operated by Mr. Lewis, named Kawano, struck an electric light pole, throwing out the driver and seriously injuring him, and demolishing the car beyond repair.

At the time of the accident Kawano was being instructed to operate the auto by Frank Milne of Boston, in whose care Mr. Lewis placed his car, when he left the city a short time ago for a trip to Maine, with the instructions to show his butler how to operate and repair the car.

He was driving along Commonwealth avenue in the direction of Newtonville, at a fairly fast rate of speed down the hill, when he moved over to the edge of the road to make room for an approaching machine. As he did so, he lost control of the machine, sending it crashing into an electric light pole, Kawano was thrown over the wheel, striking his head against the pole and receiving a compound fracture of the skull. The other occupants of the car, Frank Milne, the instructor, and his son, Frank, Jr., who was in the rumble seat, were thrown to the ground, but escaped with a few scratches. Kawano was taken to the Newton hospital where he remained unconscious for several hours.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. George C. Dunne, a resident of Newton for many years, died suddenly Tuesday evening at his home on Washington street, Hunnewell hill, from an attack of angina pectoris. Mr. Dunne, who had not felt well all that day, passed away at about 10 o'clock. He was apparently in normal health at ten minutes of ten o'clock and at ten o'clock he had passed away. Mr. Dunne was a native of Bathurst, N. B., and was 61 years of age. He resided for many years on Boyd street, just over the Watertown line, and was active in Watertown politics for some years. He was the leader in the agitation to annex the south side of Watertown to Newton. Mr. Dunne was one of the founders and always retained an intense interest in the Newton Y. M. C. A. He was deeply interested in Eliot church and was one of its active workers. He was a member of Dalhousie Lodge of Masons.

Mr. Dunne was the Boston manager of the Portland Stone Ware Co. and was well known in business circles. On last fall he purchased the house on Hunnewell hill in which he died.

He is survived by a widow, one son, Mr. Winslow A. Dunne and two daughters, Miss Olive and Miss Pauline Dunne.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon from his late home 159 Washington street.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL MEET.

The Newton Grammar School Athletic Meet will be held on the Newton Centre Playground tomorrow at 9.00 A. M. The events will be as follows:

Heavyweight Class, 100 yard dash, 8 lb shot-put, High Jump, Broad Jump, 880 yard Relay.

Middleweight Class, 75 yd dash, Broad Jump, High Jump, 440 yd. Relay.

Over 100 boys from all grammar schools of Newton are entered.

LADIES NIGHT.

The Newton Boat Club will hold a ladies night this evening and an attractive entertainment has been arranged. The usual Saturday night concerts will be held thruout the month of June.

GARDEN FETE

The Garden Fete which is to be given on June first on the grounds of Mr. Wm. H. Coolidge's beautiful estate 65 Gray Cliff road, Newton Centre, will be held from two until six in the afternoon and from seven until ten in the evening.

The many afternoon attractions include fortune tellers, clowns, grubs, music, booths of fancy and useful articles, cake, ice cream, candy and popcorn. Each booth is in charge of a competent committee which has arranged special attractions appropriate to each booth. One of the unique features of the fete will be the children's table, which is to be entirely supplied by the children of Newton Centre who have worked with great interest in this worthy cause.

A musicale has been arranged for the evening and the program cannot fail to attract great interest as it includes artists who have delighted Mother's Rest audiences heretofore.

There will be solo and group dances, by Miss Lillian Harrington and a group of young ladies, violin solos by Mrs. S. Harold Greene, songs by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Farwell, Miss Sanford, Mr. A. T. Beatey, and solo dances by Miss Wilhelmina Simpson.

The fete is arranged for the benefit of the Mothers Rest Association by its finance committee.

OPEN HOUSE DAY.

Saturday, May 20 was Open House Day at Llewysac Lodge, in Bedford, and proved an ideal day for such a purpose. Hundreds motored out from surrounding suburbs, Newton being represented by Miss Whiting who in her car took Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Eastman and Miss Adams, and Mrs. Henry B. Day with Mrs. W. E. Birdsall, Mrs. S. L. Eaton, the Misses Baldwin and Mrs. Jos. Shad Holt. The roomy piazzas and shaded lawns were filled with interested people, who inspected the house, the grounds, the weaving cottage, the barn, the gardens, etc., and the many things raised, made and woven on the place by the inmates, such as chickens, preserved fruits, woven mats, and beautifully-colored curtains, disposed most artistically on table and divans in the library.

The day proved an especially fine one for this splendid philanthropy, which is a winter home for Middle aged Women, and a Summer Home for wearied business girls, and as such is worthy of the generous support of the public. Situated in Bedford, surrounded by shade trees and green fields, it is an ideal spot for such a home, and is destined to repair many a broken life to useful service in the world.

After the bounteous luncheon, a group of children from the Frances Willard Settlement in Boston, of which Llewysac Lodge is an off-shoot, gave songs, games and exercises to the group of interested observers. The scene reminded one of the large hospitality obtaining in the South among the roomy old mansions of that section, and is one to be remembered.

THE POPS.

Mr. Strube ends his term of service as conductor of the Pops at Symphony Hall on next Wednesday night and for the remainder of the season which runs until July 1st the concerts will be in charge of Mr. Andre Maquarre, whose third season it is as conductor, Monday, May 29th, will be one of the big nights of the season, "Harvard Night" and an unusually large crowd is expected. The musical clubs of the University will be present and among the music played will be pieces from this year's "The Fin and Hasty Pudding Shows. Mr. Strube has arranged two very attractive programs for Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

MISS DRAKE'S MUSICAL.

A large and select group of friends were delightfully entertained last Saturday evening for an hour or more at the concert hall of Newton Club by about a dozen of the pupils of the well known pianist, Miss Almeda Drake.

The program was entirely made up of selections from classical composers, or the best gems of lesser lights; and was so arranged as to merge into one fascinating whole. The performance included a judicious selection of youth and maidens, each of whom, in his or her way, gave full and satisfactory evidence of the intelligent, sympathetic and skillful training of Miss Drake who is not only a pupil of the revered Lang, but who also is happily endowed with the natural culture and charm of manner which should always grace the muse of music.

It would be almost superfluous to note special excellence in such a throng of pleasing talent, but from the finished rendering of Chopin's valse by Miss Meade, down to the touching and accurate melody of "A Child's Good Night" from the baby fingers of little Miss Dunleavy, the unvarying impression on the casual hearer was one of continued interest and delight.

The whole musical was only another piece of evidence among many, of the richness and variety of culture and talent enjoyed by this community, as the appreciation thereof is a genuine testimonial to the faithful devotion of the guiding spirit of the whole, Miss Drake.

Among those taking part were the Misses Dorris Jerauld, Susanne Dunleavy, Helen Shelton, Florence Luther, Evangeline Meade, Winifred Palmer, Mildred Bucknam, Elizabeth Starkweather, and John Starkweather, and Albert Jerauld.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

There is but little of interest to Newton people in the proceedings on Beacon hill the past week.

Representative Bothfeld was one of the sub-committee which drafted the bill to give the Boston and Eastern Railroad Co. a certificate of exigency, which the railroad commissioners refused last fall. The bill is now before the full committee on metropolitan affairs. This committee has just reported a bill to place the cost of maintenance of Revere and Nantasket beaches on the entire state instead of on the metropolitan district as at present.

Senator Mulligan voted to pass both bills over the governor's veto this week. He also voted against the bill to give preference to Spanish War Veterans, and against the bill relative to carrying freight and express matter by street railway companies. Mr. Mulligan presided over the senate on Monday in the absence of President Treadway.

Mr. Ellis was called to the chair of the House last Thursday morning and presided until the noon recess. The roll calls show that all three of our representatives voted against the bill to allow Cambridge to raise money for a hospital against the bill for direct preferential nominations of national senators. Mr. Ellis and Mr. Bothfeld voted in favor and Mr. White against the bill to establish a metropolitan plan commission. Mr. White voted in favor and was the only Newton man recorded on the bill to regulate the practice of optometry, and the position was similar on the bill to annex Chelsea to Boston where Mr. White voted in the negative. On the Cambridge charter bill Mr. Ellis and Mr. White are recorded in favor.

The Senate and House have passed the eight hour bill amended so as to comply with the recent opinion of the Supreme court and have also passed the bill to give to municipalities all the corporation tax. The latter bill will seriously affect the state revenues, distributing something like $350,000 which is now paid to the state on shares held by non residents of Massachusetts.

A suggestion for wedding and Anniversary Gifts, is a beautiful Electric or Gas Table Lamp, a pair of Andirons, or a Fire Set, from a selection the largest in the country as shown by McKenney & Waterbury Co., 181 Franklin St., Corner Congress, Boston, Mass.

133 to 139 Moody St., Waltham

—A very pleasing entertainment was given last Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Geo. F. Lowell on Walnut street, by six little girls known as the A. G. C. club. The program, consisting of songs, dances, recitations etc., was admirably carried out by the young misses, and heartily applauded by the appreciative audience of one hundred or more, who demanded frequent encores. During intermission, a candy sale was held which found ready purchasers. The proceeds, amounting to nearly $23.00 are to be used to purchase toys, etc., for the children's hospitals. Among those taking part were Dorothy Belcher, Lucy Lowell, Mabel Simonds, Dorothy Hooper, Brenda Briggs and Leita Briggs.

Combination Coal and GasCrawford Ranges

The Crawford Gas Ovens are safe. They are lighted in a new way; there is no dangerous pilot light and explosions are impossible. This improvement is patented and very important.

The Damper is automatically opened by opening oven door to light the burners, which cannot be lighted until the door is opened.

In these Gas Ovens there is an extra set of burners at the top for broiling; a great advantage over the ordinary gas oven, insuring better broiling and great convenience.

The Oven Bottoms and Racks are cast iron, and the outer walls are triple—an interlining of asbestos between two sheets of iron, which assists to retain the heat.

The use of these Gas Ovens does not interfere in any way with the operation of the coal range—both can be used at the same time.

Double Oven above or Single Oven at end of range.

NORUMBEGA PARK.

Norumbega has opened its 15th season with a first week that the management may well look upon with pride. It is always the policy to have the park and its attractions a little better each succeeding season, and with this unflinching accomplishment the average daily attendance has increased from year to year. And by the way it is astounding even to the management which keeps in touch with the inside figures year after year to note how the popularity of Norumbega has jumped in the past ten years. An average attendance in the open air theatre, for an afternoon or evening, is five and six times now what it was only a few seasons ago. The biggest surprise, however, was the overflow attendance at the park on the opening day of the season, last Sunday. It beat all previous records by several thousands.

There will be special features for the holiday. Decoration Day, next Tuesday, and Barrington's 9th, Regiment Band of 30 pieces will give concerts in Music Court. In the open air theatre the coming week, every afternoon and evening, there will be a complete change of program.

FIELD DAY.

The final day of the annual dual games between the Volkman and Fessenden schools' lower-class track teams was held in West Newton Tuesday afternoon and the meet resulted in a 73-1-2-35 1-2 victory for Volkman. The preliminary events took place on the Volkman athletic field, Allston Monday. Arey was the star of the meet for the Boston private school, making 14 points, while Batchelder, a teammate, was a close second with 13.

Do You Want a Hammock?

If you could find one that "just suited,"—color, weave, price,—wouldn't you buy it?

Could you use a "Gloucester"? The kind made of canvas, with flat mattress, protected from the wind, yet open to the air.

We want to sell you one of some kind,—one that "just suits."

UTOPIA

To every man of every creed
There comes a sweet Utopian dream;
He sees a land where not a weed
May ever grow, where every stream
Makes music as it winds along.
Where all the breezes blow in tune,
Where all is fair and life a song,
Where all the blissful year is June.

There fragrant roses ever bloom,
And every where contentment spreads;
The nights are rubbed of all their gloom;
The sun a genial radiance sheds;
There all things are superbly planned,
The prospect all spread far and fair;
Each man has dreams of such a land
With him enthroned as master there.

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

Such a land as described above will be found at Camp Utopia, on Lake Utopia, New Brunswick, Canada. Ideal for college men and boys. Home cooking, pure water, dry tents. Competent instructors, also tutoring and practical help. Just the place for your boy. Write for illustrated booklet and full information to JOSEPH W. BRINE, 37 Kingston Street, Boston.

Special attention given to the Management of Newton Properties.

To the Prospective Buyer

It is most advantageous to list one's requirements with a reliable real estate broker, the obvious reasons are: In a reliable, up to date real estate office great numbers and varieties of properties are listed at all times, and clerks are paid to keep people posted on whatever properties that seem to be what a client would consider. Another advantage of the agent is that many people will list highly desirable properties with a real estate broker when they would not let it be generally known that they were desirous of selling. My lists are at the service of the buyer.

STORIES OF THE WAR

"In April, 1864," said Comrade George Hill, of the 24th Massachusetts, "our regiment, Col. Osborne in command, found itself at Gloucester Point, where a large body of troops was being assembled, and there we remained for nearly thirty days when we were ordered aboard transports. On the 6th of May, at daylight, this force reached the south bank of the James River, about a mile above the Appomattox, where it was landed at Bermuda Hundred, a strong position within a few miles of Richmond. During our move up the river we had learned that we belonged to what was called the Army of the James, Gen. Benjamin F. Butler commanding. It consisted of two army corps, the 10th, under Gen. Gilmore, and the 18th, under 'Baldy' Smith, some 30,000 troops in all. We remained at Bermuda several days, meanwhile throwing up fortifications between the rivers James and Appomattox on which latter stream stood Petersburg, the objective point of Gen. Grant.

"The 10th of May, at 3.30 A. M., we were routed out of our tent by the main rations for two days, and at noon we marched, the intention being to attempt the capture of the fortifications at Drury's Bluff, which place we reached the following day. The part borne by the 24th began early that morning when, with the intent of getting in the rear of some of the enemy's works, we moved off to the left, reaching the same by a circuitous route of seven miles at four in the afternoon.

"This may seem a very small march for almost an entire day, but it must be remembered that the enemy was in sight all the time, and with a strong body of skirmishers in our front we had to proceed very cautiously. However, we finally reached Drury's Bluff, where we succeeded in taking some strong entrenchments, and that evening we slept inside of this line. It was, however, too late to make any further advance, and that night Beauregard was hurrying up to check our movement with as many men as he had.

"Next morning the rebels took the initiative and soon there was trouble all along the front. Beauregard's purpose of turning our right was well carried out, in a dense fog, where a horseman could not be seen at a distance of 15 paces. The brunt of the attack fell upon Heckman's brigade, and while it did all that soldiers could do, they were so completely enveloped by the enemy that a large part of the brigade, including its commander and his staff, were captured.

"During these hours the 24th Massachusetts was giving a good account of itself. At 10 A. M. we were ordered to the right to support Hauley's troops, who were hard pressed and finally gave way, thus exposing both flanks of our regiment, compelling us to retire, and, closely pressed by the enemy, we passed through a dense thicket which badly broke our formation. From there we mounted a hill without cover, where we lost two commissioned officers and some twenty men killed and wounded.

"Rallying, however, on the brow of the hill we succeeded in driving the Johnnies back. In the confusion of this flank movement our regiment became separated from its proper brigade, and Col. Osborne reported to Gen. Marston, commanding another brigade, for orders. He directed Osborne to form the 24th on the left of the 96th New York, which was done, the colonel throwing out his guides and making a perfect alignment. Evidently this pleased Gen. Marston, for he proceeded then and there to put the 24th through the manual: this not only steadied us, but served as a fine object lesson to other troops, as the Massachusetts boys executed his commands admirably.

"Of this war episode Capt. E. C. Richardson, of the 24th, but serving at the time on Gen. Terry's staff, has said: 'Seeing the regiment in line on rising ground, and doubting whether that position could be maintained, there being practically no rear support, I joined the 24th, thinking that as much as I was mounted I might be of service. The regiment was as steady as if on Boston Common, in perfect control of Col. Osborne. The enemy in our immediate front came to a halt. Immediately after the war I received a visit from a cousin who had been an officer in a Louisiana regiment, and while chatting about the long struggle, we discovered that we were in this engagement at Drury's Bluff, both of us being in the 24th. The thorough discipline of the regiment in our front, the line in such complete control, actually going through the manual, though no enemy were in sight, convinced me that there must be a heavy support and that a continued advance on our part must be made very carefully.'

"Lieut. Jones, of Company F, 24th Massachusetts, passing Fort Darling soon after the war, fell into conversation with a Confederate officer who had commanded of the very battery which gave us the most trouble on that fateful 16th of May, and he said he had always wondered what regiment it was that he had taken so many shots at. When Jones told him it was the 24th Massachusetts infantry, he remarked: 'Well, they did the best marching under fire that I ever saw.'

"Remaining in this position until Turner's division had passed to the rear," continued Comrade Hill, "the 24th retired for about a mile, then rejoined its own brigade. On the 17th of May we were back in the Bermuda Hundred entrenchments, having in the meantime lost three commissioned officers, some 57 non-commissioned officers and 59 privates. Our employment in this fighting way was almost constant from then on until the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. Our picket line and that of the Confederates were hardly more than a hundred yards apart; and though there was firing between the pickets at first, both sides soon came to a tacit agreement not to fire at one another. The Johnnies became very sociable indeed. They frequently ventured half way to our line, marning, waving southern papers, and tobacco which they exchanged for northern papers and coffee. In one of these social trading encounters, a drummer boy in the 24th happened to strike a Johnnie who was not in the exchanging mood; result, a badly scared youngster and a well-perforated drum, which has been a cherished relic ever since.

"In June, President Lincoln, accompanied by Gen. Grant, paid us a visit, and as they passed up the river to City Point, the troops gave them a rousing reception all along the line, Mr. Lincoln, hat in hand, responding with bows. On the 17th of July we had the pleasure of a visit from Col. J. Cushing Edmunds, who was then at the head of the 32d Massachusetts infantry, in the Army of the Potomac. Col. Edmunds saw his first service as orderly sergeant of Company K, 24th Massachusetts, however, and he was heartily welcomed. Naturally there were many amusing incidents during the campaign. One of our drummer boys noticed the back of Adjutant Edmunds as he stood by the camp fire, and the lad happened to see a cartridge at the same moment. Yielding to a mischievous impulse the boy tipped the cartridge into the fire and immediately turned over feigning sleep. The explosion soon came, the missile hit the adjutant on the hand, and, taking in the situation at a glance, he leaped over the fire, administered a kick to the pretending sleeper and gave him a good lecture for his prank. Says the boy of long ago, 'The kick hurt, but the lecture hurt worse, for I was fond of Lieut. Edmunds, who lost his thumbnail on account of my nonsense.'

There were other incidents than amusing ones during the war, however, as for instance, when a soldier condemned to death by court martial, was shot by his own comrades. One such case occurred in the 24th, and Comrade Hill tells of it in our next issue.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME.

The battle between expert Harvey S. Chase of this city and State Treasurer Stevens culminated Tuesday before the Committee on Ways and Means and Mr. Chase forced the state treasurer to acknowledge that errors had been found in computations made in his office on sinking funds. It is just as well to let the matter rest there, as the errors were of little importance, and as Mr. Stevens says would have been rectified in course of time. Mr. Stevens makes a vital error of judgment however in opposing further examination of his books by Mr. Chase. There are some people who think he is trying to hide something by such a course. As a matter of fact, there is nothing to hide and the "open door" is the only safe policy for public officials.

Isn't it strange that thru all these years of fighting for and against the enlargement of the so called eight hour law, vetoed twice by Governor Draper for its unconstitutionality, that it remained for the present year, when the bill had an almost certain chance to pass, that the Legislature and the Governor, is the first time the opinion of the Supreme Court has been asked upon it. The Court in an unanimous opinion states that the clause of the bill which makes prima facie evidence of guilt for any one found working over eight hours, is unconstitutional. Just think of the controversy which might have been saved if this opinion had been asked and received three years ago. With this clause declared unconstitutional, the marrow of the bill is removed and its passage would hardly be opposed by any one.

Another Supreme Court opinion that a uniform rate of taxation throughout the state on personal property would be unconstitutional, was received this week, and only makes the case stronger in favor of an amendment to the state constitution to allow this desirable result.

The court says in part: "Taxes under our constitution are of two kinds, taxes upon property and excise taxes. Those of the first kind must be proportional as well as reasonable. All kinds of property, unless exempted for good cause, must be taxed alike. It is not permissible to make an assessment at one rate upon real estate and at another rate upon personal property."

"It is obvious that the assessments proposed in these questions would be disproportional taxation. The rate upon personal property in any city or town in any year would be different from the rate of taxation upon real estate in that city or town."

As the rate of local taxation upon real estate would differ greatly in different places, the rate in any place might differ widely from the average rate.

The passage of the direct nomination bill was opposed by Representatives Ellis and White, who were in the minority 205 to 15. Mr. Bothfield voted with the majority in forwarding this most desirable piece of legislation. All three of our representatives voted against the bill for considering the rejection of the bill for a new court house for Cambridge, against the bill to mark prison made goods, in favor of the bill relative to examination of witnesses, in favor of the bill to lessen the fire hazard in Boston, in favor of a new city charter for Cambridge, against the bill to give preference to Spanish War veterans, and to sustain the governor's veto on the bill to reinstate certain police officers in Boston. Mr. White voted against the governor's veto on the bill for additional copies of the report of the Commission on Cost of Living and Mr. Bothfield and Mr. Ellis sustained the vote.

Mr. Ellis has been appointed on two committees of conference this week, one on the question of extending time for committee reported and one on the night messenger bill, both of which are in disagreement with the Senate.

Mr. Bothfield has dissented from the report of his committee on Metropolitan affairs on the bill for a boulevard from Woburn to Winchester.

Senator Mulligan voted against the bill to change the city charter of Boston, the passage of which by the House was attributed to the lobbying of Mayor Hatfield. As Senator Mulligan comes from our own district and as Mayor Hatfield is supposed to have considerable influence with the Senator, his vote on this matter ought to clearly show that either Mayor Hatfield has not enough influence with the senator to induce his favorable vote, or that the Mayor is not interested in the bill. The latter is the more reasonable conclusion, as Mayor Hatfield was not interested in the passage or defeat of the bill.

POLICE NOTES.

Gertrude McDonald of 95 Bolton street, South Boston, arrested by officer Conroy on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretences Monday evening, was arraigned in the police court Tuesday morning and paid $10. Early that afternoon the girl visited several stores in the vicinity of Nonantum square and ordered several articles to be sent to an address on Pearl street, and said that her name was Annie Wilson. After giving her order she would take some of the articles with her. When she was placed under arrest, after several of the storekeepers had become suspicious, she had goods on her person amounting to $100.

Mr. Luther Breck, of Newton, was fined $10 Tuesday by Judge Kennedy for refusing to stop his automobile when ordered to do so by a police officer.

James Patuto, arrested Saturday evening by officer Purcell, after he had sunk his teeth into the nose of Angelo Temblado of 227 Chapel street, in whose home Patuto boarded, was fined $20 for assault and battery and $5 for drunkenness. Patuto arrived home under the influence of liquor, and made such a fuss that he was removed from the house by Temblado. He came in a few minutes later, on the pretence of seeing one of the other boarders, and when passing, Temblado, jumped at him and sunk his teeth into his nose. His cries attracted a police officer, who after a hard fight, managed to get Patuto into the patrol wagon.

Each year summer sojourners from all over the country are seeking pleasant spots in New England, patronizing well-managed hotels and the pleasantly located boarding places. Thousands of people turn to the advertising columns of the Boston Evening Transcript, where so many announcements of summer places are published. N'VILLE IMP'T SOCIETY

At its annual meeting at the Newton Club House Tuesday evening the Newtonville Improvement Association followed its usual plan in having as its principal feature an address on Association and related problems by a prominent specialist and speaker. This year Mr. Edward T. Hartmann secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League gave the address. For nearly an hour Mr. Hartmann spoke in an easy and informing manner regarding the fundamentals of civic betterment.

The importance to a community of the shaded streets, well built roads and attractive playgrounds was urged. But he went further and showed how the housing problem was rapidly coming to the front, and that congested areas with all their dangers of overcrowding were the menace of the cities and were in certain sections threatening some of the suburban communities.

He would have the civic spirit first of all express itself in better housing, where conditions for character development would be more promising and then this would lead to better public order, and more regard for the rights of others.

This would be helped along by co-operation between all classes especially the boys who should be interested in civic happenings and given a part in them. Even lawless boys have been reached, and brought into more orderly and proper habits by this co-operation. This means better making of the boy and citizen with less to unmake.

It was harder however to interest people at large in preventive and formative work, than in the less important work of removing the wrecks and rubbish of society.

The rational thing was to deal with causes and the advice would be less in evidence and communities would spend less time in undoing things.

Two other speakers talked interestingly to the Association. Mr. Chas. I. Bucknam the city Forest Commissioner spoke of the present condition of the parks and playgrounds of the city and what was being done to further develop them.

Mr. Bucknam having charge of these, is an important factor in Association work and aims, and his co-operation with local organizations, schools, etc., has been very helpful and encouraging to those who are trying to make a more wholesome, a more comfortable, and a more beautiful Newton.

Commodore F. E. Sawyer of Newtonville spoke on the boy problem, and gave some interesting personal experiences in this direction while in command at training school stations. The Commodore also supplemented Mr. Hartmann's suggestions by describing conditions in Canton, Hongkong and Buenos-Ayres.

At the election the following officers were elected: President, Wm. Price; vice presidents, Charles D. Cabot, F. E. Sawyer, Charles F. Avery; Treasurer, L. E. Green; Secretary, Harry D. Cabot; and fifteen directors.

President William Price made the following address:

The record of the Association, the past year, has been one of activity in some directions, and of watchfulness and preparation in others. It has promptly interested itself in all matters brought to its attention, and if all suggested improvements have not quickly been realized, it is not because of neglect but rather because the matters are still in process, and the right solution much nearer. The work of our Association, in co-operating with other Associations, in discussing, and conferring with City Officials and public service corporations, is work that is none the less effective for being done quietly, and without public excitement.

A number of Working Committees have been considering various matters of public interest, that have been referred to them, and are giving them careful and painstaking consideration. Important results in several directions are expected to be reported in the near future. The Executive Committee is large and represents every section of our village. This Committee and your officers welcome suggestions, and co-operation and hope to receive a large measure of both the coming year.

Clifton Block Improvements.

The latest activity of the Association has been in the direction of improving the approaches to Newtonville Square. The Clifton Block, as the worst offender was taken in hand and the co-operation of owner and tenants with our Association has resulted in a great improvement in the grounds around that building. Rubbish has been removed, the land leveled and seeded and shrubs and trees planted. The landlord has also ordered the buildings in the rear painted, so that in a short time this unsightly area close to the public square will be substantially transformed. In this work a Committee of the Association and the althouses have co-operated.

More can be accomplished if our citizens will urge upon store-keepers and stablemen the interest the community takes in having the rear as well as the fronts of the stores kept free from litter and rubbish. We also hope the time is not far distant when the vacant lot next to the Congregational church will be cleaned up and better graded.

You no doubt recall with pleasure the meeting we had last year when Prof. Henry Turner Bailey lectured for us. As a first result of that meeting we are pleased to call your attention to the great improvement that has been made on the grounds of the Methodist church which we all appreciate and enjoy for, so to speak, it is at the gate of our village. While we did not contribute financially to this work still we can justly claim that those who did contribute received their inspiration at our meeting. A great many private grounds also were better kept and adorned after listening to Prof. Bailey's remarks.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The program for Memorial day has just been issued by Charles Ward Post
G. A. R. as follows:—

A special car will leave Newton at 8 o'clock and proceed to St. Mary's cemetry at Newton Lower Falls. Here they will perform the usual services of the G. A. R. ritual, under the directions of Commander Albert Plummer, the Rev.
Francis B. White, officiating.

They will then proceed to the Charles River at the Lower Falls, escorted by the Butler Boys Club and the Spaulding Nurses Corps of the Auburndale Methodist Church, where they will cast flowers upon the waters in memory of departed sailors.

After this ceremony has been performed they will gather at the old Armory Hall, Newton, where lunch will be served.

After lunch they will form at Centre

—Joseph Joyce of Thornton place
while riding a bicycle on Washington street, near Jewett street, on Saturday, was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Allen Jackson of Cambridge.
Joyce was cut about the leg and head
and the bicycle was damaged.

—The annual reception and donation party given by the directors of the Nonampton day nursery association, held Wednesday afternoon on the Stearns estate, proved a huge success. A large anount of money was received as donations, and much wearing apparel was also received.

—Mr. James Gordon Gilkey, 1912 of Watertown, a son of Mr. James H. Gilkey, teller of the Newton Trust Company, has been awarded the Lloyd Mc-Kim, Garrison prize of $100 at Harvard and a silver medal for the poem
"Boston as seen from the Harvard Bridge." Mr. Gilkey is well known for his literary work at Harvard. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and an expert musician. Last year he won honorable mention in the same competition for a poem on aerial navigation.

—Mrs. Fidelia A. Farwell, the widow of the late Isaac Farwell died at her home 299 Washington street last Friday at the age of 76 years. Mrs. Farwell resided for many years on Thornton street, when her husband owned and managed the Farwell mill on Morse street, now occupied by the Thomas Daly Co. About 25 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Farwell removed to Connecticut, and Mrs. Farwell came back to Newton a few years ago. She is survived by one son, Mr. John I. Farwell, superintendent of the Newton post office and one daughter, Miss Jennie Farwell of Newton. Funeral services were held on Sunday at her former home in Storrs, Conn.

THE HOUSE OF EDISON LIGHT.

Nowhere else in the world has there ever before been seen a house like "The House of Edison Light," which has been erected in Newton Centre, at the corner of Centre and Pleasant Streets, by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company. This House has just been completed, and was opened to the citizens of Newton and Watertown Thursday,
the 25th inst. It will be open every day, except Sundays, from 10 A. M. until 10 P. M. There will be from that time an "open house" at the new residence, and no one should miss the opportunity to see the attractive, modern and economical features of this electric home.

The House of Edison Light is, as its name implies, an electric house. It is a chimneyless house. It represents the height of electric development in domestic life. From the door bell, which rings by current from the electric lighting mains, through the hall, with its dim as well as brilliant lighting, the living room, with its comforts for happy evenings after busy business days, the dining room, with its economical luxuries, within the reach of everyone who has electric service in the home, the chamber, that is a model of comfort and attractiveness, the kitchen, with its complete electrical equipment, the pantry, with its plate warmers and other practical conveniences, the laundry with electric washing machine, and convenience for electric ironing, out through to the garage, which holds an electric vehicle and many electric conveniences
so necessary to the autoist's uses—the House is a marvel of complete and efficient economy.

The House stands a little back from the street with attractive approaches. At the front is a pergola 8 ft. by 10 ft. in size, which soon will be covered by beautiful climbing vines. The major portion of the house is 34 ft. square, which provides for five spacious rooms within, 14 ft. by 14 ft. in size. In addition to the rooms already mentioned
there is a reception room in the centre of the cottage which makes a fitting entrance for the many guests who will be welcomed there.

This House is by no means a "freak".
It is a portable house and transported from the factory on electric trucks to the place of its location. The electric wiring was installed in the sections of this House as it was being put together,
so that when the Edison Electric Illuminating Company moved the House
the transfer was made easily and quickly. After the House was put together it was completely furnished with handsome and luxurious furniture in keeping with the surroundings. The excellent taste that has been shown in selecting the fin-ishings and the furnishings would make this residence a most attractive place, even if there were not the additional features of the electric service.

Few of the appliances have been installed in the home, and the methods
by which electric service will be used, are unique or especially novel; most of them have been in practical use for years—the value of this House as a place of investigation for present and prospective householders lies in the fact that all of the various applications of electric service, and the appliances, are collected here so they can be studied,
and the economy discovered in connection with other things. Most people know that electric fans are good, not only to cool the heat of a room in the summer, but to distribute the warm air from the radiators in winter, but a great many have never tried the two ways of making an electric fan useful.
Most people know that toast made on an electric toaster is the best that can be obtained, and is sweeter and crisper than can be made in any other way,
but many people have yet to eat their first piece of electrically made toast. Many people know that vacuum cleaners, vi-brators, polishing machines and knife sharpeners can be operated in the home
electrically and with great convenience,
but many have yet to have practical experience with these things. Most people know that an electric curling iron heater can be always available in the dressing room or chamber for the continual comfort and convenience of the hostess or her guests, but many ladies have yet to enjoy curling their hair with electrically heated curling irons. Most people know the wonderful comfort, safety and convenience of the electric heating
pad. It never leaks, will maintain a constant temperature and can be kept at the head of the bed, available for any emergency. A sudden attack of neuralgia, or any illness, even "cold feet," can be corrected promptly and effectively by simply putting the heating pad against the spot where it will do the most good and turning on the current.

All of these things are brought into one delightful display in The House of Edison Light, and their combined comforts will make those who visit the home happy in the thought that the electric day, as well as electric night, is at hand.
Competent demonstrators show the practical application and economies of all the electric appliances, and other attendants do everything for the complete comfort of visitors.

BRUTAL NEGRO.

The police deserve great credit for their prompt action in arresting John J.
Jennings, a negro employed at one of the Riverside boat houses for a delicious assault late Sunday night on Delia Kendrigan, a domestic employed in a family residing on Commonwealth avenue. Miss Kendrigan who returned from Waltham was walking on Commonwealth avenue near the railroad bridge,
when she noticed a man following her.
He ordered her to stop and when she started to run threw a large paving stone at her. Altho it did not strike her, the man, who proved to be a negro caught her on the other side of the bridge and demanded her money. This she gave him and he then pulled out a knife and compelled her to get over the fence, cross
the railroad track into a field on the north side of the track. Here he made a determined assault upon her and the girl put up a desperate fight for a half hour but was finally overcome. She later made her way home where a physician was called. The police worked night and day on the case running down all possible suspects, and finally arrested Jennings, in whose pocket was found the knife used in the assault. Jennings was held in $15,000 bonds for the grand jury.

Early Sunday evening Miss Marion Chapin was met by a negro on Woodland road and was struck on the head with a bottle when she refused to give him money. She managed to escape him however, and ran home.

STATE FEDERATION
REPORTS FROM MANY COMMITTEES

REPORT OF CLERK.

With the closing of this, the eightteenth year of its organization, the Federation holds its nineteenth annual meeting. During the year two Federation meetings, two conferences of presidents and ten meetings of the Executive Board have been held.

That the executive officers of the clubs might come into closer knowledge of the work of the Federation, the vice-presidents were invited to attend one presidents' conference and the secretaries and treasurers the other.

Following the request of the General Federation, some changes were made this year in the nomenclature of the Departments of work. The Health Committee was taken from Civics and made a new department known as the department of Public Health.
The Forestry department was made a department on Conservation. Household Economics was made Home Economics and Industrial Conditions of Women and Children was made Dept.
of Industrial and Social Conditions.
The Library Extension and Literature
Dept. were combined under one department and the Settlement Work was placed under a special committee of the Executive Board.

Early in the year Mrs. Maria D.
Witcher, the third vice president and chairman of the Finance Committee, resigned on account of ill health. The vacancy was filled by the election of Mrs. Florence Perkins, of Roxbury.

This year the Federation parted with its most precious treasure when the angel of death called home Mrs.
Julia Ward Howe. She was the founder, first president, honorary president and always a source of inspiration to the Federation. Resolutions upon her death were adopted at the Presidents' Conference held the day of her funeral and a loving tribute to her memory given at the autumn meeting.

Co-operating with the Public Health committee of the General Federation
the Federation adopted a Mass. Christmas seal, 200,000 of which were put on sale through the clubs, the proceeds being used for the public health work of the clubs.

Following the usual custom, a list of questions pertaining to the work of the departments was sent on Feb. 20th to the clubs. This year a duplicate was sent to be retained for suggestion
for the next year's work.

About 130 questions were answered and returned. These answers have been tabulated and another year's work added to the history of the work of the clubs which was started last year. This history would be much more valuable if all the clubs would make some reply stating the special work they are doing, if not along the lines of the Federation Departments.
It can hardly be said that any one department leads in interest this year as about the same number of clubs sent answers to Art, Civics Conservation, Home Economics and Literature. Each department has held at least one conference and some departments have held several district conferences. In most cases the conferences have been very largely attended and the subjects treated in a most helpful manner.

As the clubs are the Federation, the measure of success or failure of the year's work can only be estimated by the success or failure of each club in its own community. Many clubs have an influence as is shown by their co-operation being sought by town and city officials to assist in carrying on much of the work which calls for the creation of public opinion. Many requests have come to the Executive Board for co-operation with national,
state and local organizations who are doing work along similar lines. The name, Mass. State Federation of Women's Clubs representing over 30,000 women has great power, and it has been one of the most difficult problems of the Executive Board to determine how far co-operation could be given and the same time not supplement its own work.

There is no reason for any club to entertain itself for want of work to do, the harvest truly is great but the workers are few. May each city, town and village the coming year be stimulated to greater civic pride, a broader educational outlook and a desire for a more beautiful and healthful place in which to live because of the woman's organization in its midst.

Respectfully submitted,
EFFIE S. NOWERS,
Clerk.

REPORT OF THE PRESS COMMITTEE.

The work of the Press committee has not differed materially from that reported last year. The committee has sought to secure information beforehand regarding the meetings and addresses of the speakers. A brief account of the meeting has been prepared by the press chairman. These have been mimeographed and copies mailed to the various newspapers throughout the state a day or two previous to the meetings.

The list of publications to which matter is sent was thoroughly revised last year so that there have been but few changes in it this year.

At the conference of Committee chairmen in the fall space in the Federation Bulletin was assigned each committee and the chairmen have been reminded as their assignments came due.

In addition to the information sent in advance, the chairman has reported the Conference of Committee Chairmen, the two Presidents' Conferences, and the meetings of the Federation
for the General Federation Bulletin.
has attended all but two of the Committee conferences and has reported some of the conferences for the Boston Transcript as well.

The committee does not feel satisfied that the best solution of the publicity work of the Federation has been arrived at. One gain has been made in the addition of the secretary of the Program committee to the Press committee. A little closer connection between the Press committee and those who are arranging conferences or meetings would greatly facilitate the work and would react to the benefit of the Federation. It is something to be striven for and perhaps another year will see a much greater gain than has as yet been made.

GRACE M. BURT,
Chairman.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM COMMITTEE.

It has been often stated that of all Federation work Civil Service Reform is the most difficult in which to interest clubs. This fact the Civil Service Reform Committee can attest. Why should this condition exist, when Civil Service Reform is fundamental and vital to concerns every woman in her every day life?

Such great interest in civics is manifested by the clubs throughout the country at the present time that one would naturally wish to understand conditions and to familiarize themselves with the form of government under which they live, the functions of its various departments, the men in charge and the manner in which they are chosen.

Club women already understand that we must have specially trained men and women to work as inspectors, and specialized care for all those who are morally, mentally and physically less than normal. They should realize also that, if we wish for the enforcement of all the laws for which we are working, to better industrial and child labor conditions, building and food inspection,—in fact, all the laws that tend to make our country a safe and a beautiful place to live in, it is of vital importance that we have the Merit System maintained and that proved merit be the only title in the selection of our law makers, remembering always the motto, "The best shall serve the state," written for the bronze medal of the Women's Auxiliary by one whose life fulfilled these words and whose death illumined them with rays of light—Mrs. Charles Russell Lowell.

Civil service reform is a moral question, and is patriotism in its broadest significance, and as such commends itself to the women of the country. If our women's clubs stand for anything, they stand for moral progress and civic righteousness. Your Civil Service Reform Committee would, therefore, appeal to members of this Federation to consider the stand that woman has ever taken for high ideals, and lend their co-operation to the work by acquiring a thorough knowledge of the problems that face us, and then, with unfailing enthusiasm and determination, help to educate public opinion in as up to date and as practical a way
as possible.

The past year your committee has concentrated its efforts on two objects, co-ordination and co-operation between clubs and the committee, as these were requisite factors in the desire to carry out a concerted plan of work.
With this thought in mind, a leaflet was prepared and published, consisting of a set of questions and answers containing some general information about the Civil Service in Massachusetts, also suggestions as to how clubs could assist the committee in the work. The leaflet was entitled "Some Salient Features of the Civil Service in Massachusetts." Doubtless many of you are familiar with it, as copies were sent each club in the Federation.

Realizing that a wider knowledge of the opportunities and advantages of the "Merit System" would result in the making of better citizens, and that the children of this generation are to make the laws for the next, a "special plea" was sent to the clubs, asking them to offer a medal or prize for the best essay on Civil Service Reform, written by a pupil in the high school, and to endeavor to have such an essay required as part of the regular English course in that high school.

By invitation of the Watertown Woman's Club, a conference was held in Watertown on March 2d. The attendance was good and the program of unusual interest. Miss Bacon, President of the Federation, presided.
The speakers were Mr. Charles W.
Warren, Chairman of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission, and Mr. J. Murphy of Framingham.

The "scheme" for a study class in Civil Service Reform was presented at the conference and met with approval, and a month later a meeting was held to effect the organization of the class. Dr. Charles W. Elliot was the speaker and told of the "Value of this Reform and of its Interest to Women as well as to Men." Through the generosity of the Worcester Branch of the Women's Auxiliary to the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association, outlines for the study of "Municipal Government and its Relation to Civil Service Reform" were furnished the class. Already the class has held two meetings, and they will be resumed in October. All club members interested are urged to join this class, as it will greatly assist in an intelligent understanding of the present conditions and also help to better good citizenship and good government. A plan has been devised by which those in the more distant cities and towns can co-operate.

In accordance with the annual custom, a series of questions was sent to the clubs, in order to ascertain what they had done during the year in the interests of Civil Service Reform. Out of 242 clubs, returns have been received from only 97 clubs.
Forty-seven clubs have Civil Service Reform Committees, while several have made the work a part of the Civics or Social Service Committee.
Although only 13 clubs have reported meetings devoted to the subject, clubs that have not been heard from are known to have devoted an entire afternoon to this subject.

The educational side of the work is most encouraging. Many clubs have offered the bronze medal of the Women's Auxiliary. Others a five dollar gold piece, and one club reports offering books as a prize to the high school pupil writing the most meritorious essay on Civil Service Reform. Several clubs attempted to offer the medal, but were refused by the superintendent of schools. In one or two cases the offer of the medal was refused, as the teachers were too busy to attend to anything additional. Increasing interest has been shown in the legislative side of the work. Fifty-one clubs have reported that they have tried to influence their legislators to vote correctly on bills affecting the Civil Service, and many promise work in this line another year. A number of clubs have placed "Good Government" in the reading room of their public library.

The work of each club has been tabulated by the committee, and in consequence much of the duplication of questions sent to the clubs in previous years will be eliminated in the future, and instead their individual needs will be considered.

Regarding the work as a whole, that of the Framingham Women's Club should be an example and incentive to all others. "With your permission I will give their report: 'Have a committee on Civil Service Reform. To create and foster intelligent public opinion is our aim. Offered medal to high school seniors. Ten essays presented in medal competition. Planning for a written examination on Civil Service Primer for ninth grades, with public meeting. Tried to influence legislators. Placed 'Civil Service and the Patronage' by Carl Russell Fish, various pamphlets, also 'Good Government' in the three Public Reading Rooms.'

To further individual effort and make it co-ordinate, the committee would recommend the following to each club:

1. Have a Civil Service Reform Committee with more than one member. Send names and addresses of said committee to the State Committee.
2. Hold at least one meeting during the club year to consider the subject of Civil Service Reform.
3. Try to interest churches to take up the work for the Merit System and have a "Merit Sunday."
4. Endeavor to interest the school children in the methods, aims and advantages of the "Merit System." They are to make the laws for the next generation.
5. See that notices of Civil Service examinations are posted in conspicuous places and urge competent persons to take the examinations.
6. And last, but not least, facilitate the work of the committee by answering promptly all questions sent you, whether you have adopted the recommendations or not.

In closing, permit me to quote the words of the Honored President of this Federation, who has always been indefatigable in her effort to advance the Merit System. Can we not show our appreciation of her service by acquiring an intelligent understanding of Civil Service Reform and endeavoring to convince the public of its importance?

"This is a movement which is the basic principle of all Federation work, a movement which emphasizes service for humanity in its deepest, truest sense, and which as time goes on will demonstrate the fact that good citizenship, honest government, and upright national life depends not upon patriotism of war, but upon the best and noblest patriotism of peace."

MABEL ROGERS TABOR,
Chairman.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT.

The subject of Conservation has to most women the disadvantage of seeming hopelessly remote both from the affairs of their everyday activity and from the realms of art, literature and other favorite fields of study and effort. Its implied evils and their remedies appear alike intangible and unreal.

We can see the flies on our food and easily become excited over their terrible power for mischief, so it is not too difficult to enlist us in the war for their extermination. We are more or less glad, also, to learn and practice better methods of house and home-keeping. These things naturally make to us the most direct appeal possible. Questions of health, education, civics, and social and industrial conditions all touch us more or less directly and may easily present some point of interest and opportunity for action. But the Conservation of our Natural Resources! This seems a subject too vast, too difficult, too dry for any but gods and statesmen to comprehend or deal with. Even when women realize that it has practical bearings which vitally concern them and that real Conservation means health, better conditions of every sort, lower cost of living, art and beauty, joy in life, and freedom from a hundred present ills—though they may at least partially believe all this, they feel nevertheless that it is hard to understand and harder yet to find anything effective to do about it. So we still leave it to gods and statesmen, many of whom seem not to know or care so very much about it, after all.

The smoke nuisance destroys life, health, comfort, beauty and art, besides being an appalling waste of a non-renewable resource. Much land is lying idle and our soils are wasted by bad cultivation, and there are fewer to till the ground and raise crops for a fast increasing population. Millions of tons of precious soil are washed every year from our mountains and farm lands into the streams and harbors never to return to the land but to be dredged out at the cost of millions of dollars annually. A vast proportion of our waters are not only wasted for navigation and power but carry pollution and destruction in their course. Our forests are destroyed by axe and fire nearly seven times faster than they are growing again. Only one acre in 10,000 is replanted that should be done. Our mountains are being stripped of forest which can never renew itself, and this means a permanent loss of our already too small water supply. Here in Massachusetts hundreds of acres of woodland are burned over every year with loss of other property and even of human life. The shade trees of the state are in a deplorable condition, not only from insect pests but from other evils. Birds, fish, game, and native plants have alarmingly decreased and some have been destroyed almost to the point of extinction.

Does not all this directly and vitally concern us and our homes and our children? But what can mere women do about it? And how far do Massachusetts women understand the subject? What have they attempted and what accomplished the past year? Your Conservation Department has published the "Handbook of Conservation" and issued several leaflets, has carried on considerable correspondence with the clubs, and the chairman and other members of the Committee have spoken upon request to clubs in various parts of the state. The Handbook was prepared to give concise and comprehensive answers to many requests for information upon the subject of Conservation. The book was prepared and published within the Committee at no expense to the Federation, and is sold by the Committee at 25 cents per copy, much less than the cost of publication. The first leaflets sent out were advance copies of an article in the February Bulletin upon the "Study of Conservation." Later two other circulars, a descriptive announcement of the Handbook and "Suggestions for Club Work" in 1911-1912 were sent to the clubs, accompanied, so far as possible, by personal letters from members of the Committee. This Department is fortunate in having upon its Committee the Chairman and the Bird Chairman of the General Federation, Massachusetts clubs have therefore been brought into especially close touch with General Federation work upon these lines, and have received circulars upon the preservation of birds with models for bird houses and upon the conservation of water power and the use and abuse of streams. Copies of Massachusetts laws relating to birds have also been distributed. The Bird Chairman has done much legislative work and has been active in efforts to stop the slaughter of birds by Italians and other foreign residents through educating them to an understanding of our laws and a respect and love for bird life.

By courtesy of the New England Women's Club, a Conservation Conference was held at the club rooms February 16, at which there was a large attendance representing more than 50 clubs. The program consisted of answers to questions sent in by clubs and impromptu discussion. Birds, agriculture and orcharding, especially upon suburban lots, shade trees, town forests, water supply, and the prevention of some kinds of waste, were the main topics presented, and the discussion was animated and helpful.

What have the clubs done?

This year 111 clubs returned the annual questions. Of these 4 contained no answer except name of place and club, and several others reported no chairman and no interest. But we have now 157 clubs that have reported to us in some way the name of a chairman or an interested member who will receive communications. The questions this year were fewer than formerly but more comprehensive to suit the broadened scope of the Department indicated by the change of name from "Forestry" to "Conservation." The questions upon shade trees and children's gardens were practically the same as hitherto. Rather more shade tree planting has been done than in former years, some clubs having planted 40 or 50 trees. A number of clubs have helped to secure better care for trees, one having induced the town to buy a sprayer. An increasing interest in children's gardens is very evident. A few clubs support and carry on the whole work, but more often they co-operate with other organizations.

Only one club reports any consideration of a municipal forest in its town, the subject there having been discussed by the Conservation Department and the president. Two other clubs report such a forest owned by the town, but not necessarily for timber production.

Considerable interest is shown in the protection and propagation of bird life and several bird preserves are reported. A number of clubs have secured the building of bird houses for children and others after the model sent out by Mrs. Crocker. Good work was done in protesting against the repeal of the law for the protection of shore birds from spring shooting.

The next question asks, "What has been done to secure the purity of your water supply and what to guarantee a supply in time of drought?" Judging from the replies most Massachusetts towns are marvels in the purity and abundance of their water supply. Several widely separated towns claim the very purest water in the state, with no fear of scarcity. But there are exceptions. A few clubs express great concern over the failure of their supply to come up to the proper standard of purity and abundance, and report active measures in progress.

"Has any interest been shown in the conservation of coal by abating the smoke nuisance, and in what way?" 101 clubs make no other reply than "No." Of the remaining 10 one reports a request to the mayor to look into the matter, another says the city is attending to it, one club has discussed the subject and one been represented at a legislative hearing, one says that the mills have done something voluntarily and another that efforts have been made by individuals. Four clubs say that there is no trouble in their locality and three of these are probably right. But the fourth is in a large manufacturing town where a procession of railroad trains passes each way every day pouring forth volumes of unconsumed coal. Smoke as a nuisance would appear to have made little impression upon club-women, and still less its relation to the conservation of coal.

"What line of Conservation work would you like to take up next year? What work do you think most needed and most practical for your locality?" The answers to these questions were awaited with the greatest interest of all. There were 38 replies. The kinds of work popularly regarded as most needed were, the planting and care of shade trees, children's gardens, the protection and propagation of birds, and civic beauty and cleanliness. Other answers were the protection of woodland from fire, fruit growing and anything pertaining to work on the farm, the conservation of coal by abating the smoke nuisance, the creation of public sentiment against wings, etc., in millinery, and the imperative need of additional water supply. But the most noticeable feature of the replies is that while 30 clubs seem impressed with the needs of their communities, only 3 say that they would actually like to do anything about it, the study of lands and soils, preservation of birds, waste land for gardening and school gardens being the subjects mentioned. This would be discouraging were it not that these replies by no means show either the work or the aspirations of the clubs. Many clubs doing excellent and enthusiastic work sent no reply at all and much other work and interest is not reported.

This year an extra set of questions was sent to be kept as a suggestion for future work. This department especially recommends a study of municipal forests, of forests in relation to water supply, of protection of woodland from fire, and a consideration of the smoke nuisance as subjects of study and investigation. Also a practical application of agriculture and fruit growing to small lots, and an extension of home and school gardens.

MARY L. TUCKER,
Chairman.

REPORT OF THE CIVICS COMMITTEE.

During the past few years the work of the Health Committee had increased to such an extent that this year the executive board deemed it advisable to remove it from the Civics Committee and form a new Dept. of Public Health. This left the Civics Committee with five departments of work, each supposedly in charge of a chairman and sub-committee. Although we had a very large committee it was exceedingly difficult to obtain chairmen and one department has been without one most of the year. This has decidedly hampered the work of the Committee.

Many letters have been received and answered by the chairman of the committee and the chairmen of the departments giving all the information we could obtain in regard to the different lines of work and I think we have been able to send a speaker on Civics to every club requesting one.

To the questions sent out by the Federation we have had replies from 113 clubs;—72 clubs report Civic Committees,—21 report no activity although 4 of these have had lectures on one or more of the subjects. Early in the season the executive board voted to withdraw the lecture with lantern slides (prepared some ten or more years ago) on Town and Village Improvement, but since that time two clubs, after being informed of the age of the lecture and the fact that several slides were broken, requested that it be sent them for use, and this was done.

While much of the work of Town and Village Improvement is done by public authorities or special organizations, more clubs report activity in this than in any other department. Forty-six clubs have been interested in some form of this work, particularly in clean up days or working toward the abolishing of bill-boards. Thirty-five clubs have been more or less active in establishing or maintaining playgrounds. The chairman of this department having a practical working knowledge of playground work has been especially helpful to clubs wishing to establish them.

Six clubs report the curfew as ringing in their cities although not by their direct influence.

In reply to the questions regarding "The Juvenile Court" only fourteen clubs express any interest in this very important branch of Civics, and our chairman received very few letters regarding it.

Few clubs have made any investigation and the majority do not know whether the law has been enforced in their city or whether proper probation officers have been appointed. If the same energy could be put into this work that has been put into playgrounds, with the help of the playgrounds already established many children would be saved from a life of crime and there would be less need of truant schools and children's reformatories.

In the report of last year, the chairman says, "No department of Civics ever received more enthusiastic approval than our first appeal for a Saner and Safer Fourth and International Peace." The results show in our reports this year. Forty-two clubs report some interest in the subject and 33 clubs report having a Saner Fourth celebration last year as a direct result of this interest and work. Now is the time to continue that work for this year's celebration.

Eight clubs report some interest in International Peace either by a lecture or paper on the subject or by using their influence for an observance of Peace Day.

The new chairman of the Junior Civics League Department found great difficulty in getting the materials and information from the General Federation necessary for carrying out her work. If this work is to go on next year it would seem wise to next committee to have this printing of by-laws, pledge cards, etc., done by our own Federation instead of depending on the General Federation for them. But 13 clubs have shown an interest in this department which we believe to be of great importance in teaching our boys and girls that they have civic duties and responsibilities. The way to reach them seems to be through the schools and it is to them we must look for this instruction. It is your part to interest the school authorities and get their permission to interest the children in this movement.

Through the enthusiasm and energy of the President of Fortian Club, Somerville, such interest has been aroused and with the help and cooperation of the other Somerville clubs, leagues are to be started in the schools of that city.

Several clubs report that boys and girls are doing Junior Civic League work but they are not organized as Leagues.

Last year the law was passed that thrift must be taught in the public schools and as a result several school Superintendents have asked the assistance of the Women's Clubs in starting the Stamp or Bank Savings. But 35 clubs have replied to our questions, still these 35 clubs report savings amounting to $292,950.65, 10 clubs reporting last year have not been heard from this year and we are sure there are others doing this work. We know that some clubs have transferred their work, after getting it well established, to the charge of the school Superintendent and that seems to us the ideal way. Now they can devote their energies to some other good work.

By invitation of the Waltham Woman's Club a Conference was held on April 11th in Waltham. About 200 delegates and club members attended also guests from N. Y. and N. H.

One subject of this meeting was to present the various lines of work, hoping, that as the new Committees on Civics were appointed they would make use of these suggestions in deciding early the work they wished to take up next year. Eleven clubs report plans already made for next year's work.

We do not expect each club to take up all the departments of Civics work, but we would suggest that you take up one department and devote your energies to that particular one, so that, whether teaching thrift, or teaching that organized and directed play on the playground makes the girl and boy strong and well mentally as well as physically, thereby decreasing juvenile crime, or in promoting true patriotism, through knowledge of and loyalty to civic duties, you are helping to build up a nation of more vigorous boys and girls, who are to become men and women better equipped to make good homes and to become good citizens.

JENNIE STONE DAME,

REPORT OF CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

Four clubs have applied for membership in the Federation during the year:—the Eclectic Study Club of Boston, the West Roxbury Women's Club, the West Concord Women's Club, and the Sudbury Woman's Club making the number of clubs now included in the Federation 243, with a membership of 33,720.

The following have withdrawn: Consumer's League, Women's Auxiliary of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association, Women's Auxiliary to the Hebrew Industrial School, Women's Educational and Industrial Union, all of Boston, San Walter Foss Literary Club of Lowell, Ladies' Aid Association of the Malden Hospital, Shrewsbury Woman's Club and the Wenham Improvement Society.
